Goes on Trial in Slaying

Mrs. Dorothy Krueger Smith bows her head as she enters a Tokyo courtroom to go on trial by court martial for the slaying of her husband, Col. Aubrey D. Smith. At right is one of her defense attorneys, Brig. Gen. Adam Richman, USA Retired. Mrs. Smith, 40, mother of two children, is daughter of retired General Walter Krueger. Texas Officer Says Woman Seemed Drugged or Drunk

Lt. Col. Hardin Witness at Mrs. Smith's Trial in Tokyo; Tells of Delays

Tokyo, Jan. 6 (AP) — Dorothy Krueger Smith was quoted in court today as saying, "too bad I didn't get him in the heart" while her husband lay bleeding to death of a knife wound.

The witness was Lt. Col. Joseph Hardin of Dallas. He said he entered the bedroom of Col. and Mrs. Audrey Smith a few minutes after the officer was stabbed at midnight Oct. 3.

Dorothy Smith is on trial before an army court martial on a charge of premediated murder.

Hardin testified that on the fatal night she was groping around a dressing table, apparently searching for something. He said she wore only panties and bra.

Smith was on his bed with a knife wound in his side.

"Did you hear Mrs. Smith make any statement?" Lt. Col. W. H. H. Jones, prosecuting attorney, asked Hardin.

"Yes," Hardin replied. "It was to the effect that 'it's too bad I didn't get him in the heart.'"

Drunk or Drugged

Hardin testified also that Mrs. Smith seemed either drunk or drugged, was not rational, was unable to coordinate her physical movements, and was mostly unintelligible.

Finally, he added, the attractive 40-year-old daughter of Gen. Walter Krueger, a World War 2 hero, and the mother of two children "seemingly passed out."

Other witnesses variously testified she was asleep, in a coma or unconscious.

The second day of the dramatic trial then recessed until tomorrow. The case is being heard by a "blue ribbon" nine-member general court martial board, headed by a major general.

Hardin said he found Smith pale, perspiring and in great pain.

Delays Are Cited

Hardin, a golfing partner of Smith's, accompanied him to an army hospital. He expressed "disgust with tragic delays encountered" at getting medical treatment for Smith.

Not for 2¾ hours after he was stabbed in his bedroom did the 45-year-old Smith get a blood transfusion. He died six hours after he was wounded.

Mrs. Smith sobbed as she listened to testimony about the length of time required for Smith to get aid. As the trial ended for the day, she wept uncontrollably.

As to a possible motive, one witness, Lt. Col. Melvin A. Goers of Champaign, Ill., who accompanied Hardin to the Smith home, said he heard the defendant make one statement.

"To the best of my recollection," he said, "the statement was to the effect that 'no one will ever know the reason why.'"

Defense counsel has not announced on what Mrs. Smith's defense will be based. However, it has indicated the main defense would be temporary insanity.

1,500 Pickets Out For Rosenbergs

March in Washington All Day Protesting Death of Convicted Atom Spies

Washington, Jan. 6 (AP)—A stepped-up campaign aimed at sparing a husband and wife atom spy team from the electric chair was promised today amid fresh denunciations of the drive as communist-inspired.

Focus of the campaign was the White House. That is because the only remaining hope for Julius and Ethel Rosenberg is clemency from President Truman or his successor, Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Placard-carrying pickets, who first appeared at the White House on Dec. 27, paraded in swelling numbers yesterday. One of their spokesman said the picket line numbered as high as 1,500. The picket line was maintained throughout the night, although its numbers fell off to less than a dozen.

Backed by Communists

The pickets said they represented the Committee to Secure Justice in the Rosenberg Case—a group strongly backed by the Communist party's paper, The Daily Worker. The chief argument of the campaign is that no death sentences have been meted out in this country for similar offenses in the past.

David Alman, executive secretary of the committee, said a burst of activity in Washington yesterday heralded a nationwide drive to save the Rosenbergs from the electric chair.

Alman, at a news conference, described himself as a New York novelist and said he has been working fulltime for the last 18 months on behalf of the Rosenbergs. He said approximately 2,500 persons came to the capital yesterday in behalf of the campaign.

Call on Congressmen

Delegations, he said, called on about 100 members of Congress to urge intervention at the White House. Other such delegations will continue to buttonhole Congressmen throughout the week, Alman said. Two spokesmen talked with the Justice Department attorney who examines clemency appeals to

Bus Negotiations Open in New York

New York, Jan. 6 (AP)—Negotiations to settle a strike against eight private New York bus companies began today.

As spokesmen for the CIO Transport Workers Union and the companies met with officials in city hall, New Yorkers used other transportation means without unusual fuss or jamming.

TWU President Michael J. Quill told newsmen his union had no intention of starting a slowdown on the city's subways trains.

"We don't want them to stop," he said.

Meanwhile Mayor Vincent R. Impellitteri said he hoped the six-day-old strike could be settled today. He was "happy and encouraged," he said, that the TWU had agreed to discuss the entire bus situation with his special three-man mediation board.

Subways were jammed slightly more than usual again today in the morning rush hour.

Forts Hit Targets

Communists End Lull With Sharp Ground Assaults

Seoul, Jan. 6 (AP)—Allied warplanes smashed today at a sprawling Communist troop and supply concentration near Manchuria after Red troops cracked a holiday lull with sharp attacks on the frozen Korean front.

The Fifth Air Force reported 100 fighter-bombers from four wings pounded the supply area, about 30 miles south of the Yalu river boundary of Manchuria and near Kanggye, but met no Red fighter opposition.

Allied pilots made no immediate assessment of damage on the base. The air force said at least 28 billeting and storage buildings were destroyed.

Capital Area Raided

Fourteen U. S. B-29 superforts pounded targets near Pyongyang, the Korean Communist capital, last night.

B-26 light bombers destroyed 80 Red trucks.

Eight allied Sabre jets clashed twice with 24 Communist MIGs in clearing weather today. They reported two Red jets damaged.

Allied fighter-bombers also continued their incessant pounding of Red targets on the front lines, concentrating mainly on the western front.

Bad weather grounded navy carrier planes yesterday afternoon after they had hit truck convoys and a warehouse and had flown close support missions. Temperatures on the Korean battle front hit a low of five degrees before dawn but quickly rose to a high of 47 in one sector. A bright sun turned snow patches mushy.

Supply Center Hit

Ten superforts blasted a 100-acre Communist supply center and military staff headquarters at Changjin, near the North Korean capital, Pyongyang, against light opposition last night. One Communist fighter hovered near the B-29s but did not attack.

In the fight on Jane Russell Hill, a finger of Triangle Hill, the Chinese threw a company at the southern slopes held by South Korean infantrymen. Shortly after dark, the Reds rolled forward behind a stiff mortar barrage and struggled with the ROKS for 80 minutes before giving up.

Forces of about 75 men each crunched against two allied outposts near Christmas Hill just after midnight. Both fights lasted more than two hours before the Reds withdrew. To the east, the Reds sent a platoon in behind a 1,000-round barrage for an hour-long unsuccessful attack against an allied outpost.

Associated Press correspondent Forrest Edwards reported from the east-central front that one allied patrol tangled in a bitter handgrenade battle with a Red force before withdrawing to allied lines last night.

Trailer Overturns

A loaded trailer broke loose from its tractor and overturned as the vehicle was turning from Route 212 into Route 32 near Saugerties about 8:45 p. m. Monday, state police reported. The vehicle was owned by Spencer Crowner of R.D. 4, Carthage and driven by Bernard Lennox of Black River, troopers said. No personal injuries were reported.

City Snowfall Totals 4¼ Inches

This season, to date, stands a chance for some kind of an open-winter record, by the city engineer's charts, it was indicated today.

The total snowfall since early November until today has been about 4¼ inches as against 19¼ for the same period in 1951.

The first snow on Nov. 9 was a little more than two inches, and none since has been as heavy. Other years of light snow in the early part of the winter were 1935 and 1943, but the snowfall for each following January made up for the mild beginning.

Temperatures, to date, have also been comparatively mild. The lowest was nine degrees above zero on Dec. 30.

U. S. Desertions Called Disgrace By Army Colonel

Wave of Runaways Caused by Desire to Get Out of Serving in Korea

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 6 (AP)—The Louisville Times reported today that desertions from the armed forces of the United States have reached "alarming proportions."

The situation has become so bad, the newspapers said in a copyrighted article, that a well-informed army colonel called it "a national disgrace."

It said the wave of runaways is motivated, in a large number of cases, by the desires of young men to get dishonorably discharged and avoid service in Korea.

In Kentucky alone, the article said, from 3,000 to 4,000 deserters are tracked down each year and other hundreds still roam the country.

Accurate Figures Withheld

It quoted military men as saying the situation is proportionately as bad in the other 47 states. Accurate figures on the other states are unavailable, however, because the Defense Department has refused to make them public.

The Times said it had learned, however, that since the fall of 1950, the Fort Knox stockade seldom has contained fewer than 400 to 600 prisoners, "practically all of them deserters and AWOL's."

Richard Harwood, Times staff writer who wrote the article, said:

"As of two months ago, at least 700 soldiers and sailors were hiding out in Kentucky cities, on farms and in rural communities. Some of them deserted years ago. Some of them live almost like animals in caves and abandoned coal mines. Many of them are protected and hidden by relatives and friends."

Two Complete Divisions

Nationally, Harwood wrote, enough facts are known to justify the estimate of some military men on any given day of the year enough able-bodied men to make up two complete combat divisions are classified as deserters or

Elsworth Rules Gilbert Had Right of Purchase

A decision by Justice Roscoe V. Elsworth of the State Supreme Court has given Harry Gilbert the basis upon which he may compel the sale to him of the building at 314-326 Fair street.

Gilbert, who operates the North Front Street Liquor Store, brought an action to determine whether he or Crosby-Mertz, Inc., had the prior right to purchase the building at the corner of Fair and North Front streets. The building contains The Shanty Store, operated by the Crosby-Mertz corporation, and several other stores.

Justice Elsworth heard the arguments in chambers on March 3, and his decision, dated Dec. 27, became known in Kingston this Monday. In ruling in favor of the plaintiff, Gilbert, the decision opens the way for entering a judgment directing that the property be conveyed to Gilbert and declaring the deed executed to Crosby-Mertz, Inc., null and void.

Crosby-Mertz, Inc., had been in possession of the building under deed executed on Dec. 13, 1948, by the then owner, the late Samuel J. Van Kleeck, and filed with the Ulster county clerk the following day.

Gilbert's contention was that he had an option to purchase the property and that Van Kleeck had signed an agreement to sell the property to him.

Named as defendants in the action were William J. VanKleeck as administrator etc. of Samuel J. Van Kleeck, and as administrator c/t/a/ etc. of John T. Van Kleeck, Mildred F. Van Kleeck, Adelaide Van Kleeck, Samuel Van Kleeck, Jr., William J. Van Kleeck and Crosby-Mertz, Inc.

John E. Egan was attorney for the plaintiff, Gilbert. James J. Abernethy was attorney for the VanKleeck administrator and heirs, and Bernard A. Culloton represented Crosby-Mertz, Inc.

Egan revealed on Monday that the decision in addition to allowing the entering of a judgement to compel conveyance of the property to Gilbert, will give Gilbert a further cause of action to force an accounting for rent received by the Crosby-Mertz Corporation while it was in possession of the building.

The legal tangle over the purchase rights of the building was outlined in Judge Elsworth's lengthy decision. In essence, the facts in the case, according to the decision, were these:

The defendants Van Kleeck owned the building. On February 15, 1945, Van Kleeck leased one store in the building to a Mr. Ferrara, the lease giving Ferrara a "first refusal" type of option on the entire building.

Ferrara conducted a barber shop in the leased premises until on Dec. 14, 1946, he sold the business, fixtures and equipment to Ralph Dumenigo, with a re-purchase option in the event Du-

Wicks' Re-election Expected As Senate Majority Leader

Ulster County Republican Chieftain Attends Party Caucuses as Prelude to 176th Legislature's Opening in Albany

Senator Arthur H. Wicks of this city was among ruling Republicans and minority Democrats assembled in Albany today for party caucuses to pick their leaders for the 176th regular annual session of New York's legislature, according to the Associated Press.

Lawmakers from the two parties will meet separately tonight to elect their chieftains, and indications are that Wicks will be chosen again as GOP majority leader in the Senate. Aside from electing leaders, the caucuses will discuss 1953 legislative programs, prior to the formal convening of the State Senate and Assembly tomorrow.

Gov. Dewey will read his annual message—9,000 words this year—to a joint opening session of both houses at noon tomorrow.

Assemblyman Eugene F. Bannigan of Brooklyn and Sen. Francis J. Mahoney of Manhattan were slated to be the Democratic chiefs. They would succeed veteran party leaders who died in September.

Only one change was scheduled in the Republican line-up. Assemblyman William H. MacKenzie of Belmont, Allegany county, will take over the Ways and Means Committee to succeed D. Mallory Stephens of Brewster, who did not seek re-election.

Election Is Cleared

Bannigan's election as Assembly minority leader was cleared last night at a meeting in New York. Party sources said Banni-

Final Arguments Are Heard in Case

Sterley to Give Decision After January 26 in Wood Estate

Concluding arguments were heard in Surrogate's Court this morning in the matter of the two alleged widows of Eugene H. Wood, truck driver, who was killed in a collision on Sept. 30, 1952.

Attorneys were given 10 days in which to submit memoranda on their arguments, and Surrogate Judge John B. Sterley will hand down his decision sometime after Jan. 26.

There was no testimony taken this morning. C. Fred Schwarz, Jr., attorney for Jean Patricelli Wood of Schaghticoke, Rensselaer county, who had requested an adjournment to bring further witnesses in court, announced that one of his prospective witnesses entered the hospital this morning and that he would not request further adjournment, since he felt the testimony was not vital to the case. He did not name the witness.

Neither Anna Hauck Wood of Saugerties nor Jean Wood appeared in court today.

Both Agree on Bigamy

Both attorneys in their concluding arguments stated that Eugene Wood, the decedent, was guilty of the crime of bigamy.

The question to be decided is whether Wood at the time of his death was a legal resident of Ulster county, as Anna contends, or of Rensselaer county, as Jean contends. Jean brought the proceeding to revoke limited letters

Meters Bring $40,723

Collections in 1952 Are Record, Treasurers' Office Says

City parking meter collections in 1952 reached the record total of $40,723.87, the city treasurer's office reported today.

This was $3,223.87 above the 1951 total, and the December, 1952 collection of $4,064 was another record. One of the previous high collections before this was $3,976 in August, 1949. The 1951 December total was $3,000.

The record December total is an apparent indication of more local Christmas shopping than in other years.

27 Are Killed, Seven Hurt When Anglo Plane Crashes

Belfast, Northern Ireland, Jan. 6 (AP)—Salvage squads with geiger counters hunted today for a box of "highly dangerous" radium in the wreckage of a British airliner that crashed at Nutt's Corner Airport last night, killing 27 persons, including two Kansas school teachers.

Seven others were injured.

The radium was being flown to Belfast Radiotherapy Clinic. Rescuers were warned "if the box has burst, don't touch the contents. They are highly dangerous."

A horrified crowd of relatives and friends, gathered to greet the passengers, saw the twin-engined British European Airway (BEA) plane hit a beacon tower, careen against the airport's radio control building and crumple in flames on the main runway.

Wreckage was scattered up to 150 yards away. One engine buried itself 40 yards from the crash.

Only one of the 35 persons aboard the ill-fated craft—Steward Jack Young, 26, of Belfast—escaped unhurt. He was flung from the tail section into a muddy ditch when the plane broke up.

The two American schoolteachers were Miss Delores Griffin, 30, of Smith Center, Kan., and Miss Elda J. Duerken, 28, of Inmam, Kan. The other 25 killed were Britons.

The plane was on a regularly-scheduled flight from London to

Dirksen Declares 'Hell Will Pop,' if Money Sought

Washington, Jan. 6 (AP)—Sen. Dirksen (R-Ill.) predicted today that "hell will pop" in Congress if any proposal for U. S. support of British currency comes out of the Eisenhower-Churchill conference.

Dirksen told a reporter he does not believe President-elect Eisenhower made any commitments in his conversations with Britain's Prime Minister Winston Churchill at a meeting yesterday.

"Nevertheless," the Illinois senator said, "I shall be interested to see whether Mr. Churchill subsequently makes any proposal for a gift of American gold to support the convertibility of Britain's currency.

"If anything of that nature comes up, hell will pop in Congress, I'm sure."

Would Like Support

While Churchill has made no public mention of it, there have been reports the British Prime Minister would like to have American financial support for an international stabilization fund for the free countries.

Publicly, Churchill has concerned himself more directly with the theme that U. S. tariffs are impeding trade and hampering Britain's efforts to earn her own living with "trade, not aid."

While Sen. Taft of Ohio, the new Senate majority leader, indicated he favors extension of the reciprocal trade agreements act in about its present form, some other Republicans held out little hope for any considerable tariff cuts. The act permits the administration to cut import duties, in change for similar concessions from other countries.

Would Take Good Look

Sen. Capehart (R-Ind.) said Congress will want to "take a good look" at any tariff reduction proposals.

Along with others, Capehart predicted that Congress will cut foreign aid substantially in this session. This could involve a major financial blow to Britain, if other forms of American assistance are not forthcoming.

Sen. McCarran (D-Nev.) said in a statement yesterday that there should be "sharp curtailment" of foreign spending and "an early end to the economic assistance program."

An appropriations subcommittee on mutual aid, which McCarran has headed, reported that in 12 years Britain has received $31,559,547,000 in American aid, including war-time lend lease.

Churchill, Dulles To Meet, Confer

Winthrop W. Aldrich Also Will Meet With Two at Dinner

New York, Jan. 6 (AP)—British Prime Minister Winston Churchill will confer at dinner tonight with John Foster Dulles, secretary of state-designate in President-elect Eisenhower's cabinet, and Winthrop W. Aldrich, who will be ambassador to Great Britain.

This get-together at the home of Financier Bernard Baruch will follow by about 24 hours a similar dinner conference between Churchill and Eisenhower at the Baruch home.

There was no indication whether Eisenhower also would attend tonights dinner, scheduled for 6 p. m.

Baruch said Churchill expected to leave for Washington, D. C., from La Guardia Airport at 11 a. m. Thursday to visit President Truman.

Silent on Conclusions

Both Churchill and Eisenhower were silent on any conclusions they might have reached on world problems during their conference.

Eisenhower and Churchill—old friends from World War 2 days—got together at the Manhattan home of Bernard Baruch. Churchill is Baruch's guest during his stay in New York.

The possible topics of conversation may have included such things as the Korean War, Soviet Premier Stalin's recently-indicated willingness to meet with Eisenhower, and Great Britain's economic problems.

Neither Eisenhower nor Churchill made any public statement after their meeting. Eisenhower's headquarters had said in advance that he would have no comment on the conference last night.

The headquarters said it had no information on whether the President-elect might have a

Filibuster Battle Gets Top Billing

North's Senators Would End Move by Which Measures Have Been Talked to Death

Paralysis Feared

Taft Would Stop Effort to Snarl Eisenhower Program

Washington, Jan. 6 (AP) — The Senate Republican command called its GOP hands on deck today, with orders to stay there if it takes all week, for a finish fight in the battle over filibusters.

The orders came from Sen. Taft of Ohio, Republican floor leader, as opposing factions squared off to start the scrap this afternoon (about 3 p. m.).

The filibuster fight seemed likely to be the only concrete business to come before the new Congress this week.

Senate and House had a date to meet in joint session today for the formal counting of Electoral College votes which will make Dwight D. Eisenhower the next President. Tomorrow they Tomorrow they will receive President Truman's final "State of the Union" message, but he won't deliver it in person. Friday the Truman budget message will be sent to Capitol Hill.

Done Behind Scenes

Otherwise, most of the work was being done behind the scenes toward completing the organization of the GOP Congress which met for the first time on Saturday. Committee assignments were the biggest and touchiest problem.

In the filibuster scrap, the issue is a move by self-styled liberal northern senators to make it easier to muzzle the endless debate with which southern senators in the past have talked to death Civil Rights bills.

Anti-lynching and anti-poll tax bills, and proposals to forbid racial discrimination in employment, have been victims of filibusters.

Practically No Chance

Even staunchest Civil Rights supporters conceded they have practically no chance to win. Taft is seeking to prevent the row from blossoming into a full-fledged filibuster which could paralyze the Senate for weeks and tie up the legislative program of the incoming Eisenhower administration.

Sen. Dirksen (R-Ill.), one of Taft's lieutenants, is reported to be drafting a civil rights bill around which he expects the GOP to rally later—a measure seeking to discourage racial discrimination in employment without providing for criminal prosecution of offenders. Its details have not been made public.

Forsees Democratic Unity

In that connection, Rep. Sam Rayburn of Texas, dean of all Democrats in Congress, said yesterday he expects that any civil rights program which Eisenhower proposes will help unite the Democrats.

"Some Democrats who hated President Roosevelt and Truman because of their civil rights proposals will now start hating President Eisenhower for the same reason," Rayburn said in an interview on the eve of his 71st birthday today.

Rayburn, speaker of the House in the last session, said he thinks his party will be more united as a minority than it was during the nearly 20 years it ruled the government.

Challenges Theory

In the Senate maneuvering, Sen. Anderson (D-N.M.) had made the opening move Saturday, with a motion challenging the long-held theory that Senate rules—including the one which gives a filibuster its strongest bulwark—remain in effect from year to year. The storm centers about rule 22, which requires the votes of 64 of the 96 Senate members to put a time limit on debate, and which forbids any time limit at all in debating rules changes.

Anderson and Sen. Lehman (D-Lib.-N. Y.), who is quarterbacking the move for a change, contend the old rules expired with the last Congress, and that the Senate now is free to adopt a new set. They say it should include one to permit a debate limit — death knell to a filibuster—by a vote of only 49 senators, a majority.

Taft told reporters he will try to bring the issue to a head not later than tomorrow. He has indicated he may try to do this by moving to table the whole controversy.

Lt. Col. Hardin Witness at Mrs. Smith's Trial in Tokyo; Tells of Delays

Tokyo, Jan. 6 (AP) — Dorothy Krueger Smith was quoted in court today as saying, "too bad I didn't get him in the heart" while her husband lay bleeding to death of a knife wound.

The witness was Lt. Col. Joseph Hardin of Dallas. He said he entered the bedroom of Col. and Mrs. Audrey Smith a few minutes after the officer was stabbed at midnight Oct. 3.

Dorothy Smith is on trial before an army court martial on a charge of premediated murder.

Hardin testified that on the fatal night she was groping around a dressing table, apparently searching for something. He said she wore only panties and bra.

Supply Center Hit

Ten superforts blasted a 100-acre Communist supply center and military staff headquarters at Changjin, near the North Korean capital, Pyongyang, against light opposition last night. One Communist fighter hovered near the B-29s but did not attack.

In the fight on Jane Russell Hill, a finger of Triangle Hill, the Chinese threw a company at the southern slopes held by South Korean infantrymen. Shortly after dark, the Reds rolled forward behind a stiff mortar barrage and struggled with the ROKS for 80 minutes before giving up.

Forces of about 75 men each crunched against two allied outposts near Christmas Hill just after midnight. Both fights lasted more than two hours before the Reds withdrew. To the east, the Reds sent a platoon in behind a 1,000-round barrage for an hour-long unsuccessful attack against an allied outpost.

City Snowfall Totals 4¼ Inches

This season, to date, stands a chance for some kind of an open-winter record, by the city engineer's charts, it was indicated today.

The total snowfall since early November until today has been about 4¼ inches as against 19¼ for the same period in 1951.

The first snow on Nov. 9 was a little more than two inches, and none since has been as heavy. Other years of light snow in the early part of the winter were 1935 and 1943, but the snowfall for each following January made up for the mild beginning.

Temperatures, to date, have also been comparatively mild. The lowest was nine degrees above zero on Dec. 30.

U. S. Desertions Called Disgrace By Army Colonel

Wave of Runaways Caused by Desire to Get Out of Serving in Korea

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 6 (AP)—The Louisville Times reported today that desertions from the armed forces of the United States have reached "alarming proportions."

The situation has become so bad, the newspapers said in a copyrighted article, that a well-informed army colonel called it "a national disgrace."

It said the wave of runaways is motivated, in a large number of cases, by the desires of young men to get dishonorably discharged and avoid service in Korea.

In Kentucky alone, the article said, from 3,000 to 4,000 deserters are tracked down each year and other hundreds still roam the country.

Accurate Figures Withheld

It quoted military men as saying the situation is proportionately as bad in the other 47 states. Accurate figures on the other states are unavailable, however, because the Defense Department has refused to make them public.

The Times said it had learned, however, that since the fall of 1950, the Fort Knox stockade seldom has contained fewer than 400 to 600 prisoners, "practically all of them deserters and AWOL's."

Richard Harwood, Times staff writer who wrote the article, said:

"As of two months ago, at least 700 soldiers and sailors were hiding out in Kentucky cities, on farms and in rural communities. Some of them deserted years ago. Some of them live almost like animals in caves and abandoned coal mines. Many of them are protected and hidden by relatives and friends."

Two Complete Divisions

Nationally, Harwood wrote, enough facts are known to justify the estimate of some military men on any given day of the year enough able-bodied men to make up two complete combat divisions are classified as deserters or

Elsworth Rules Gilbert Had Right of Purchase

A decision by Justice Roscoe V. Elsworth of the State Supreme Court has given Harry Gilbert the basis upon which he may compel the sale to him of the building at 314-326 Fair street.

Gilbert, who operates the North Front Street Liquor Store, brought an action to determine whether he or Crosby-Mertz, Inc., had the prior right to purchase the building at the corner of Fair and North Front streets. The building contains The Shanty Store, operated by the Crosby-Mertz corporation, and several other stores.

Justice Elsworth heard the arguments in chambers on March 3, and his decision, dated Dec. 27, became known in Kingston this Monday. In ruling in favor of the plaintiff, Gilbert, the decision opens the way for entering a judgment directing that the property be conveyed to Gilbert and declaring the deed executed to Crosby-Mertz, Inc., null and void.

Crosby-Mertz, Inc., had been in possession of the building under deed executed on Dec. 13, 1948, by the then owner, the late Samuel J. Van Kleeck, and filed with the Ulster county clerk the following day.

Gilbert's contention was that he had an option to purchase the property and that Van Kleeck had signed an agreement to sell the property to him.

Named as defendants in the action were William J. VanKleeck as administrator etc. of Samuel J. Van Kleeck, and as administrator c/t/a/ etc. of John T. Van Kleeck, Mildred F. Van Kleeck, Adelaide Van Kleeck, Samuel Van Kleeck, Jr., William J. Van Kleeck and Crosby-Mertz, Inc.

John E. Egan was attorney for the plaintiff, Gilbert. James J. Abernethy was attorney for the VanKleeck administrator and heirs, and Bernard A. Culloton represented Crosby-Mertz, Inc.

Egan revealed on Monday that the decision in addition to allowing the entering of a judgement to compel conveyance of the property to Gilbert, will give Gilbert a further cause of action to force an accounting for rent received by the Crosby-Mertz Corporation while it was in possession of the building.

The legal tangle over the purchase rights of the building was outlined in Judge Elsworth's lengthy decision. In essence, the facts in the case, according to the decision, were these:

The defendants Van Kleeck owned the building. On February 15, 1945, Van Kleeck leased one store in the building to a Mr. Ferrara, the lease giving Ferrara a "first refusal" type of option on the entire building.

Ferrara conducted a barber shop in the leased premises until on Dec. 14, 1946, he sold the business, fixtures and equipment to Ralph Dumenigo, with a re-purchase option in the event Du-

Wicks' Re-election Expected As Senate Majority Leader

Ulster County Republican Chieftain Attends Party Caucuses as Prelude to 176th Legislature's Opening in Albany

Senator Arthur H. Wicks of this city was among ruling Republicans and minority Democrats assembled in Albany today for party caucuses to pick their leaders for the 176th regular annual session of New York's legislature, according to the Associated Press.

Lawmakers from the two parties will meet separately tonight to elect their chieftains, and indications are that Wicks will be chosen again as GOP majority leader in the Senate. Aside from electing leaders, the caucuses will discuss 1953 legislative programs, prior to the formal convening of the State Senate and Assembly tomorrow.

Gov. Dewey will read his annual message—9,000 words this year—to a joint opening session of both houses at noon tomorrow.

Assemblyman Eugene F. Bannigan of Brooklyn and Sen. Francis J. Mahoney of Manhattan were slated to be the Democratic chiefs. They would succeed veteran party leaders who died in September.

Only one change was scheduled in the Republican line-up. Assemblyman William H. MacKenzie of Belmont, Allegany county, will take over the Ways and Means Committee to succeed D. Mallory Stephens of Brewster, who did not seek re-election.

Election Is Cleared

Final Arguments Are Heard in Case

Sterley to Give Decision After January 26 in Wood Estate

Concluding arguments were heard in Surrogate's Court this morning in the matter of the two alleged widows of Eugene H. Wood, truck driver, who was killed in a collision on Sept. 30, 1952.

Attorneys were given 10 days in which to submit memoranda on their arguments, and Surrogate Judge John B. Sterley will hand down his decision sometime after Jan. 26.

There was no testimony taken this morning. C. Fred Schwarz, Jr., attorney for Jean Patricelli Wood of Schaghticoke, Rensselaer county, who had requested an adjournment to bring further witnesses in court, announced that one of his prospective witnesses entered the hospital this morning and that he would not request further adjournment, since he felt the testimony was not vital to the case. He did not name the witness.

Neither Anna Hauck Wood of Saugerties nor Jean Wood appeared in court today.

Both Agree on Bigamy

Both attorneys in their concluding arguments stated that Eugene Wood, the decedent, was guilty of the crime of bigamy.

The question to be decided is whether Wood at the time of his death was a legal resident of Ulster county, as Anna contends, or of Rensselaer county, as Jean contends. Jean brought the proceeding to revoke limited letters

Meters Bring $40,723

Collections in 1952 Are Record, Treasurers' Office Says

City parking meter collections in 1952 reached the record total of $40,723.87, the city treasurer's office reported today.

This was $3,223.87 above the 1951 total, and the December, 1952 collection of $4,064 was another record. One of the previous high collections before this was $3,976 in August, 1949. The 1951 December total was $3,000.

The record December total is an apparent indication of more local Christmas shopping than in other years.

27 Are Killed, Seven Hurt When Anglo Plane Crashes

Belfast, Northern Ireland, Jan. 6 (AP)—Salvage squads with geiger counters hunted today for a box of "highly dangerous" radium in the wreckage of a British airliner that crashed at Nutt's Corner Airport last night, killing 27 persons, including two Kansas school teachers.

Seven others were injured.

The radium was being flown to Belfast Radiotherapy Clinic. Rescuers were warned "if the box has burst, don't touch the contents. They are highly dangerous."

A horrified crowd of relatives and friends, gathered to greet the passengers, saw the twin-engined British European Airway (BEA) plane hit a beacon tower, careen against the airport's radio control building and crumple in flames on the main runway.

Wreckage was scattered up to 150 yards away. One engine buried itself 40 yards from the crash.

Only one of the 35 persons aboard the ill-fated craft—Steward Jack Young, 26, of Belfast—escaped unhurt. He was flung from the tail section into a muddy ditch when the plane broke up.

The two American schoolteachers were Miss Delores Griffin, 30, of Smith Center, Kan., and Miss Elda J. Duerken, 28, of Inmam, Kan. The other 25 killed were Britons.

The plane was on a regularly-scheduled flight from London to

Dirksen Declares 'Hell Will Pop,' if Money Sought

Washington, Jan. 6 (AP)—Sen. Dirksen (R-Ill.) predicted today that "hell will pop" in Congress if any proposal for U. S. support of British currency comes out of the Eisenhower-Churchill conference.

Dirksen told a reporter he does not believe President-elect Eisenhower made any commitments in his conversations with Britain's Prime Minister, Winston Churchill at a meeting yesterday.

"Nevertheless," the Illinois senator said, "I shall be interested to see whether Mr. Churchill subsequently makes any proposal for a gift of American gold to support the convertibility of Britain's currency.

"If anything of that nature comes up, hell will pop in Congress, I'm sure."

Would Like Support

While Churchill has made no public mention of it, there have been reports the British Prime Minister would like to have American financial support for an international stabilization fund for the free countries.

Publicly, Churchill has concerned himself more directly with the theme that U. S. tariffs are impeding trade and hampering Britain's efforts to earn her own living with "trade, not aid."

While Sen. Taft of Ohio, the new Senate majority leader, indicated he favors extension of the reciprocal trade agreements act in about its present form, some other Republicans held out little hope for any considerable tariff cuts. The act permits the administration to cut import duties, in change for similar concessions from other countries.

Would Take Good Look

Sen. Capehart (R-Ind.) said Congress will want to "take a good look" at any tariff reduction proposals.

Along with others, Capehart predicted that Congress will cut foreign aid substantially in this session. This could involve a major financial blow to Britain, if other forms of American assistance are not forthcoming.

Sen. McCarran (D-Nev.) said in a statement yesterday that there should be "sharp curtailment" of foreign spending and "an early end to the economic assistance program."

An appropriations subcommittee on mutual aid, which McCarran has headed, reported that in 12 years Britain has received $31,559,547,000 in American aid, including war-time lend lease.

Churchill, Dulles To Meet, Confer

Winthrop W. Aldrich Also Will Meet With Two at Dinner

New York, Jan. 6 (AP)—British Prime Minister Winston Churchill will confer at dinner tonight with John Foster Dulles, secretary of state-designate in President-elect Eisenhower's cabinet, and Winthrop W. Aldrich, who will be ambassador to Great Britain.

This get-together at the home of Financier Bernard Baruch will follow by about 24 hours a similar dinner conference between Churchill and Eisenhower at the Baruch home.

There was no indication whether Eisenhower also would attend tonights dinner, scheduled for 6 p. m.

Baruch said Churchill expected to leave for Washington, D. C., from La Guardia Airport at 11 a. m. Thursday to visit President Truman.

Silent on Conclusions

Both Churchill and Eisenhower were silent on any conclusions they might have reached on world problems during their conference.

Eisenhower and Churchill—old friends from World War 2 days—got together at the Manhattan home of Bernard Baruch. Churchill is Baruch's guest during his stay in New York.

The possible topics of conversation may have included such things as the Korean War, Soviet Premier Stalin's recently-indicated willingness to meet with Eisenhower, and Great Britain's economic problems.

Neither Eisenhower nor Churchill made any public statement after their meeting. Eisenhower's headquarters had said in advance that he would have no comment on the conference last night.

The headquarters said it had no information on whether the President-elect might have a

Filibuster Battle Gets Top Billing

North's Senators Would End Move by Which Measures Have Been Talked to Death

Paralysis Feared

Taft Would Stop Effort to Snarl Eisenhower Program

Washington, Jan. 6 (AP) — The Senate Republican command called its GOP hands on deck today, with orders to stay there if it takes all week, for a finish fight in the battle over filibusters.

The orders came from Sen. Taft of Ohio, Republican floor leader, as opposing factions squared off to start the scrap this afternoon (about 3 p. m.).

The filibuster fight seemed likely to be the only concrete business to come before the new Congress this week.

Senate and House had a date to meet in joint session today for the formal counting of Electoral College votes which will make Dwight D. Eisenhower the next President. Tomorrow they Tomorrow they will receive President Truman's final "State of the Union" message, but he won't deliver it in person. Friday the Truman budget message will be sent to Capitol Hill.

Done Behind Scenes

Otherwise, most of the work was being done behind the scenes toward completing the organization of the GOP Congress which met for the first time on Saturday. Committee assignments were the biggest and touchiest problem.

In the filibuster scrap, the issue is a move by self-styled liberal northern senators to make it easier to muzzle the endless debate with which southern senators in the past have talked to death Civil Rights bills.

Anti-lynching and anti-poll tax bills, and proposals to forbid racial discrimination in employment, have been victims of filibusters.

Practically No Chance

Even staunchest Civil Rights supporters conceded they have practically no chance to win. Taft is seeking to prevent the row from blossoming into a full-fledged filibuster which could paralyze the Senate for weeks and tie up the legislative program of the incoming Eisenhower administration.

Sen. Dirksen (R-Ill.), one of Taft's lieutenants, is reported to be drafting a civil rights bill around which he expects the GOP to rally later—a measure seeking to discourage racial discrimination in employment without providing for criminal prosecution of offenders. Its details have not been made public.

Forsees Democratic Unity

In that connection, Rep. Sam Rayburn of Texas, dean of all Democrats in Congress, said yesterday he expects that any civil rights program which Eisenhower proposes will help unite the Democrats.

"Some Democrats who hated President Roosevelt and Truman because of their civil rights proposals will now start hating President Eisenhower for the same reason," Rayburn said in an interview on the eve of his 71st birthday today.

Rayburn, speaker of the House in the last session, said he thinks his party will be more united as a minority than it was during the nearly 20 years it ruled the government.

Challenges Theory

In the Senate maneuvering, Sen. Anderson (D-N.M.) had made the opening move Saturday, with a motion challenging the long-held theory that Senate rules—including the one which gives a filibuster its strongest bulwark—remain in effect from year to year. The storm centers about rule 22, which requires the votes of 64 of the 96 Senate members to put a time limit on debate, and which forbids any time limit at all in debating rules changes.

Anderson and Sen. Lehman (D-Lib.-N. Y.), who is quarterbacking the move for a change, contend the old rules expired with the last Congress, and that the Senate now is free to adopt a new set. They say it should include one to permit a debate limit — death knell to a filibuster—by a vote of only 49 senators, a majority.

Taft told reporters he will try to bring the issue to a head not later than tomorrow. He has indicated he may try to do this by moving to table the whole controversy.

Snowstorm Upsets Parts of Midwest

(By The Associated Press)

A spreading snowstorm began disrupting traffic in parts of the midwest today on the heels of a blast of sub-zero cold.

A belt of new snow, generally two to four inches deep, extended from Montana southeastward into Iowa and Missouri and was working eastward.

A two-inch early morning fall produced one of the worst traffic snarls in St. Louis since a foot of snow fell in 12-hour period in November, 1951.

The snow packed into a hard sheet of ice on main streets, stalling or slowing long lines of traffic. Thousands were late for work.

The St. Louis Public Service Co. put its entire snow fighting fleet into service, but buses and streetcars were running up to a half hour behind schedule as the morning rush hour started.

Snow flurries hit Chicago about mid-morning and the U. S. Weather Bureau forecast two to three inches would fall by night.

Aberdeen, S. D., had five inches of new snow and Omaha, Neb., two inches by early morning.

Snow, ranging from one to six inches, fell in West Virginia.

Meanwhile, much of the midwest shivered in the season's coldest weather. The cold belt extended from the northern Rockies to the northern Appalachians.

The temperature dropped to 25 degrees below zero at International Falls, Minn. Joliet, Ill., had a reading of -6 and Rockford, Ill., -2.

Letter Made Public

Washington, Jan. 6 (AP)—Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) made public today a photographic copy of a 1948 letter signed by President Truman thanking Henry W. (The Dutchman) Grunewald for "generous" support in that election year. McCarthy handed reporters the copy shortly after he asked the Senate Rules Committee to look into a political contribution to Sen. Monroney (D-Okla.) which McCarthy said was solicited from Grunewald. Grunewald, mysterious Washington figure, was re-indicted here yesterday by a federal grand jury for contempt of Congress for refusing to answer questions of a House committee investigating tax scandals.

Halley Takes Stand Against Joe Adonis

New York, Jan. 6 (AP)—Rudolph Halley, city council president and former crime prober, faced gambler Joe Adonis again today—this time with Halley, as a witness and the underworld figure as a defendant.

Adonis, born Joseph Doto, is on trial in Federal Court on charges of contempt of the Senate Crime Investigating Committee when he was a witness before it.

Halley was chief counsel of the committee, which was headed by Sen. Estes Kefauver, Tennessee Democrat.

Halley's appearance on the witness stand was devoted chiefly to relating instances in which, he said, Adonis refused to answer committee questions.

Says Evidence Existed

Halley said, in response to a question from Assistant U. S. Attorney Robert Martin, that the committee had evidence that Adonis was engaged in organized crime.

"Did you ask him if he was in business at the Piping Rock Club in Saratoga?" asked Martin.

Halley said he had asked, and that Adonis declined to answer. Halley added the committee had evidence of "criminal activities in Piping Rock, namely gambling."

Halley testified he asked Adonis on March 12, 1952, whether he ever contributed to any political campaign, national, state or city, and that Adonis had not answered. He said he had explained to Adonis that the committee was investigating "corrupting effects on government of organized crime."

Edward J. Bennett, attorney for Adonis, contended before the court that Adonis had the right to rely on constitutional privilege in refusing to answer certain questions put to him by the committee.

Judge John F. X. Mc Gohey is hearing the case without a jury.

Harold Wilkins is operator of one of the Onteora central school buses. He starts his morning run on top of Ohayo Mountain near Wittenberg road.

The sawing of hard maple timber for pallet stock continues apace at the mountain mills. Hundreds of thousands of these pallets, or platforms for loading ships, have been turned out since the beginning of World War 2. L. V. Hoyt of Mt. Tremper has a huge trailer truck with which he hauls this product to market. The prevalence of sap spile holes in slabwood sold in the upper Esopus valley indicate that sugar bushes as well as wild land is being timbered for this industry.

Grover C. Winchell, well known south Olive fire insurance company official, was a caller in the hub of the reservoir country recently. Grover, son of Benjamin and Cornelia A. (Dudrey) Winchell, observed his 68th birthday Tuesday, Nov. 6.

The number of skiers passing through the village Sunday was fairly large though it was noted that many of these started returning to the city in early afternoon.

Mrs. Henry Wells, Woodstock matron and former Shokan girl, is getting along well following an operation on one of her fingers.

Richard Lane of the High Point mountain neighborhood was a local caller Friday. The Lanes bought the place formerly owned for several years by Ferd Gildersleeve of Kingston.

Harrison Gridley has resigned his position on the teaching staff of the Onteora Central School. Gridley, a resident of Shady, during his 33 years as a teacher in the mountain schools was principal of the Ashokan school for a number of years.

Joe Burger who was a clerk at Winchell's store many years ago, is now employed at a bakery in Highland.

Rosenberg Case Is Hot Topic in Countries Abroad

Paris, Jan. 6 (AP)—The case of Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, sentenced to death for spying in the United States, has become a hot topic in countries where Communist propaganda finds a willing ear.

The cry of "Save the Rosenbergs" has replaced attacks agaist "germ warfare" as the principal theme of an unrelenting anti-American campaign. French Communists call the Rosenbergs "the American patriots" and "the young American couple threatened with death." No mention is made of the fact they were convicted of passing atomic secrets to Soviet Russia.

As long as the campaign was limited to the Communist press, there was little reaction from American circles. Then the doubting spilled over into the influential afternoon nawspaper Le Monde which follows a line of 'neutralism" and finds little perfect in either Russia of the United States.

Writes in Le Monde

In a review of the trial, Henri Pierre wrote in Le Monde:

"No document, no exhibit, no material proof could be produced against the Rosenbergs, who are thus sent to the electric chair on simple oral testimony." The Leftist, but anti-Communist, newspaper Combat published a similar article.

In the face of what seemed to be a growing wave of skepticism about the trial, the American Embassy sent press attache Ben Bradlee on a three-day trip to New York for rebuttal evidence. Bradlee returned with the trial record. The result was an 18-page document outlining the charges and evidence against the Rosenbergs, the defense case of the Rosenbergs, and explanation of American judicial procedure, and answers to questions of the doubters.

This document since has been sent out to 40 U. S. diplomatic missions around the world. Since it was distributed, further explanation of the case and the facts presented in the trial have appeared in five Paris dailies.

Figaro Speaks

In the Conservative Morning Figaro, Foreign Affairs Editor Roger Massip said "we would like to believe that when President Truman takes up the Rosenberg dossier, he will not refuse a measure of clemency. Such a gesture would establish in the eyes of universal opinion the conception that what is done in justice is entirely different, in the countries of the Free World and in those where simple deviation finishes on the gallows."

Le Monde has made the further comment: "No one can say the Rosenbergs are innocent." It noted, however, much lighter sentences were given other atomic spies and concluded:

"If there is no clemency, Communist propaganda will make martyrs of the Rosenbergs."

One of the points on which the Communist papers have hammered: The Rosenbergs are sentenced to die in the electric chair. This brings to mind all kinds of horror for a Frenchman, who finds the guillotine the most humane way of taking a human life.

New York City Produce Market

Dressed poultry easy. Turkeys, farwestern and northwestern, bronze, dry packed, young hens 14-18 lbs. 42-45.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Jan. 6 (AP)—Stocks skidded from their 22-year highs in today's market.

Many early gains were reduced or turned into losses. Declines among individual issues ranged as high as 4 points at times although most were fractional.

An early flurry in railroad stocks, which failed to attract a following elsewhere, faded out. Initial activity also centered on the steels and radio-televisions.

Some large blocks changed hands at the opening, including 6,000 shares of New York Central up a narrow fraction. Central later dipped into losing territory.

When it became apparent there was little inclination to resume the general advance that sent the market to an average 22-year high on Monday, selling pressure increased and prices tumbled.

Prominent on the downside were Chrysler, Studebaker, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Bethlehem Steel, Atlantic Coast Line, Union Pacific, Southern Railway, Pennsylvania Railroad, Texas Co., General Electric, International Paper, Goodrich, American Smelting, American Telephone and International Nickel.

Kenny Testifies He Fired Secretary

Newark, N. J., Jan. 6 (AP) — Mayor John V. Kenny of Jersey City told the New Jersey Law Enforcement Council today he fired his secretary when he heard reports that the secretary and waterfront racketeer Anthony (Tony Bender) Strollo planned to go into the gambling business.

The disclosure came as Kenny was being questioned about his midnight meeting with Bender in the hotel apartment of singer Phil Regan last spring.

The mayor, talking in a low voice and with apparent calm, said he dismissed his secretary, George Creegan, in 1951 after he was informed of the purported gambling establishment in Jersey City.

Reiterating much of his testimony before the New York county grand jury, Kenny said he met with Bender for about an hour and a half in an effort to glean information "that might guide us in our pier situation."

At the time of the meeting, Jersey City piers were tied up by a strike.

Kenny told the council, which is probing waterfront crime, that according to police information Bender was one of a mob trying to take over the piers in his city, second largest in the state.

Snowstorm Upsets Parts of Midwest

(By The Associated Press)

A spreading snowstorm began disrupting traffic in parts of the midwest today on the heels of a blast of sub-zero cold.

A belt of new snow, generally two to four inches deep, extended from Montana southeastward into Iowa and Missouri and was working eastward.

A two-inch early morning fall produced one of the worst traffic snarls in St. Louis since a foot of snow fell in 12-hour period in November, 1951.

The snow packed into a hard sheet of ice on main streets, stalling or slowing long lines of traffic. Thousands were late for work.

The St. Louis Public Service Co. put its entire snow fighting fleet into service, but buses and streetcars were running up to a half hour behind schedule as the morning rush hour started.

Snow flurries hit Chicago about mid-morning and the U. S. Weather Bureau forecast two to three inches would fall by night.

Aberdeen, S. D., had five inches of new snow and Omaha, Neb., two inches by early morning.

Snow, ranging from one to six inches, fell in West Virginia.

Meanwhile, much of the midwest shivered in the season's coldest weather. The cold belt extended from the northern Rockies to the northern Appalachians.

The temperature dropped to 25 degrees below zero at International Falls, Minn. Joliet, Ill., had a reading of -6 and Rockford, Ill., -2.

Grunewald, mysterious Washington figure, was re-indicted here yesterday by a federal grand jury for contempt of Congress for refusing to answer questions of a House committee investigating tax scandals.

Halley Takes Stand Against Joe Adonis

New York, Jan. 6 (AP)—Rudolph Halley, city council president and former crime prober, faced gambler Joe Adonis again today—this time with Halley, as a witness and the underworld figure as a defendant.

Adonis, born Joseph Doto, is on trial in Federal Court on charges of contempt of the Senate Crime Investigating Committee when he was a witness before it.

Halley was chief counsel of the committee, which was headed by Sen. Estes Kefauver, Tennessee Democrat.

Halley's appearance on the witness stand was devoted chiefly to relating instances in which, he said, Adonis refused to answer committee questions.

Says Evidence Existed

Halley said, in response to a question from Assistant U. S. Attorney Robert Martin, that the committee had evidence that Adonis was engaged in organized crime.

"Did you ask him if he was in business at the Piping Rock Club in Saratoga?" asked Martin.

Halley said he had asked, and that Adonis declined to answer. Halley added the committee had evidence of "criminal activities in Piping Rock, namely gambling."

Halley testified he asked Adonis on March 12, 1952, whether he ever contributed to any political campaign, national, state or city, and that Adonis had not answered. He said he had explained to Adonis that the committee was investigating "corrupting effects on government of organized crime."

Edward J. Bennett, attorney for Adonis, contended before the court that Adonis had the right to rely on constitutional privilege in refusing to answer certain questions put to him by the committee.

Judge John F. X. Mc Gohey is hearing the case without a jury.

The sawing of hard maple timber for pallet stock continues apace at the mountain mills. Hundreds of thousands of these pallets, or platforms for loading ships, have been turned out since the beginning of World War 2. L. V. Hoyt of Mt. Tremper has a huge trailer truck with which he hauls this product to market. The prevalence of sap spile holes in slabwood sold in the upper Esopus valley indicate that sugar bushes as well as wild land is being timbered for this industry.

Rosenberg Case Is Hot Topic in Countries Abroad

Paris, Jan. 6 (AP)—The case of Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, sentenced to death for spying in the United States, has become a hot topic in countries where Communist propaganda finds a willing ear.

The cry of "Save the Rosenbergs" has replaced attacks agaist "germ warfare" as the principal theme of an unrelenting anti-American campaign. French Communists call the Rosenbergs "the American patriots" and "the young American couple threatened with death." No mention is made of the fact they were convicted of passing atomic secrets to Soviet Russia.

As long as the campaign was limited to the Communist press, there was little reaction from American circles. Then the doubting spilled over into the influential afternoon nawspaper Le Monde which follows a line of 'neutralism" and finds little perfect in either Russia of the United States.

Writes in Le Monde

In a review of the trial, Henri Pierre wrote in Le Monde:

"No document, no exhibit, no material proof could be produced against the Rosenbergs, who are thus sent to the electric chair on simple oral testimony." The Leftist, but anti-Communist, newspaper Combat published a similar article.

In the face of what seemed to be a growing wave of skepticism about the trial, the American Embassy sent press attache Ben Bradlee on a three-day trip to New York for rebuttal evidence. Bradlee returned with the trial record. The result was an 18-page document outlining the charges and evidence against the Rosenbergs, the defense case of the Rosenbergs, and explanation of American judicial procedure, and answers to questions of the doubters.

This document since has been sent out to 40 U. S. diplomatic missions around the world. Since it was distributed, further explanation of the case and the facts presented in the trial have appeared in five Paris dailies.

Figaro Speaks

In the Conservative Morning Figaro, Foreign Affairs Editor Roger Massip said "we would like to believe that when President Truman takes up the Rosenberg dossier, he will not refuse a measure of clemency. Such a gesture would establish in the eyes of universal opinion the conception that what is done in justice is entirely different, in the countries of the Free World and in those where simple deviation finishes on the gallows."

Le Monde has made the further comment: "No one can say the Rosenbergs are innocent." It noted, however, much lighter sentences were given other atomic spies and concluded:

"If there is no clemency, Communist propaganda will make martyrs of the Rosenbergs."

One of the points on which the Communist papers have hammered: The Rosenbergs are sentenced to die in the electric chair. This brings to mind all kinds of horror for a Frenchman, who finds the guillotine the most humane way of taking a human life.

New York City Produce Market

New York, Jan. 6 (AP)—Eggs 17,008, steady, prices unchanged.

Dressed poultry easy. Turkeys, farwestern and northwestern, bronze, dry packed, young hens 14-18 lbs. 42-45.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Jan. 6 (AP)—Stocks skidded from their 22-year highs in today's market.

Many early gains were reduced or turned into losses. Declines among individual issues ranged as high as 4 points at times although most were fractional.

An early flurry in railroad stocks, which failed to attract a following elsewhere, faded out. Initial activity also centered on the steels and radio-televisions.

Some large blocks changed hands at the opening, including 6,000 shares of New York Central up a narrow fraction. Central later dipped into losing territory.

When it became apparent there was little inclination to resume the general advance that sent the market to an average 22-year high on Monday, selling pressure increased and prices tumbled.

Prominent on the downside were Chrysler, Studebaker, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Bethlehem Steel, Atlantic Coast Line, Union Pacific, Southern Railway, Pennsylvania Railroad, Texas Co., General Electric, International Paper, Goodrich, American Smelting, American Telephone and International Nickel.

Quotations by Morgan Davis & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange, 60 Beaver street, New York city; branch office, 41 John street, R. B. Osterhoudt, manager.

Kenny Testifies He Fired Secretary

Newark, N. J., Jan. 6 (AP) — Mayor John V. Kenny of Jersey City told the New Jersey Law Enforcement Council today he fired his secretary when he heard reports that the secretary and waterfront racketeer Anthony (Tony Bender) Strollo planned to go into the gambling business.

The disclosure came as Kenny was being questioned about his midnight meeting with Bender in the hotel apartment of singer Phil Regan last spring.

The mayor, talking in a low voice and with apparent calm, said he dismissed his secretary, George Creegan, in 1951 after he was informed of the purported gambling establishment in Jersey City.

Reiterating much of his testimony before the New York county grand jury, Kenny said he met with Bender for about an hour and a half in an effort to glean information "that might guide us in our pier situation."

At the time of the meeting, Jersey City piers were tied up by a strike.

Kenny told the council, which is probing waterfront crime, that according to police information Bender was one of a mob trying to take over the piers in his city, second largest in the state.

The tribunal, shuddering at the thought of what it called a "fishing expedition" that could go on for a century, affirmed a decree handed down in 1951 by the Philadelphia Orphans Court. That decree awarded the money to the heirs or assignees of three late first cousins of Henrietta S. Garrett, who died 22 years ago.

State GOP Bosses Meet

The executive committee of the Republican State Committee was to meet this afternoon to discuss the GOP's legislative program and federal patronage.

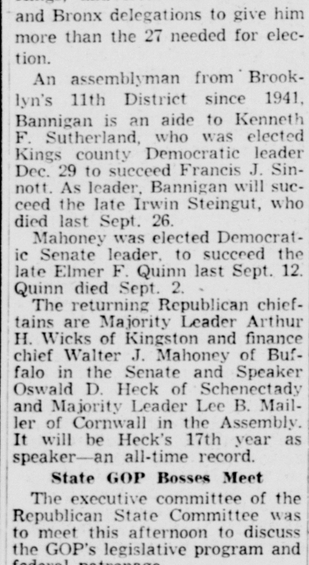

Richard H. Balch of Utica, new Democratic state chairman, will meet with his party's legislators tonight after their caucuses.

The Republicans will have added voting strength in both Houses this year as a result of the November election.

They have a 98-52 edge in the Assembly and a 37-19 margin in the Senate. Last year, the GOP outnumbered the Democrats 87-63 in the Assembly and 32-23 in the Senate. There was one Republican-American Labor party senator.

BRUTAL INJUSTICE FOR AUSTRIA

When Dr. Karl Gruber, Austrian foreign minister, stood up to address a committee of the United Nations just before the Christmas recess, he was a living reminder of one of the world's worst tragedies of inaction.

For nearly eight years, tiny Austria has suffered the occupation of foreign soldiers from Soviet Russia on the one hand and the Western allies on the other. Like Berlin, Vienna is a divided city.

At first, Russia energetically went through the motions of seeking an Austrian peace treaty. There were endless sessions with representatives of France, Britain and the United States. At one point, there appeared to be disagreement on just five out of 53 proposed articles to the treaty.

But then the talks broke down. Nothing seemed to get them effectively under way again. To break the impasse, the Western powers this spring suggested a short treaty with only eight articles. There were no takers in the Kremlin.

It is pointless to search for the explanation in the East-West differences over specific treaty articles. The real reason lies elsewhere. The Soviet Union never has seriously intended signing an Austrian pact, because it would then be compelled to remove its armies not merely from Austrian soil but from the Hungarian, Rumanian and Czechoslovak territory which serves as a corridor to Austria.

The presence of Soviet armies in this westward-reaching pincer of land on Germany's southern flank is a happy strategic circumstance for the Russians. They are not displeased, either, that the Austrian occupation gives them the excuse to send their armies across several satellite nations. Russian soldiers are an impressive deterrent to troublemaking in those restive areas.

But this callous disregard of international justice leaves Austria groaning under the financial burdens of occupation and feeling steady impairment of the freedom it regained when the Nazi yoke was cast off at the end of World War II.

Gruber, a sane and courageous statesman who often has defied the Reds while right in their midst, warns that the Austrian people may not passively accept this situation indefinitely. It is admittedly explosive.

The Western powers cannot there follow their German pattern of setting up an independent state and eventually drafting a "peace control" to free it from occupation. For the West holds but an insignificant fraction of Austrian soil.

The play is in Russian hands for the most part. All we can do is exert pressure, tell the world how brutally the Soviets have dealt with the Austrians for their own evil design, and hope that some day not too far off the Kremlin's power will no longer be great enough for it to perpetuate this outrage to justice.

The Governor of Colorado and the Governor of Utah made a bet on which state would have the highest percentage of qualified voters. Colorado turned out 83.79 per cent while Utah got out a vote of 94.29. Such high percentages indicate that both Utah and Colorado won.

LIVING SPAN

Connie Mack has been celebrating his 90th birthday, and apparently is on the way to another 90. He still exercises supervision over the Athletic rookies, though his active managership ceased in 1949. That completed 50 years of consecutive managing of the Athletics, an unequaled record. To this should be added some years in the National League in the '90's. His big league playing days began in 1886.

That carries him pretty well back to the beginnings of organized baseball. Harry Wright, captain and star of the unbeaten Cincinnati Reds of 1869, the game's most famous early team, was still playing when Mack began. The two make a living span which carries baseball from its beginnings to the present day.

Of the human being's several senses, we must give proper due to the sense of humor.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

CHARLIE CHAPLIN

It was suggested to me that I go to see Charlie Chaplin's picture, "Limelight," but I could find no particular reason for adding to the little clown's fortune, even the mite that would pay for a ticket or two. The Attorney General of the United States has made it clear that Chaplin will not be readmitted to the United States and, as it stands today, when he tries to come in, if he ever does, there will be a hearing and Chaplin will be asked many questions which maybe he can answer.

This fellow has been living in the United States 42 years. He came here a wandering actor and because of art, genius, ability, he has amassed many millions of dollars which he has managed to hold onto with a sort of rigor mortis.

Chaplin has lived here during two wars and a great depression and he has never shown a normal big-heartedness which is so characteristic of most rich men in this country in times of distress. In World War II, when actors and actresses risked their lives to entertain our troops, Charlie Chaplin sat it out.

I do not like what is in the record of his private life. I should not like any member of my family to imitate him. Therefore, I have instructed my children that I disapprove of him personally and that if they contribute to his wealth, it is against my principles.

Lest some smart-aleck British reporter say that to refuse to see Chaplin is to be anti-British, may I point to the fine Britishers on the American stage, such as Bob Hope, Charles Laughton and Sir Cedric Hardwicke, who are the salt of the earth and have won the love and respect of Americans of all kinds. Bob Hope's contributions to U.S.O. will never be forgotten.

It does not matter if a Britisher wants to be loyal to his king or queen or whether he decides that, living in this country, he wishes to enter more fully into its life by becoming a citizen. Only an individual can decide that for himself. But this Chaplin has expressed contempt for the United States. He has built no record of support for American institutions but he has joined in support of pro-Russian activities.

For instance, it is difficult to find Chaplin's name in association with any American patriotic organizations because he says that he is an internationalist, but he presided as honorary chairman of the "Artists' Front to Win the War." Chaplin came to New York from Hollywood purposely to attend this meeting at Carnegie Hall, on October 16, 1942—he who usually stayed away from meetings. He addressed the gathering as "Comrades!" He called for an immediate second front, which was Stalin's propaganda and for which we were not ready. The history of the second front propaganda is well known, I am sure, as one of the most shameless efforts of an ally to place its supporting country in an untenable position.

Chaplin praised Roosevelt not as a leader of the American people, but as "the man who released Browder," Communist leader, from prison. He praised Harry Bridges. He praised Communists as "ordinary people like ourselves, who love beauty, who love life." He added, "They say Communism may spread out all over the world. And I say—so what?"

Many men and women in the motion picture industry have recognized that America is in danger and have toed the mark of loyalty under great emotional stress. Some have appeared before Congressional committees to tell the truth as they knew it. Others have voluntarily given their records to the FBI. Several hundred have written letters to their employers explaining their errors. Recently such men as John Huston, Jose Ferrer, Elia Kazan, Garson Kanin and others have cleared themselves of charges and citations.

But not Charlie Chaplin. He continues his cynical course. He flouts the Attorney General of the United States. His press agents give him a build-up in Europe to influence public opinion in America.

Why is he to be a privileged character? Is it because he is so rich? Is it because he is a better clown than other clowns? Surely Americans can survive without seeing any more of Charlie Chaplin.

That Body of Yours

THE DRUG MENACE

When we read about bank robberies, hold-ups and other forms of crime committed by drug addicts (dope fiends) and learn of the large number of teen-agers who are using and distributing the drugs marijuana, heroin, cocaine, morphine, it greatly alarms us. There is no questioning the fact that the dope habit is increasing in teen-agers and in those who are older; it appears that the alarm of parents, police, and the public generally about the number of crimes reported, as caused by addicts, has resulted in an emotional storm, and rightly so. The Public Affairs Committee booklet, "What Can We Do About the Drug Menace," written by Dr. Albert Deutsch, noted social welfare writer, in cooperation with the Office of Public Health Education, State of New York Department of Health, is most informative.

This booklet points out that the public concern about teen-age drug addicts was so intense as to approach panic at times and occasionally led to follies and excesses. Many over-anxious parents hurried their children to be examined for possible addiction. Over-alert school teachers warned by their superiors to watch for signs of addiction, rushed pupils to clinics on no more grounds than that they appeared drowsy and listless.

The booklet further points out that while the number of cases of drug addiction has undoubtedly multiplied many times in the past few years, the actual figures have been exaggerated. This doesn't mean that there is no need for action. "The actual situation was—and remains—serious enough to require increasing vigilance and unremitting activity on a sound basis to keep the real menace in check."

"Addiction to drugs is like a communicable disease, there is a rapid spread of the narcotic contagion unless preventive and curative measures are vigorously promoted.

The booklet points out further that the unrelieved and mounting tensions of these days of mental turmoil are driving larger numbers of leading citizens to seek surcease from stress in sleeping pills (principally the barbiturates) for jangled nerves and sleeplessness. This very helpful drug used at first in normal dosage "may gradually cause full-blown addiction with disastrous consequences to ecoomic and social status and perhaps to a fatal end."

Originally intended to relieve pain and produce sleep, barbiturates through the years are being used by people to escape from life's responsibilities and burdens. This dodging of responsibilities means mental, physical and moral deterioration.

We must all keep alert about habit-forming drugs as regards ourselves, our families and our fellow men. It can be prevented—cleaning up slum districts in cities and strengthening the government control of narcotic drugs.

As with alcoholism, the patient must want to be cured of drug addiction to obtain a cure.

"Tell Him It's Just a Social Call"

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington — British sources close to Winston Churchill say that while his initial reason for coming to see Eisenhower was the dynamite-laden situation in Iran, the prime minister has become equally steamed up over reports of Eisenhower's proposed strategy in Korea.

This strategy, as relayed to London by British observers, follows:

Send two divisions of Chiang Kai-shek's troops to Korea from Formosa.

Blockade the China ports.

Turn over a certain number of American naval vessels to South Korea and the Chinese Nationalists in order to form Korean and Chinese navies, which in turn would harass the coast of China.

Lift the present ban against Chiang Kai-shek's sending military expeditions to the Chinese mainland.

Possible use of atomic weapons in Korea.

Send three U. S. divisions to Japan, presumably to prepare for a Korean offensive next spring.

British Opposition

The first five of these cut squarely across British policy in the past—not only the policy of the Labor government, but of the Conservatives. In fact, ex-Prime Minister Clement Attlee rushed across the Atlantic on a somewhat similar mission when President Truman dropped an off-the-cuff remark about using the A-bomb in Korea.

Churchill is reported by friends to be particularly upset over Ike's reported plan to use Chiang Kai-shek's troops and also the reported plan to blockade the China coast. The British have long argued that Chiang Kai-shek is completely discredited, that he can never stage a comeback, and that using his troops either in Korea or on the Chinese mainland would be like a red flag to the Chinese. It might, they argue, prolong the war indefinitely.

The British also claim that any blockade of the China coast would be tantamount to an act of war. If U. S. warships should blockade Russian-held Dairen, for instance, it might easily provoke war.

Churchill's advisers say that since he and Eisenhower are old comrades from World War II during which they enjoyed an extremely close relationship, Winston may tactfully suggest that the new President should not move merely for the sake of movement, but that his moves be carefully thought out so as not to alienate this country's allies.

Note—It's interesting that while Eisenhower was aboard the USS Helena some of his advisers hashed over the prospect that Churchill might use his old friendship with Ike to influence policy. Churchill's hurry-up trip to New York had not been announced at that time. But even then, Ikemen worried over the intimate relationship between the two, and the persuasive influence of the prime minister.

Note 2—It was British hesitancy over Roosevelt's proposed naval blockade or "quarantine" in the Far East in 1936 which finally upset his attempt to stop Japanese aggression. It was also the lobbying of British and American oil companies which helped break up the League of Nations sanctions imposed on Mussolini when he invaded Ethiopia in 1935. Each postponement of a showdown, however, built up for a greater and more tragic eventual showdown with the Axis.

Farewell Luncheon

President Truman had a farewell luncheon with Democratic senators right after New Year's Day. There were moments of sadness and also moments of mirth as he said good-bye to colleagues with whom he had served and with whom he had sometimes differed.

Sen. Ernest McFarland, retiring not only as Democratic leader but as senator from Arizona, made a speech which touched his colleagues. Referring to the fact that he had been mentioned as ambassador to Mexico, McFarland said:

"I don't think the Republicans owe me anything, and I don't expect anything. I've battled them as hard as I could and have done the best job I know how. I'm going down with the team.

"When the team comes up again, I'll be there playing right guard—if they want me to."

President Truman also spoke, and got a laugh when he kidded new Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri, whom Truman tried to have defeated in the Democratic primary there.

"I want to warn you, Stu," said the President, "that about 20 days from now I'll be one of your constituents. And you'd better watch out. I'm quite a letter-writer and I'm going to write you some letters."

The President also told about the Missouri senatorial race in which Symington defeated Republican Sen. James Kem, and the picture of a cow which Kem had circulated indicating that he understood farm problems.

"Kem doesn't know how to milk a cow," said the President. "The only thing he knows how to milk is a corporation."

Truman and Stalin

One piece of "unfinished business" Harry Truman may tackle after leaving the White House concerns Joe Stalin. While President of the United States, Truman cannot tee off on the Soviet dictator for Stalin's betrayal of the Potsdam agreement.

But as ex-President he is more free. And Harry is thinking seriously of taking off the protocol gloves and telling the world in general and Stalin in particular what he really thinks of him.

In a recent chat with his close friend, Joseph Keenan of the American Federation of Labor, Truman said he planned to "take it easy" for six months after leaving the White House, devote part of the vacation to a trip around the world; also promote the Truman Memorial Library in Independence.

After that, he told Keenan:

"I'm going to do some writing. I don't know how it will work out because writing isn't my long suit, but the American public hasn't been given a fair appraisal of my administration—there's still some confusion about certain matters, foreign and domestic—and I would like to get the record straight for future historians."

The President didn't elaborate, but in talks with advisers he has strongly indicated that, among other things, he would like to tell the whole, unvarnished story of the controversial Potsdam conference and Stalin's betrayal of trust. In addition, he would like to give his version of Washington "corruption" and how he was made a scapegoat by false friends.

Churchill's Remark About Recognition of Red China Indicates Britain Not in Line

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Jan. 6 — What Prime Minister Churchill said in his press interview dramatizes the reason why the alliance between Great Britain and the United States is weak today and why the United Nations is even weaker.

With surprising disregard for amenities of the hour—when it is presumed Moscow is anxious to learn what might be done by Eisenhower about Korea — the British prime minister spells out the limits of international action and virtually washes his hands of any responsibility for getting the American troops home from Korea any time in the next quarter of a century. He is still following the Truman-Acheson line and seems unaware that it was repuidated in the recent election.

It begins to look as if the British prime minister doesn't care how long the stalemate in Korea lasts inasmuch as Great Britain doesn't have to furnish the manpower to do that troop-consuming job. The British prime minister seems content with a "stalemate" as long as American troops continue to be drafted.

Mr. Churchill made also an inept remark to the effect that Britain would not withdraw her diplomatic recognition of Red China. This has been the viewpoint of London for a long time. It has, however, rankled in many an American breast, and to have the British Prime minister reiterate it publicly doesn't sound like the tact of a Churchill. It sounds like a warning to Eisenhower that Britain will continue to clasp the hands of the Red Chinese in friendship while American boys are being killed by the Communist Chinese arms. Even the moral force of the great government of Britain is not aligned today with America in the Korean War.

There are influential elements in Britain, moreover, which want to keep on recognizing Red China and to resume the sending of materials in trade with the Communists—materials that can help kill American boys in Korea. The British minority groups make no secret of their desire to hand over Formosa to the Red Chinese.

When the prime minister says that "it would be a great pity if the United Nations armies or the United States armies wandered about all over this vast China or made any definite extension of the war," he virtually insults the intelligence of the American leadership irrespective of which administration here he has in mind. For it was General MacArthur himself who said that anybody who advocated the sending of American troops to fight on the mainland of China should have his head examined. Nobody in any position of importance has ever advocated such a course, yet so deep is the lack of understanding between Britain and America that such a concept, fostered by the British press, is supposed to be the real American viewpoint.

When Mr. Churchill says that the war couldn't be extended, he fails to add that nobody in America wants to extend the war but that, if the Communists extend it, there will have to be counter-measures, such as an economic and naval blockade.

Mr. Churchill declares that the "center of gravity" for peace lies along the frontiers of the Iron Curtain in Europe and not in Korea. But he seems to have forgotten that, meanwhile, Asia with her vast resources of manpower and materials can some day in the hands of the Communist imperialists threaten the security of Europe.

All these contradictions between the American and British viewpoints now emphasized publicly by Mr. Churchill are supposed to come under the heading of "resisting aggression." It certainly makes psychological warfare difficult when there is no united front. It is reminiscent of the way Prime Minister Chamberlain at Munich in 1938 thought that "peace in our time" would be obtained by appeasing the aggression of Hitler in central Europe.

The divergence of view between the United States and Britain is, of course, grist to the Moscow mill. But it is more important to bring it out in the open now than to let it fester. Soviet Russia knows the cleavage exists and is counting on its continuance as a factor in the "cold war." The truth is America is bogged down in Korea because she doesn't have allies, particularly Great Britain. No move can be made to improve the American position in Korea without consulting Britain and, if there is a London veto, it will be difficult to alter the stalemate. A casualty list of 30,000 Americans a year for the next several years may be the prospect unless enought South Koreans can be trained to do the holding job.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

The army announces the award of a scroll and $200 cash to the outstanding graduate of the Infantry Officers' Candidate School at Fort Benning, Ga., in memory of the late Robert P. Patterson who was killed in a civil flying accident a year ago. Patterson was a renegade Republican who turned New Deal bureaucrat with a strong sympathy for the Communist treachery. He soldiered courageously in the first war, but nullified any honors which he earned then by his conduct in the Roosevelt-Truman betrayal.

During the second war, Patterson seized an opportunity to make propaganda for the Communists who had massacred civilians, including many Nuns and other women in Spain and, furthermore, has enticed many American young men overseas on a pretext that they were joining an army to defend freedom against fascism. Testimony already had been taken by the Committee on Un-American Activities showing that some of the American young men who tried to desert or simply withdraw from the Soviets' foreign legion in Spain, because they had learned that they were part of a Communist army, were put to death by firing squads.

Patterson had no excuse to be ignorant of this fact and only a fool would concede that he was ignorant of it. Nor could he have been unaware that the recruitment of this Soviet foreign legion in New York and the transportation of the troops to Spain from New York were organized violations of American law by the Communist political allies of the Roosevelt administration of which he was a diligent tool. Patterson was a brilliant lawyer who knew not only his law but the facts of life and politics. Nevertheless when he was asked, probably by prearrangement, to comment on the so-called Abraham Lincoln Brigade in Spain Patterson said he knew only that these troops were brave fighters against fascism.

On July 3, 1942, Patterson, as under-secretary of war, issued a gratuitous order absolutely vindicating one of the most dangerous, and, in the secret knowledge of his own department, one of the most notorious Communist spies in the entire "apparatus," and throwing protection around him. On that date a "memorandum" was circulated on War Department stationery, addressed to Milo Perkins, the screw-ball swami of the bubblehead Wallace aberration known as the board of economic warfare, on the subject of "Nathan Gregory Silvermaster."

Signed "Robert P. Patterson, Under-Secretary of War," this carte-blanche to an enemy spy said: "I have personally made an examination of the case and have discussed it with Major-General G. V. Strong, G-2. I am fully satisfied that the facts do not show anything derogatory to Mr. Silvermaster's character or loyalty to the United States and that the charges made in the report of June 3 are unfounded.

"I request that a copy of the report of June 3 in your files be returned to the War Department."

Perkins was an eccentric who held Oriental rites in the attic of his home in Houston. He eventually snapped out of it.

Silvermaster was first named in public testimony by Miss Elizabeth Bentley, the repentant spy, who said some of the microfilms of secret documents filched from government offices were made in the basement of Silvermaster's home. Whittaker Chambers also named Silvermaster as a spy and it was shown that he was a close associate of Alger Hiss and John Abt. Abt was one of those maverick Reds who burrowed into the Roosevelt administration without credentials from Felix Frankfurter or Harvard law. Patterson, of course, was a Harvard law man himself, and gave testimony for Hiss.

On Dec. 6, 1950, Alfred Kohlberg, of New York, a prime mover in the American Jewish League Against Communism, wrote Patterson politely asking him to explain the memorandum to Perkins, knowing of course that it couldn't be done. Patterson failed to answer.

On Jan. 2, a year ago, soon before his death in the crash, Patterson played the last card in his hand, or deck, this time as an attack on the leading anti-Communist of the hour who had exposed so many of his political comrades in the Red regime.

On that occasion, Patterson, as president of "Freedom House," a cell, nest or hive of political schemers, issued a proclamation

BRUTAL INJUSTICE FOR AUSTRIA

When Dr. Karl Gruber, Austrian foreign minister, stood up to address a committee of the United Nations just before the Christmas recess, he was a living reminder of one of the world's worst tragedies of inaction.

For nearly eight years, tiny Austria has suffered the occupation of foreign soldiers from Soviet Russia on the one hand and the Western allies on the other. Like Berlin, Vienna is a divided city.

At first, Russia energetically went through the motions of seeking an Austrian peace treaty. There were endless sessions with representatives of France, Britain and the United States. At one point, there appeared to be disagreement on just five out of 53 proposed articles to the treaty.

But then the talks broke down. Nothing seemed to get them effectively under way again. To break the impasse, the Western powers this spring suggested a short treaty with only eight articles. There were no takers in the Kremlin.

It is pointless to search for the explanation in the East-West differences over specific treaty articles. The real reason lies elsewhere. The Soviet Union never has seriously intended signing an Austrian pact, because it would then be compelled to remove its armies not merely from Austrian soil but from the Hungarian, Rumanian and Czechoslovak territory which serves as a corridor to Austria.

The presence of Soviet armies in this westward-reaching pincer of land on Germany's southern flank is a happy strategic circumstance for the Russians. They are not displeased, either, that the Austrian occupation gives them the excuse to send their armies across several satellite nations. Russian soldiers are an impressive deterrent to troublemaking in those restive areas.

But this callous disregard of international justice leaves Austria groaning under the financial burdens of occupation and feeling steady impairment of the freedom it regained when the Nazi yoke was cast off at the end of World War II.

Gruber, a sane and courageous statesman who often has defied the Reds while right in their midst, warns that the Austrian people may not passively accept this situation indefinitely. It is admittedly explosive.

The Western powers cannot there follow their German pattern of setting up an independent state and eventually drafting a "peace control" to free it from occupation. For the West holds but an insignificant fraction of Austrian soil.

The play is in Russian hands for the most part. All we can do is exert pressure, tell the world how brutally the Soviets have dealt with the Austrians for their own evil design, and hope that some day not too far off the Kremlin's power will no longer be great enough for it to perpetuate this outrage to justice.

The Governor of Colorado and the Governor of Utah made a bet on which state would have the highest percentage of qualified voters. Colorado turned out 83.79 per cent while Utah got out a vote of 94.29. Such high percentages indicate that both Utah and Colorado won.

LIVING SPAN

Connie Mack has been celebrating his 90th birthday, and apparently is on the way to another 90. He still exercises supervision over the Athletic rookies, though his active managership ceased in 1949. That completed 50 years of consecutive managing of the Athletics, an unequaled record. To this should be added some years in the National League in the '90's. His big league playing days began in 1886.

That carries him pretty well back to the beginnings of organized baseball. Harry Wright, captain and star of the unbeaten Cincinnati Reds of 1869, the game's most famous early team, was still playing when Mack began. The two make a living span which carries baseball from its beginnings to the present day.

Of the human being's several senses, we must give proper due to the sense of humor.

'These Days'

CHARLIE CHAPLIN

It was suggested to me that I go to see Charlie Chaplin's picture, "Limelight," but I could find no particular reason for adding to the little clown's fortune, even the mite that would pay for a ticket or two. The Attorney General of the United States has made it clear that Chaplin will not be readmitted to the United States and, as it stands today, when he tries to come in, if he ever does, there will be a hearing and Chaplin will be asked many questions which maybe he can answer.

This fellow has been living in the United States 42 years. He came here a wandering actor and because of art, genius, ability, he has amassed many millions of dollars which he has managed to hold onto with a sort of rigor mortis.

Chaplin has lived here during two wars and a great depression and he has never shown a normal big-heartedness which is so characteristic of most rich men in this country in times of distress. In World War II, when actors and actresses risked their lives to entertain our troops, Charlie Chaplin sat it out.

I do not like what is in the record of his private life. I should not like any member of my family to imitate him. Therefore, I have instructed my children that I disapprove of him personally and that if they contribute to his wealth, it is against my principles.

Lest some smart-aleck British reporter say that to refuse to see Chaplin is to be anti-British, may I point to the fine Britishers on the American stage, such as Bob Hope, Charles Laughton and Sir Cedric Hardwicke, who are the salt of the earth and have won the love and respect of Americans of all kinds. Bob Hope's contributions to U.S.O. will never be forgotten.

It does not matter if a Britisher wants to be loyal to his king or queen or whether he decides that, living in this country, he wishes to enter more fully into its life by becoming a citizen. Only an individual can decide that for himself. But this Chaplin has expressed contempt for the United States. He has built no record of support for American institutions but he has joined in support of pro-Russian activities.

For instance, it is difficult to find Chaplin's name in association with any American patriotic organizations because he says that he is an internationalist, but he presided as honorary chairman of the "Artists' Front to Win the War." Chaplin came to New York from Hollywood purposely to attend this meeting at Carnegie Hall, on October 16, 1942—he who usually stayed away from meetings. He addressed the gathering as "Comrades!" He called for an immediate second front, which was Stalin's propaganda and for which we were not ready. The history of the second front propaganda is well known, I am sure, as one of the most shameless efforts of an ally to place its supporting country in an untenable position.

Chaplin praised Roosevelt not as a leader of the American people, but as "the man who released Browder," Communist leader, from prison. He praised Harry Bridges. He praised Communists as "ordinary people like ourselves, who love beauty, who love life." He added, "They say Communism may spread out all over the world. And I say—so what?"

Many men and women in the motion picture industry have recognized that America is in danger and have toed the mark of loyalty under great emotional stress. Some have appeared before Congressional committees to tell the truth as they knew it. Others have voluntarily given their records to the FBI. Several hundred have written letters to their employers explaining their errors. Recently such men as John Huston, Jose Ferrer, Elia Kazan, Garson Kanin and others have cleared themselves of charges and citations.

But not Charlie Chaplin. He continues his cynical course. He flouts the Attorney General of the United States. His press agents give him a build-up in Europe to influence public opinion in America.

Why is he to be a privileged character? Is it because he is so rich? Is it because he is a better clown than other clowns? Surely Americans can survive without seeing any more of Charlie Chaplin.

THE DRUG MENACE

When we read about bank robberies, hold-ups and other forms of crime committed by drug addicts (dope fiends) and learn of the large number of teen-agers who are using and distributing the drugs marijuana, heroin, cocaine, morphine, it greatly alarms us. There is no questioning the fact that the dope habit is increasing in teen-agers and in those who are older; it appears that the alarm of parents, police, and the public generally about the number of crimes reported, as caused by addicts, has resulted in an emotional storm, and rightly so. The Public Affairs Committee booklet, "What Can We Do About the Drug Menace," written by Dr. Albert Deutsch, noted social welfare writer, in cooperation with the Office of Public Health Education, State of New York Department of Health, is most informative.

This booklet points out that the public concern about teen-age drug addicts was so intense as to approach panic at times and occasionally led to follies and excesses. Many over-anxious parents hurried their children to be examined for possible addiction. Over-alert school teachers warned by their superiors to watch for signs of addiction, rushed pupils to clinics on no more grounds than that they appeared drowsy and listless.

The booklet further points out that while the number of cases of drug addiction has undoubtedly multiplied many times in the past few years, the actual figures have been exaggerated. This doesn't mean that there is no need for action. "The actual situation was—and remains—serious enough to require increasing vigilance and unremitting activity on a sound basis to keep the real menace in check."

"Addiction to drugs is like a communicable disease, there is a rapid spread of the narcotic contagion unless preventive and curative measures are vigorously promoted.

The booklet points out further that the unrelieved and mounting tensions of these days of mental turmoil are driving larger numbers of leading citizens to seek surcease from stress in sleeping pills (principally the barbiturates) for jangled nerves and sleeplessness. This very helpful drug used at first in normal dosage "may gradually cause full-blown addiction with disastrous consequences to ecoomic and social status and perhaps to a fatal end."

Originally intended to relieve pain and produce sleep, barbiturates through the years are being used by people to escape from life's responsibilities and burdens. This dodging of responsibilities means mental, physical and moral deterioration.

We must all keep alert about habit-forming drugs as regards ourselves, our families and our fellow men. It can be prevented—cleaning up slum districts in cities and strengthening the government control of narcotic drugs.

As with alcoholism, the patient must want to be cured of drug addiction to obtain a cure.

"Tell Him It's Just a Social Call"

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington — British sources close to Winston Churchill say that while his initial reason for coming to see Eisenhower was the dynamite-laden situation in Iran, the prime minister has become equally steamed up over reports of Eisenhower's proposed strategy in Korea.

This strategy, as relayed to London by British observers, follows:

Send two divisions of Chiang Kai-shek's troops to Korea from Formosa.

Blockade the China ports.

Turn over a certain number of American naval vessels to South Korea and the Chinese Nationalists in order to form Korean and Chinese navies, which in turn would harass the coast of China.

Lift the present ban against Chiang Kai-shek's sending military expeditions to the Chinese mainland.

Possible use of atomic weapons in Korea.

Send three U. S. divisions to Japan, presumably to prepare for a Korean offensive next spring.

British Opposition

The first five of these cut squarely across British policy in the past—not only the policy of the Labor government, but of the Conservatives. In fact, ex-Prime Minister Clement Attlee rushed across the Atlantic on a somewhat similar mission when President Truman dropped an off-the-cuff remark about using the A-bomb in Korea.

Churchill is reported by friends to be particularly upset over Ike's reported plan to use Chiang Kai-shek's troops and also the reported plan to blockade the China coast. The British have long argued that Chiang Kai-shek is completely discredited, that he can never stage a comeback, and that using his troops either in Korea or on the Chinese mainland would be like a red flag to the Chinese. It might, they argue, prolong the war indefinitely.

The British also claim that any blockade of the China coast would be tantamount to an act of war. If U. S. warships should blockade Russian-held Dairen, for instance, it might easily provoke war.

Churchill's advisers say that since he and Eisenhower are old comrades from World War II during which they enjoyed an extremely close relationship, Winston may tactfully suggest that the new President should not move merely for the sake of movement, but that his moves be carefully thought out so as not to alienate this country's allies.

Note—It's interesting that while Eisenhower was aboard the USS Helena some of his advisers hashed over the prospect that Churchill might use his old friendship with Ike to influence policy. Churchill's hurry-up trip to New York had not been announced at that time. But even then, Ikemen worried over the intimate relationship between the two, and the persuasive influence of the prime minister.

Note 2—It was British hesitancy over Roosevelt's proposed naval blockade or "quarantine" in the Far East in 1936 which finally upset his attempt to stop Japanese aggression. It was also the lobbying of British and American oil companies which helped break up the League of Nations sanctions imposed on Mussolini when he invaded Ethiopia in 1935. Each postponement of a showdown, however, built up for a greater and more tragic eventual showdown with the Axis.

Farewell Luncheon

President Truman had a farewell luncheon with Democratic senators right after New Year's Day. There were moments of sadness and also moments of mirth as he said good-bye to colleagues with whom he had served and with whom he had sometimes differed.

Sen. Ernest McFarland, retiring not only as Democratic leader but as senator from Arizona, made a speech which touched his colleagues. Referring to the fact that he had been mentioned as ambassador to Mexico, McFarland said:

"I don't think the Republicans owe me anything, and I don't expect anything. I've battled them as hard as I could and have done the best job I know how. I'm going down with the team.

"When the team comes up again, I'll be there playing right guard—if they want me to."

President Truman also spoke, and got a laugh when he kidded new Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri, whom Truman tried to have defeated in the Democratic primary there.

"I want to warn you, Stu," said the President, "that about 20 days from now I'll be one of your constituents. And you'd better watch out. I'm quite a letter-writer and I'm going to write you some letters."

The President also told about the Missouri senatorial race in which Symington defeated Republican Sen. James Kem, and the picture of a cow which Kem had circulated indicating that he understood farm problems.

"Kem doesn't know how to milk a cow," said the President. "The only thing he knows how to milk is a corporation."

Truman and Stalin

One piece of "unfinished business" Harry Truman may tackle after leaving the White House concerns Joe Stalin. While President of the United States, Truman cannot tee off on the Soviet dictator for Stalin's betrayal of the Potsdam agreement.

But as ex-President he is more free. And Harry is thinking seriously of taking off the protocol gloves and telling the world in general and Stalin in particular what he really thinks of him.

In a recent chat with his close friend, Joseph Keenan of the American Federation of Labor, Truman said he planned to "take it easy" for six months after leaving the White House, devote part of the vacation to a trip around the world; also promote the Truman Memorial Library in Independence.

After that, he told Keenan:

"I'm going to do some writing. I don't know how it will work out because writing isn't my long suit, but the American public hasn't been given a fair appraisal of my administration—there's still some confusion about certain matters, foreign and domestic—and I would like to get the record straight for future historians."

The President didn't elaborate, but in talks with advisers he has strongly indicated that, among other things, he would like to tell the whole, unvarnished story of the controversial Potsdam conference and Stalin's betrayal of trust. In addition, he would like to give his version of Washington "corruption" and how he was made a scapegoat by false friends.

Churchill's Remark About Recognition of Red China Indicates Britain Not in Line

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Jan. 6 — What Prime Minister Churchill said in his press interview dramatizes the reason why the alliance between Great Britain and the United States is weak today and why the United Nations is even weaker.

With surprising disregard for amenities of the hour—when it is presumed Moscow is anxious to learn what might be done by Eisenhower about Korea — the British prime minister spells out the limits of international action and virtually washes his hands of any responsibility for getting the American troops home from Korea any time in the next quarter of a century. He is still following the Truman-Acheson line and seems unaware that it was repuidated in the recent election.

It begins to look as if the British prime minister doesn't care how long the stalemate in Korea lasts inasmuch as Great Britain doesn't have to furnish the manpower to do that troop-consuming job. The British prime minister seems content with a "stalemate" as long as American troops continue to be drafted.

Mr. Churchill made also an inept remark to the effect that Britain would not withdraw her diplomatic recognition of Red China. This has been the viewpoint of London for a long time. It has, however, rankled in many an American breast, and to have the British Prime minister reiterate it publicly doesn't sound like the tact of a Churchill. It sounds like a warning to Eisenhower that Britain will continue to clasp the hands of the Red Chinese in friendship while American boys are being killed by the Communist Chinese arms. Even the moral force of the great government of Britain is not aligned today with America in the Korean War.

There are influential elements in Britain, moreover, which want to keep on recognizing Red China and to resume the sending of materials in trade with the Communists—materials that can help kill American boys in Korea. The British minority groups make no secret of their desire to hand over Formosa to the Red Chinese.

When the prime minister says that "it would be a great pity if the United Nations armies or the United States armies wandered about all over this vast China or made any definite extension of the war," he virtually insults the intelligence of the American leadership irrespective of which administration here he has in mind. For it was General MacArthur himself who said that anybody who advocated the sending of American troops to fight on the mainland of China should have his head examined. Nobody in any position of importance has ever advocated such a course, yet so deep is the lack of understanding between Britain and America that such a concept, fostered by the British press, is supposed to be the real American viewpoint.

When Mr. Churchill says that the war couldn't be extended, he fails to add that nobody in America wants to extend the war but that, if the Communists extend it, there will have to be counter-measures, such as an economic and naval blockade.

Mr. Churchill declares that the "center of gravity" for peace lies along the frontiers of the Iron Curtain in Europe and not in Korea. But he seems to have forgotten that, meanwhile, Asia with her vast resources of manpower and materials can some day in the hands of the Communist imperialists threaten the security of Europe.

All these contradictions between the American and British viewpoints now emphasized publicly by Mr. Churchill are supposed to come under the heading of "resisting aggression." It certainly makes psychological warfare difficult when there is no united front. It is reminiscent of the way Prime Minister Chamberlain at Munich in 1938 thought that "peace in our time" would be obtained by appeasing the aggression of Hitler in central Europe.

The divergence of view between the United States and Britain is, of course, grist to the Moscow mill. But it is more important to bring it out in the open now than to let it fester. Soviet Russia knows the cleavage exists and is counting on its continuance as a factor in the "cold war." The truth is America is bogged down in Korea because she doesn't have allies, particularly Great Britain. No move can be made to improve the American position in Korea without consulting Britain and, if there is a London veto, it will be difficult to alter the stalemate. A casualty list of 30,000 Americans a year for the next several years may be the prospect unless enought South Koreans can be trained to do the holding job.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

The army announces the award of a scroll and $200 cash to the outstanding graduate of the Infantry Officers' Candidate School at Fort Benning, Ga., in memory of the late Robert P. Patterson who was killed in a civil flying accident a year ago. Patterson was a renegade Republican who turned New Deal bureaucrat with a strong sympathy for the Communist treachery. He soldiered courageously in the first war, but nullified any honors which he earned then by his conduct in the Roosevelt-Truman betrayal.

During the second war, Patterson seized an opportunity to make propaganda for the Communists who had massacred civilians, including many Nuns and other women in Spain and, furthermore, has enticed many American young men overseas on a pretext that they were joining an army to defend freedom against fascism. Testimony already had been taken by the Committee on Un-American Activities showing that some of the American young men who tried to desert or simply withdraw from the Soviets' foreign legion in Spain, because they had learned that they were part of a Communist army, were put to death by firing squads.

Patterson had no excuse to be ignorant of this fact and only a fool would concede that he was ignorant of it. Nor could he have been unaware that the recruitment of this Soviet foreign legion in New York and the transportation of the troops to Spain from New York were organized violations of American law by the Communist political allies of the Roosevelt administration of which he was a diligent tool. Patterson was a brilliant lawyer who knew not only his law but the facts of life and politics. Nevertheless when he was asked, probably by prearrangement, to comment on the so-called Abraham Lincoln Brigade in Spain Patterson said he knew only that these troops were brave fighters against fascism.

On July 3, 1942, Patterson, as under-secretary of war, issued a gratuitous order absolutely vindicating one of the most dangerous, and, in the secret knowledge of his own department, one of the most notorious Communist spies in the entire "apparatus," and throwing protection around him. On that date a "memorandum" was circulated on War Department stationery, addressed to Milo Perkins, the screw-ball swami of the bubblehead Wallace aberration known as the board of economic warfare, on the subject of "Nathan Gregory Silvermaster."

Signed "Robert P. Patterson, Under-Secretary of War," this carte-blanche to an enemy spy said: "I have personally made an examination of the case and have discussed it with Major-General G. V. Strong, G-2. I am fully satisfied that the facts do not show anything derogatory to Mr. Silvermaster's character or loyalty to the United States and that the charges made in the report of June 3 are unfounded.

"I request that a copy of the report of June 3 in your files be returned to the War Department."

Perkins was an eccentric who held Oriental rites in the attic of his home in Houston. He eventually snapped out of it.

Silvermaster was first named in public testimony by Miss Elizabeth Bentley, the repentant spy, who said some of the microfilms of secret documents filched from government offices were made in the basement of Silvermaster's home. Whittaker Chambers also named Silvermaster as a spy and it was shown that he was a close associate of Alger Hiss and John Abt. Abt was one of those maverick Reds who burrowed into the Roosevelt administration without credentials from Felix Frankfurter or Harvard law. Patterson, of course, was a Harvard law man himself, and gave testimony for Hiss.

On Dec. 6, 1950, Alfred Kohlberg, of New York, a prime mover in the American Jewish League Against Communism, wrote Patterson politely asking him to explain the memorandum to Perkins, knowing of course that it couldn't be done. Patterson failed to answer.

On Jan. 2, a year ago, soon before his death in the crash, Patterson played the last card in his hand, or deck, this time as an attack on the leading anti-Communist of the hour who had exposed so many of his political comrades in the Red regime.

On that occasion, Patterson, as president of "Freedom House," a cell, nest or hive of political schemers, issued a proclamation

Kirk Is Elected Columbia's Head To Succeed Ike

New York, Jan. 6 (AP)—Dr. Grayson Kirk, who has been acting head of Columbia University since Dec. 19, 1950, has been named president of the university to succeed Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The 49-year-old Kirk will assume the university presidency Jan. 20, the day Eisenhower will be inaugurated President of the United States. Eisenhower's resignation, handed in last Nov. 15, is effective Jan. 19.

Kirk was named by the university's trustees yesterday after they accepted Eisenhower's resignation and made the general university president emeritus and a trustee emeritus.

On Faculty Since '50

On the Columbia faculty since 1940, Kirk has been acting president since Eisenhower took a leave of absence to become supreme commander of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Kirk held the university presidency while acting as president.

Eisenhower's salary as Columbia president never was disclosed. There were reports yesterday that Kirk may get about $30,000 annually.

In addition, he will move into the Morningside Drive home, provided by the university, now occupied by Eisenhower.

Kirk, a native of Jeffersonville, Ohio, made a rapid rise at Columbia to become its 14th president, after arriving as an associate professor of government.

The trustees, in their announcement, paid tribute to the "great services and lasting contribution made to Columbia by General Eisenhower."

118,000 Will Pay Higher State Tax

Albany, Jan. 6 (AP)—About 118,000 New Yorkers, whose state income tax exemptions were cut this year by $400 each, will be paying a higher state income tax April 15.

They are taxpayers who do not support a spouse, but who qualify as the "head of a family" for income tax purposes.

The law allows a married couple, or a "head of a family" who supports one or more dependents, to claim a $2,500 basic tax exemption. The exemption for single persons is $1,000.

A 1951 revision also permitted a "head of a family" to claim an addition credit of $400 for each dependent. A married man however, could not claim the $400 credit for his wife, but he could for additional dependents.

Claimed $2,900

This allowed, for example, the "head of a family" caring for his mother to claim a total exemption of $2,900, while his married brother, with no children, could claim but $2,500.

But the 1952 Legislature deleted this extra $400 for the first dependent of a "head of a family," and reduced him to the same exemption status as a married man.

Another change new this year raises the minimum installment payments from $5 to $10 each. The $10 minimum does not apply to the fourth, or final payment.

Because it contained two of each item, the handy Navy "ditty bag" originally was called a "ditto bag."

Kirk Is Elected Columbia's Head To Succeed Ike

New York, Jan. 6 (AP)—Dr. Grayson Kirk, who has been acting head of Columbia University since Dec. 19, 1950, has been named president of the university to succeed Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The 49-year-old Kirk will assume the university presidency Jan. 20, the day Eisenhower will be inaugurated President of the United States. Eisenhower's resignation, handed in last Nov. 15, is effective Jan. 19.

Kirk was named by the university's trustees yesterday after they accepted Eisenhower's resignation and made the general university president emeritus and a trustee emeritus.

On Faculty Since '50

On the Columbia faculty since 1940, Kirk has been acting president since Eisenhower took a leave of absence to become supreme commander of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Kirk held the university presidency while acting as president.

Eisenhower's salary as Columbia president never was disclosed. There were reports yesterday that Kirk may get about $30,000 annually.

In addition, he will move into the Morningside Drive home, provided by the university, now occupied by Eisenhower.

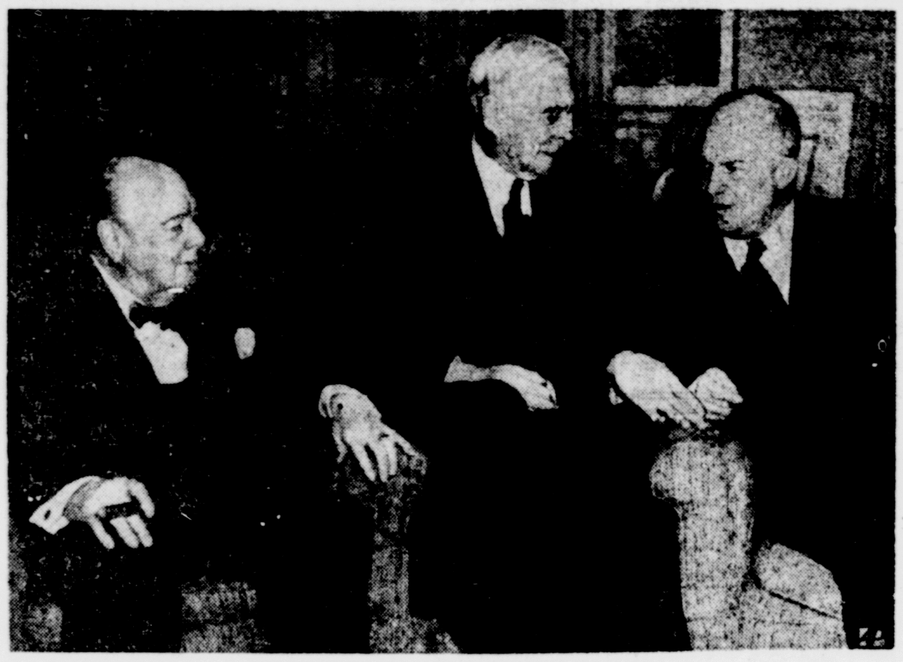

Kirk, a native of Jeffersonville, Ohio, made a rapid rise at Columbia to become its 14th president, after arriving as an associate professor of government.

The trustees, in their announcement, paid tribute to the "great services and lasting contribution made to Columbia by General Eisenhower."

Old Friends Meet in New York

British Prime Minister Winston Churchill and President-elect Eisenhower flank their mutual friend and host, Bernard Baruch, during an informal meeting at the Baruch residence in New York. The two statesmen, old wartime friends, are expected to cover a wide range of world topics during a planned dinner at the Baruch home and in subsequent meetings. Prime Minister Churchill arrived in the U. S. earlier in the day and will be Baruch's house guest while in New York.

MorgenthauLeavesHospital

118,000 Will Pay Higher State Tax

Albany, Jan. 6 (AP)—About 118,000 New Yorkers, whose state income tax exemptions were cut this year by $400 each, will be paying a higher state income tax April 15.

They are taxpayers who do not support a spouse, but who qualify as the "head of a family" for income tax purposes.

The law allows a married couple, or a "head of a family" who supports one or more dependents, to claim a $2,500 basic tax exemption. The exemption for single persons is $1,000.

A 1951 revision also permitted a "head of a family" to claim an addition credit of $400 for each dependent. A married man however, could not claim the $400 credit for his wife, but he could for additional dependents.

Claimed $2,900

This allowed, for example, the "head of a family" caring for his mother to claim a total exemption of $2,900, while his married brother, with no children, could claim but $2,500.

But the 1952 Legislature deleted this extra $400 for the first dependent of a "head of a family," and reduced him to the same exemption status as a married man.

Another change new this year raises the minimum installment payments from $5 to $10 each. The $10 minimum does not apply to the fourth, or final payment.

Because it contained two of each item, the handy Navy "ditty bag" originally was called a "ditto bag."

A LIGHT SHINES

By Harry C. France

A widow trying to live on 2½ per cent interest; a pensioner wondering when prices will decline; a worker forced to contribute to his social security and worrying at the same time about the dollar's future purchasing power; a small businessman caught in the vortex of high taxes, costs and prices—these people and millions of others should take some comfort from this pronouncement:

"The full resources of our new administration will be thrown into the battle against inflation. Only if the steady whittling away of the value of the dollar is stopped can our farmers, our factory and white collar workers, our aged, find any security in their savings, social benefits or pensions."

Who said that? Gen. Eisenhower.

It is the most forthright economic statement I have read by a world statesman in 25 years. It is a bright light on a dark horizon. If there ever was a time when we need in the White House a man of great capacity, courage and character, now is that time.

The General goes to Korea. He takes his defense director, Charles E. Wilson—an all-time industrial genius—with him. That is significant. Our defense expenditures are colossal. Wilson is perfectly at home among such things. He has been directing the biggest private corporation in the world for over a decade and he knows how to set up and operate a gigantic economic machine.

On the way back from Korea, Gen. Eisenhower and Wilson met on Wake Island with the Budget Director, Joseph M. Dodge, and the incoming Secretary of the Treasury, George M. Humphrey. Read between the lines of the quotation from the General's recent speech and you will see that the economic patterns for 1953-1956 are already being established.

I predict that under Gen. Eisenhower, with the very able assistance of Dodge, Wilson and Humphrey, new economic foundations will be built under the United States. As I said in a recent article, our people should be thankful that Gen. Eisenhower can persuade three such capable leaders to become a vital part of his team.

We shall find out, if I am not mistaken, that inflation is not a necessary ingredient in promoting prosperity. Too much of our economic well-being in recent years has been frothy and based on inflation. Prices have been chasing wages and wages, prices. The inflation spiral has given great impetus to our prosperity. It has not been healthy.

In a quarter of a century, economic America has been blown up like a balloon. In 1932, national income was 40 billions of dollars. It was abnormally low then. In 20 years, it has gone up 700 per cent. It is abnormally high now because our life is infested with inflation.

And one of the most cruel manifestations of inflation is cheap money.

But back to our widow. Twenty years ago, she received $450 a year in New York City on her $10,000 savings bank deposits. Today she gets $250. In the meantime, her living costs have more than doubled. If interest had kept pace with living costs, today she should be getting $900 at least on her $10,000 deposits.

Growing debt is the parent of cheap money. Write that down as one of the tragic economic ironies of the day. The United States has been flooded with debt since 1932. Uncle Sam's obligations have increased from $20 billion to over $265 billion in two decades.

Debts create money and dollars become plentiful and cheap. As a result, as prices advance, interest rates decline. Widows, pensioners, educational, religious, philanthropic institutions, hospitals and churches suffer terribly as money becomes cheap and prices soar.

Mark my word: on Jan. 20, Gen. Eisenhower and Messrs. Dodge, Wilson and Humphrey (the three fiscal leaders in the new administration) will start a new deal.

In the language of our President-elect:

Jones Disagrees With Testimony

New York, Jan. 6 (AP)—A federal grand juror describes as greatly exaggerated allegations that the U. S. State and Justice Departments tried to block the panel's report on alleged American Reds in the United Nations headquarters.

H. Lloyd Jones, chairman of the grand jury committee which drew up the report, indicated disagreement yesterday with testimony given by four fellow grand jurors last week in Washington before a House Judiciary Subcommittee.

Attempt Investigated

The congressmen are investigating an alleged attempt by the government agencies to suppress the grand jury report, which was issued last Dec. 2. The report said the State Department gave "disloyal officials a clean bill of health" to work for the UN and that the department "stymied" the grand jury inquiry.

Jones, a New York insurance executive, said he was prepared to go before the House group to answer questions and "give my versions of the proceedings."

His remarks were in a signed statement made public by U. S. Attorney Myles J. Lane. The statement was addressed to the House group.

"I think undue emphasis has been placed on any supposed interference by the Justice and State Departments," Jones said. He added that he regretted "that so far the constructive features of the presentment (report) have been ignored."

Why We Say--

This name was given to the entrance to the City of San Francisco by the Spaniards because they regarded it as the gateway to the Land of Gold. Two centuries later the belief of the Spaniards was confirmed by the great gold rush.

Will Express Views

Buffalo, Jan. 6 (AP)—A battery of educators, headed by at least seven college presidents, were expected to give their views today at the first of three public hearings on a plan for a statewide educational television network. The temporary state commission on the use of television for educational purposes opened its hearing amid reports from Albany that Republican leaders are cool to the program. Dr. Lewis A. Wilson, state education commissioner, came here to represent John Platt Myers, chancellor of the University of the State of New York, on the commission.

As Pegler Sees It

demanding the repeal of the ancient, essential privilege of parliamentary immunity. The purpose was to make it impossible for Senator Joe McCarthy and other fighters against treason and enemy espionage to continue their exposes of his treacherous friends.

The proclamation was put out by a synthetic body called "the Public Affairs Committee" of Freedom House, in other words a subdivision of a false front, of which Patterson was chairman. It said ""McCarthyism" was the "problem child of our democracy in this time of crisis" and identified "McCarthyism" as "irresponsible statements."

Patterson said "McCarthyism" had done great harm to the nation by demoralizing government employes, driving competent men from the government service and intimidating persons of "unorthodox" or pro-Communist views.

This was consistent with the Communist Party line.

As a lawyer, Patterson knew he could not intelligently attack Congressional immunity per se so he dirtied up his text with typical Communist propaganda, setting up a proposition that "good faith" and "willful libel" were set apart by recognizable, legal differences. This of course, was sheer casuistry as Patterson well knew when he put the words together.

The New York Times, reporting the award to the Benning infantry officer yet to be selected, said the award was established by "a group of friends of the former secretary of war and jurist, headed by Maj. Gen. Julius Ochs Adler, vice president and general manager of the New York Times."

The Times has opposed the enemies of Communism and of the New Deal theology with a zeal as great as McCarthy's to the contrary and with a contempt for truth as deep as that which it imputes to Joe. It has recently been advocating a departure which is calls "interpretive" reporting of events.

There is nothing in the regulations to compel any patriotic, self-respecting officer to submit to this affront to his honor. It is inconceivable that the army would have the gall to trouble any decent American who should publicly tell Maj.-Gen. Julius Ochs Adler to keep his lousy scroll and his lousy $200.

On the contrary, it is conceivable that a non-political Department of Defense should bring charges against Adler for trying to make ulterior political propaganda at the expense of an officer much better than himself.

Why You Should GIVE BLOOD NOW

Aside from the situation in Korea, this country faces additional blood needs. We have thousands of wounded in our military hospitals still fighting for a chance to live. Other thousands in our civilian hospitals require blood. And in addition to these needs, there must be blood plasma always available as an insurance against a national emergency.

So give blood—now! Remember, there is no substitute for this priceless, painless gift.

"Keep the Service Goin'"

"I'm Harold Van Keuren, Central Hudson Lineman, first class. I'm just one of a lot of guys — just like me — who keep the service goin'. By that I mean climb the poles, string the wires and make repairs . . . make sure you get plenty of electricity when you want it and where you want it.

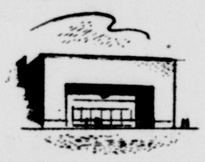

Sometimes we work 'round-the-clock — in snow storms, heavy winds and rain — the kind of weather that's tough on power lines and poles. And it's all in a day's work with us . . . because folks expect good service. What's more, they seem to be wanting more and more electricity. That I know.

I hear a lot of talk about new construction jobs and new power plants the Company's building. I hear it's going to cost around thirty million dollars for 1952 through 1954. Well, I've never seen that kind of money, but it makes sense to me that if people want more electricity the Company is sure seeing that they get it.

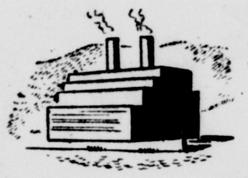

I've been with Central Hudson going on twenty-five years. That's almost boy and man! It's been a good job and I've certainly seen the Company grow. When I started working there wasn't any Danskammer Point Steam Station or Neversink hydro plant up in the mountains. It's hard to keep up with all the new things going on. But the way I see it, the new jobs, the millions being spent, are all part of keepin' the service goin'."

Yes . . . here at Central Hudson a vast construction program is being carried on to stay ahead of your ever-increasing demands for service — and to insure you that gas and electricity will always remain your biggest household bargain.

A new two-story brick office building is under construction at 47 Cannon Street, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. to meet customer requirements for modern commercial office service and to meet Central Hudson's expanding methods of operations. When completed in April the new district office will serve customers from a central location, but will be away from the heavy traffic of the main thoroughfare.

Construction is under way on a second 60,000 kilowatt generating unit at Danskammer Point Steam Station, six miles north of Newburgh on the west bank of the Hudson River . . . to meet the increasing demand for electric power in the Mid-Hudson Valley. Upon completion of this unit in mid-1954 the total investment at the site will be approximately $25,000,000.

Central Hudson's new $2,700,000 Neversink Hydro-electric Plant near Grahamsville, N. Y. is scheduled to be in operation this spring. The 25,000 kilowatt plant will utilize New York City drinking water to generate electricity for distribution to homes, farms and industries throughout the Mid-Hudson Valley.

Construction of facilities at Central Hudson's new electric distribution division headquarters and construction material storage depot at Elting's Corners, near Ohioville, is in the final stages. Because of its location in the middle of Central Hudson's franchise area, it will eventually become the Company's main source of heavy material supply.

Debts create money and dollars become plentiful and cheap. As a result, as prices advance, interest rates decline. Widows, pensioners, educational, religious, philanthropic institutions, hospitals and churches suffer terribly as money becomes cheap and prices soar.

Mark my word: on Jan. 20 Gen. Eisenhower and Messrs. Dodge, Wilson and Humphrey (the three fiscal leaders in the new administration) will start a new deal.

Jones Disagrees With Testimony

New York, Jan. 6 (AP)—A federal grand juror describes as greatly exaggerated allegations that the U. S. State and Justice Departments tried to block the panel's report on alleged American Reds in the United Nations headquarters.

H. Lloyd Jones, chairman of the grand jury committee which drew up the report, indicated disagreement yesterday with testimony given by four fellow grand jurors last week in Washington before a House Judiciary Subcommittee.

Attempt investigated

The congressmen are investigating an alleged attempt by the government agencies to suppress the grand jury report, which was issued last Dec. 2. The report said the State Department gave "disloyal officials a clean bill of health" to work for the UN and that the department "stymied" the grand jury inquiry.

Jones, a New York insurance executive, said he was prepared to go before the House group to answer questions and "give my versions of the proceedings."

His remarks were in a signed statement made public by U. S. Attorney Myles J. Lane. The statement was addressed to the House group.

"I think undue emphasis has been placed on any supposed interference by the Justice and State Departments," Jones said. He added that he regretted "that so far the constructive features of the presentment (report) have been ignored."

Will Express Views

Buffalo, Jan. 6 (AP)—A battery of educators, headed by at least seven college presidents, were expected to give their views today at the first of three public hearings on a plan for a statewide educational television network. The temporary state commission on the use of television for educational purposes opened its hearing amid reports from Albany that Republican leaders are cool to the program. Dr. Lewis A. Wilson, state education commissioner, came here to represent John Platt Myers, chancellor of the University of the State of New York, on the commission.

As Pegler Sees It

demanding the repeal of the ancient, essential privilege of parliamentary immunity. The purpose was to make it impossible for Senator Joe McCarthy and other fighters against treason and enemy espionage to continue their exposes of his treacherous friends.

The proclamation was put out by a synthetic body called "the Public Affairs Committee" of Freedom House, in other words a subdivision of a false front, of which Patterson was chairman. It said ""McCarthyism" was the "problem child of our democracy in this time of crisis" and identified "McCarthyism" as "irresponsible statements."

Patterson said "McCarthyism" had done great harm to the nation by demoralizing government employes, driving competent men from the government service and intimidating persons of "unorthodox" or pro-Communist views.

This was consistent with the Communist Party line.

As a lawyer, Patterson knew he could not intelligently attack Congressional immunity per se so he dirtied up his text with typical Communist propaganda, setting up a proposition that "good faith" and "willful libel" were set apart by recognizable, legal differences. This of course, was sheer casuistry as Patterson well knew when he put the words together.

The New York Times, reporting the award to the Benning infantry officer yet to be selected, said the award was established by "a group of friends of the former secretary of war and jurist, headed by Maj. Gen. Julius Ochs Adler, vice president and general manager of the New York Times."

The Times has opposed the enemies of Communism and of the New Deal theology with a zeal as great as McCarthy's to the contrary and with a contempt for truth as deep as that which it imputes to Joe. It has recently been advocating a departure which is calls "interpretive" reporting of events.

There is nothing in the regulations to compel any patriotic, self-respecting officer to submit to this affront to his honor. It is inconceivable that the army would have the gall to trouble any decent American who should publicly tell Maj.-Gen. Julius Ochs Adler to keep his lousy scroll and his lousy $200.

On the contrary, it is conceivable that a non-political Department of Defense should bring charges against Adler for trying to make ulterior political propaganda at the expense of an officer much better than himself.

Why You Should GIVE BLOOD NOW

Aside from the situation in Korea, this country faces additional blood needs. We have thousands of wounded in our military hospitals still fighting for a chance to live. Other thousands in our civilian hospitals require blood. And in addition to these needs, there must be blood plasma always available as an insurance against a national emergency.

So give blood—now! Remember, there is no substitute for this priceless, painless gift.

"Keep the Service Goin'"

"I'm Harold Van Keuren, Central Hudson Lineman, first class. I'm just one of a lot of guys — just like me — who keep the service goin'. By that I mean climb the poles, string the wires and make repairs . . . make sure you get plenty of electricity when you want it and where you want it.

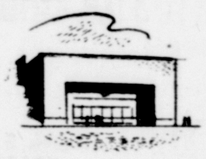

Sometimes we work 'round-the-clock — in snow storms, heavy winds and rain — the kind of weather that's tough on power lines and poles. And it's all in a day's work with us . . . because folks expect good service. What's more, they seem to be wanting more and more electricity. That I know.

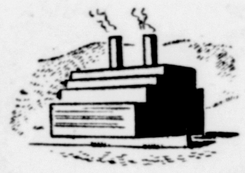

I hear a lot of talk about new construction jobs and new power plants the Company's building. I hear it's going to cost around thirty million dollars for 1952 through 1954. Well, I've never seen that kind of money, but it makes sense to me that if people want more electricity the Company is sure seeing that they get it.

I've been with Central Hudson going on twenty-five years. That's almost boy and man! It's been a good job and I've certainly seen the Company grow. When I started working there wasn't any Danskammer Point Steam Station or Neversink hydro plant up in the mountains. It's hard to keep up with all the new things going on. But the way I see it, the new jobs, the millions being spent, are all part of keepin' the service goin'."

Yes . . . here at Central Hudson a vast construction program is being carried on to stay ahead of your ever-increasing demands for service — and to insure you that gas and electricity will always remain your biggest household bargain.

A new two-story brick office building is under construction at 47 Cannon Street, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. to meet customer requirements for modern commercial office service and to meet Central Hudson's expanding methods of operations. When completed in April the new district office will serve customers from a central location, but will be away from the heavy traffic of the main thoroughfare.

Construction is under way on a second 60,000 kilowatt generating unit at Danskammer Point Steam Station, six miles north of Newburgh on the west bank of the Hudson River . . . to meet the increasing demand for electric power in the Mid-Hudson Valley. Upon completion of this unit in mid-1954 the total investment at the site will be approximately $25,000,000.

Central Hudson's new $2,700,000 Neversink Hydro-electric Plant near Grahamsville, N. Y. is scheduled to be in operation this spring. The 25,000 kilowatt plant will utilize New York City drinking water to generate electricity for distribution to homes, farms and industries throughout the Mid-Hudson Valley.

Construction of facilities at Central Hudson's new electric distribution division headquarters and construction material storage depot at Elting's Corners, near Ohioville, is in the final stages. Because of its location in the middle of Central Hudson's franchise area, it will eventually become the Company's main source of heavy material supply.

Expert Often Shows Skill at Tournament

By OSWALD JACOBY

One of the most interesting tournaments of the year is the annual Winter Carnival, scheduled to take place a month from now in St. Paul, Minn.

Visiting experts usually flock to the Carnival from all parts of the country, but the visitors don't always succeed in carrying the trophies away since some of America's best tournament players live in Minneapolis and St. Paul.

In today's hand the skill of the local players is demonstrated by the way S. J. Widman, of St. Paul, played the South cards. As chairman of the Winter Carnival, Mr. Widman will do his best to make things comfortable for all of the contestants; but it's evident that he will make things hot for his opponents at the bridge table.

Widman won the first trick with dummy's king of hearts and made the key play by leading the ten of clubs from the dummy. East covered with the jack of clubs, and declarer finessed the queen, losing to West's king.

(East lost nothing by playing his jack since declarer had every intention of letting the ten ride if East had played low.)

West led another heart, and declarer won with the ace. Two rounds of diamonds made it clear that the suit was not going to break, whereupon it was necessary for declarer to win four club tricks in order to make his contract.

Having made this discovery, Widman led dummy's remaining club and successfully finessed the seven of clubs from his own hand. The ace of clubs then cleared the suit, and declarer could take the rest of the tricks with good clubs and top cards.

I venture to say that most players would not think of the correct way to play the club suit. In a rubber bridge game, however, it is quite correct to begin the suit early by leading the ten of clubs from the dummy.

With a normal diamond break, South needs two club tricks to make his contract. The recommended line of play will succeed if East has the king of clubs, and it will also succeed if East has the jack and nine of clubs but not the king.

With the diamonds breaking badly, South needs four club tricks to make his contract. In this case, South needs a 3-3 break in clubs, but the play of the top cards is still the same. To lead the ten first gives South an extra chance in case the king is held by West.

Reds Fear Air Raids

Hong Kong (AP)—The Chinese Communists, apparently becoming a little jittery over rumors of Nationalist air raids, have set up an anti-aircraft defense command at Nanning, South China, according to dispatches to the independent newspaper Wah Kiu Pat Po. The newspaper said similar commands have been established at Wuchow, Kweilin and Liuchow in Kwangsi province.

Iran Plans Rice Export

Tehran, Iran (AP)—Iran's Ministry of National Economy this year has issued permits for export of 50,000 tons of rice out of a bumper crop of about 500,000 tons. Export sales of rice are expected to bring the country over nine million dollars of foreign exchange in hard currencies. Iranian requirements of rice are approximately 425,000 tons annually.

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

Dwight McEntee, Jr., gave me an exciting item which I have never seen before. It is a distance table of the Delaware and Hudson Canal. It is beautifully printed in blue on white and although printed in 1855 it is still in perfect condition. Has a very elaborate border all around the 12 by 16 edge. At the top it is illustrated with a handsome canal boat led by three horses, of which one has a rider. Two men operated the canal boat. One holds the reins at the front of the boat and the other at the back of the boat seems to be steering. This is no ordinary canal boat, it is a covered looking affair like a modern ferry-boat and has 13 windows. What it was supposed to be used for, or to haul I do not know. Maybe it was a passenger boat. Three splendid horses are pulling it, not mules. I describe it in detail, but if any of the readers wish to see this cut I will gladly show it to them.

The New York section of the canal started at Eddyville and ended at the Delaware Aqueduct. Every place is listed according to number of locks and miles from Eddyville and miles from Honesdale. I know some of these names still exist like Eddyville, Greenkill, Creek Locks, Alligerville, etc. But do names like Terwilliger's Feeder, Cutler's Basin, Broadhead's Brickkiln, Jared Ritchie's, Penny's Basin, Log House in Swamp, Swamp Bridge, Gumate's Brook still exist. There was also Van Inweigen's Basin near Cuddebackville which is near Neversink Aqueduct. Perhaps folks are living at these places right now.

Of course this goes back some 100 years and much has changed along the line of the canal, some places have disappeared as to original settlements, others have grown. From time to time I am asked for data on the canal. It seems more out of town folks are interested than even local folks. I had a correspondent for whom I looked up quite a lot of data on the canal. I think he was in the coal business. As I remember he sent me a calendar for my trouble, last year, but I misplaced it somewhere. No doubt he would be interested in this historical item, which really belongs in a glass frame on a wall of a library or other local public building.

The second part of the sheet gives the distances and locks of the Lackawaxen section, Pa. It was printed by F. B. Penniman, in Honesdale, Pa. It is so clear and well done that even today a printer would be proud to turn out such a nice, neat, concise sheet. Some of the Lackawaxen names were something too. There was Bloominggrove Island, and Mouth of Bloominggrove, also Punch Camp, Poolpit, Tumble Dam Rock, Paupack Eddy. For interested persons, Eddyville, by D and H. Canal was 108 miles. Ellenville was 28 miles from Eddyville, Wurtsboro was 40. I see "Naponock" was spelled different in those days. It was 25 miles from Eddyville. In case some one wants to know what was just midway or 54 miles either way, it was called Solomon Van Etten's Bridge, near Port Clinton. I guess it will take real old timers to figure all these places out, or folks now living on the line of the old D. & H. canal and still interested in its history.

Obvious Cancer Symptom

Los Angeles (AP)—Cancer of the larynx, which early manifests itself by prolonged hoarseness, is the only form of cancer which shows such an obvious symptom in its early stages, says Dr. Joel Pressman, University of California surgeon. However, few affected persons go to the doctor until the condition has been prevalent for six months or longer. Dr. Pressman says that with early diagnosis most cancers of the larynx can be successfully treated with modern surgical and radiological techniques.

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

Dwight McEntee, Jr., gave me an exciting item which I have never seen before. It is a distance table of the Delaware and Hudson Canal. It is beautifully printed in blue on white and although printed in 1855 it is still in perfect condition. Has a very elaborate border all around the 12 by 16 edge. At the top it is illustrated with a handsome canal boat led by three horses, of which one has a rider. Two men operated the canal boat. One holds the reins at the front of the boat and the other at the back of the boat seems to be steering. This is no ordinary canal boat, it is a covered looking affair like a modern ferry-boat and has 13 windows. What it was supposed to be used for, or to haul I do not know. Maybe it was a passenger boat. Three splendid horses are pulling it, not mules. I describe it in detail, but if any of the readers wish to see this cut I will gladly show it to them.

The New York section of the canal started at Eddyville and ended at the Delaware Aqueduct. Every place is listed according to number of locks and miles from Eddyville and miles from Honesdale. I know some of these names still exist like Eddyville, Greenkill, Creek Locks, Alligerville, etc. But do names like Terwilliger's Feeder, Cutler's Basin, Broadhead's Brickkiln, Jared Ritchie's, Penny's Basin, Log House in Swamp, Swamp Bridge, Gumate's Brook still exist. There was also Van Inweigen's Basin near Cuddebackville which is near Neversink Aqueduct. Perhaps folks are living at these places right now.

Of course this goes back some 100 years and much has changed along the line of the canal, some places have disappeared as to original settlements, others have grown. From time to time I am asked for data on the canal. It seems more out of town folks are interested than even local folks. I had a correspondent for whom I looked up quite a lot of data on the canal. I think he was in the coal business. As I remember he sent me a calendar for my trouble, last year, but I misplaced it somewhere. No doubt he would be interested in this historical item, which really belongs in a glass frame on a wall of a library or other local public building.

The second part of the sheet gives the distances and locks of the Lackawaxen section, Pa. It was printed by F. B. Penniman, in Honesdale, Pa. It is so clear and well done that even today a printer would be proud to turn out such a nice, neat, concise sheet. Some of the Lackawaxen names were something too. There was Bloominggrove Island, and Mouth of Bloominggrove, also Punch Camp, Poolpit, Tumble Dam Rock, Paupack Eddy. For interested persons, Eddyville, by D and H. Canal was 108 miles. Ellenville was 28 miles from Eddyville, Wurtsboro was 40. I see "Napanock" was spelled different in those days. It was 25 miles from Eddyville. In case some one wants to know what was just midway or 54 miles either way, it was called Solomon Van Etten's Bridge, near Port Clinton. I guess it will take real old timers to figure all these places out, or folks now living on the line of the old D. & H. canal and still interested in its history.

Sausage Pizza Is Easy to Make

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor

Pizza — the teen-agers' theme song. Sausage and mushroom pizza, easy to make at home, can become your dinner theme for all the family.

Sausage and Mushroom Pizza
(12 portions or 6 generous servings)

One-half pound sausage meat, 1/3 cup minced onion, 1 cup tomato sauce (8-ounce can), 3-ounce can chopped broiled mushrooms, 2 tablespoons tomato paste, 2 teaspoons sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup biscuit mix, 1/3 cup milk (approximately), 1 cup grated sharp American cheese.

Cook sausage meat in frying pan until brown and crumbly. Add onion and continue cooking 5 minutes over moderate heat. Add contents of cans of tomato sauce and mushrooms, the tomato paste, sugar and salt. Bring to boil. Lower heat and let simmer until thick, about 10 minutes.

Meanwhile, combine biscuit mix and milk to make soft dough. Pat out lightly to form 12-inch circle on greased cookie sheet or pizza pan. Spread the tomato mixture over the biscuit dough evenly. Sprinkle with the grated cheese.

Bake in hot oven (400 degrees F.) until biscuit is done and cheese is melted and brown, about 20 minutes. Cut in wedges and serve immediately.

Shortribs with Onion Sauce
(Yield: 4 servings)

Two pounds trimmed shortribs, 2 teaspoons kitchen bouquet, 2 teaspoons fat, 1½ teaspoons salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1/16 teaspoon cloves, ¼ cup tomato catsup, 1½ cups hot water, 2 cups thinly sliced onions, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, 2 tablespoons cold water, ½ cup sour cream.

Have meat dealer cut ribs in serving-size portions, cutting between each piece of bone as well as sawing the ribs into sections. There should be eight good-sized pieces.

Place the pieces in a bowl and sprinkle with kitchen bouquet. Stir lightly until all pieces are evenly coated with kitchen bouquet. Melt fat in Dutch oven. Add ribs and brown well over moderate heat. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and cloves. Combine and add the catsup and water.

Cover and bring to boil. Cook over low heat until the meat is tender, about 1 hour and 15 minutes. After 1 hour pour all the fat from the meat, returning any broth poured out. Add the onions and continue cooking, covered, until both meat and onions are tender, about 15 minutes longer.

Blend together and add the cornstarch and cold water, stirring until sauce thickens. Add the sour cream and mix thoroughly. Correct seasoning if necessary. Serve immediately, accompanied with hot buttered noodles.

TOMORROW'S MENU

BREAKFAST: Orange juice, crisp bacon, cornbread, butter or margarine, honey or syrup, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON: Sausage and mushroom pizza, chopped green salad, fruit bowl, tea, milk.

Cost-Cutting Is Becoming One of Biggest Problems

By SAM DAWSON

New York, (AP) — How to cut costs of doing business—without running into objections from labor on the one hand and without cutting services to customers on the other—is fast becoming a top problem of industry.

A redoubled attack on it is reported today from several sources.

Cost cutting is an immediate problem because operating costs have been rising so fast that, bumping against high taxes and price controls, they many times have reduced profit margins seriously.

It may become an acute problem later, if sales drop off below a company's break-even point.

The American Management Association is devoting one entire session of its Los Angeles meeting later this month to the problem. It will explore the part electronic machines can play in cutting costs; how clerical and general office expense (one of the fastest rising costs in industry) can be cut; and how more goods can be produced for the same labor cost but without loss of jobs.

Cost Accounting Used

Another phase of the attack is through cost accounting—that is, finding out just how much it costs to produce each product a company makes so that the unprofitable ones can be dropped.

"Good cost data will permit a better job of selective selling and lay the groundwork for increased sales of the most profitable items," says Walter B. Seibert, controller of Sylvania electric products, in a report to the Controllers Institute of America.

Firms scoring high in recent months in mastering cost control—according to Jackson Martindell, president of the American Institute of Management—include Procter & Gamble, Hotels Statler Co., National Cash Register, and du Pont.

"Pierre S. du Pont," he says, "could be called the father of modern multiple product cost accounting. Under his guidance, his firm was the first to set up accounts by products, covering over 3,600 items."

Model Cost System

Newspapers are getting into the act, too, as they fight to keep the price of their papers from rising further. The Institute of Newspaper Controllers & Finance Officers is nowing working on a model cost system applicable to all papers.

C. Arthur Weis of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, institute president, says the recently issued first standard charts of accounts in the newspaper field "makes it possible to compare like items—oranges with oranges—not with apples. previously one paper would compute its composition, ink and paper cost per 1,000 lines, while another might use a per-page basis."

Cost cutting, however, often runs into worker opposition. Fred Rudge of the New York and Los Angeles management counselling firm of Fisher, Rudge & Neblett, says the average worker views cost control programs, sourly, unless his suspicions they are speed-up plans are removed.

The best way to win employes over is to get them to suggest ways and means of producing more, or better, products for less, he says. Workers often come up with solutions management never thought of.

State Adopts Minimum Standards for Stables

Albany, Jan. 6 (AP)—The State Health Department has adopted state-wide minimum standards for pen-type dairy stables for the first time.

Gov. Dewey announced the action today.

A pen stable has no stanchions or stalls. It consists of an area bedded with straw or similar material, where cows are permitted to roam at will. Until now, special health permits were required for such stables.

The governor said the new standards were the result of a five-year study conducted by the state and the New York City Health Department.

Advantages to farmers of the pen-type installations include a lower cost of installation, saving in labor and better herd health, the governor said.

The Cornell University Farm Extension Service, through its county agents, now will recommend use of the new stabling system, Dewey added.

Sausage Pizza Is Easy to Make

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor

Pizza — the teen-agers' theme song. Sausage and mushroom pizza, easy to make at home, can become your dinner theme for all the family.

Sausage and Mushroom Pizza
(12 portions or 6 generous servings)

One-half pound sausage meat, 1/3 cup minced onion, 1 cup tomato sauce (8-ounce can), 3-ounce can chopped broiled mushrooms, 2 tablespoons tomato paste, 2 teaspoons sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup biscuit mix, 1/3 cup milk (approximately), 1 cup grated sharp American cheese.

Cook sausage meat in frying pan until brown and crumbly. Add onion and continue cooking 5 minutes over moderate heat. Add contents of cans of tomato sauce and mushrooms, the tomato paste, sugar and salt. Bring to boil. Lower heat and let simmer until thick, about 10 minutes.

Meanwhile, combine biscuit mix and milk to make soft dough. Pat out lightly to form 12-inch circle on greased cookie sheet or pizza pan. Spread the tomato mixture over the biscuit dough evenly. Sprinkle with the grated cheese.

Bake in hot oven (400 degrees F.) until biscuit is done and cheese is melted and brown, about 20 minutes. Cut in wedges and serve immediately.

Shortribs with Onion Sauce
(Yield: 4 servings)

Two pounds trimmed shortribs, 2 teaspoons kitchen bouquet, 2 teaspoons fat, 1½ teaspoons salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1/16 teaspoon cloves, ¼ cup tomato catsup, 1½ cups hot water, 2 cups thinly sliced onions, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, 2 tablespoons cold water, ½ cup sour cream.

Have meat dealer cut ribs in serving-size portions, cutting between each piece of bone as well as sawing the ribs into sections. There should be eight good-sized pieces.

Place the pieces in a bowl and sprinkle with kitchen bouquet. Stir lightly until all pieces are evenly coated with kitchen bouquet. Melt fat in Dutch oven. Add ribs and brown well over moderate heat. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and cloves. Combine and add the catsup and water.

Cover and bring to boil. Cook over low heat until the meat is tender, about 1 hour and 15 minutes. After 1 hour pour all the fat from the meat, returning any broth poured out. Add the onions and continue cooking, covered, until both meat and onions are tender, about 15 minutes longer.

Blend together and add the cornstarch and cold water, stirring until sauce thickens. Add the sour cream and mix thoroughly. Correct seasoning if necessary. Serve immediately, accompanied with hot buttered noodles.

TOMORROW'S MENU

BREAKFAST: Orange juice, crisp bacon, cornbread, butter or margarine, honey or syrup, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON: Sausage and mushroom pizza, chopped green salad, fruit bowl, tea, milk.

Crewman Is Killed

Buenos Aires, Argentina, Jan 6 (AP)—The 7,723-ton Spanish vessel Monte Urbasa collided in the early morning darkness off Buenos Aires today with the 8,192-ton Danish tanker Rosa Maersk. A crewman aboard the Spanish ship was killed and two Chilean student passengers were injured. The Monte Urbasa was en route here from Tenerife, Canary Islands. Both ships were towed into port here for repairs.

Cost-Cutting Is Becoming One of Biggest Problems

By SAM DAWSON

New York, (AP) — How to cut costs of doing business—without running into objections from labor on the one hand and without cutting services to customers on the other—is fast becoming a top problem of industry.

A redoubled attack on it is reported today from several sources.

Cost cutting is an immediate problem because operating costs have been rising so fast that, bumping against high taxes and price controls, they many times have reduced profit margins seriously.

It may become an acute problem later, if sales drop off below a company's break-even point.

The American Management Association is devoting one entire session of its Los Angeles meeting later this month to the problem. It will explore the part electronic machines can play in cutting costs; how clerical and general office expense (one of the fastest rising costs in industry) can be cut; and how more goods can be produced for the same labor cost but without loss of jobs.

Cost Accounting Used

Another phase of the attack is through cost accounting—that is, finding out just how much it costs to produce each product a company makes so that the unprofitable ones can be dropped.

"Good cost data will permit a better job of selective selling and lay the groundwork for increased sales of the most profitable items," says Walter B. Seibert, controller of Sylvania electric products, in a report to the Controllers Institute of America.

Firms scoring high in recent months in mastering cost control—according to Jackson Martindell, president of the American Institute of Management—include Procter & Gamble, Hotels Statler Co., National Cash Register, and du Pont.

"Pierre S. du Pont," he says, "could be called the father of modern multiple product cost accounting. Under his guidance, his firm was the first to set up accounts by products, covering over 3,600 items."

Model Cost System

Newspapers are getting into the act, too, as they fight to keep the price of their papers from rising further. The Institute of Newspaper Controllers & Finance Officers is nowing working on a model cost system applicable to all papers.

C. Arthur Weis of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, institute president, says the recently issued first standard charts of accounts in the newspaper field "makes it possible to compare like items—oranges with oranges—not with apples. previously one paper would compute its composition, ink and paper cost per 1,000 lines, while another might use a per-page basis."

Cost cutting, however, often runs into worker opposition. Fred Rudge of the New York and Los Angeles management counselling firm of Fisher, Rudge & Neblett, says the average worker views cost control programs, sourly, unless his suspicions they are speed-up plans are removed.

The best way to win employes over is to get them to suggest ways and means of producing more, or better, products for less, he says. Workers often come up with solutions management never thought of.

State Adopts Minimum Standards for Stables

Albany, Jan. 6 (AP)—The State Health Department has adopted state-wide minimum standards for pen-type dairy stables for the first time.

Gov. Dewey announced the action today.

A pen stable has no stanchions or stalls. It consists of an area bedded with straw or similar material, where cows are permitted to roam at will. Until now, special health permits were required for such stables.

The governor said the new standards were the result of a five-year study conducted by the state and the New York City Health Department.

Advantages to farmers of the pen-type installations include a lower cost of installation, saving in labor and better herd health, the governor said.

The Cornell University Farm Extension Service, through its county agents, now will recommend use of the new stabling system, Dewey added.

Health for All

GOOD HEALTH COMES FIRST

Good health comes first in any list of New Year's resolutions. It's not always simply a matter of resolution, but if you now enjoy good health, resolve to keep it. It's priceless.

Even if you don't go in for New Year's resolutions, this is a good time of year to take a close look at the state of your health, at the way you are living.

It is much easier to keep in good health than to get well after you are sick. And easier, too, to throw off colds and to build up resistance to disease, if your health is already good. Here are a few simple rules of good general health, which we all can follow:

Eat well-balanced meals. Eat enough, but not too much.

Exercise regularly, preferably out of doors.

Get enough rest and sleep.

Keep clean. Good personal hygiene is essential.

See your doctor and dentist regularly.

Get a physical checkup every year, including a chest X-ray, whether you feel sick or not.

Don't wait until you feel sick to see your doctor. Your doctor can help you prevent sickness or detect it early enough to cure it promptly.

You are most likely to get sick when you are run down from lack of sleep or from the wrong kind of food.

A balanced diet means eating enough of the right kinds of foods, but not eating too much. Overweight is a shortcut to illness. Balanced meals can be arranged nutritiously with dishes from categories such as these: Milk and milk products like cheese; butter or vitamin A margarine; proteins, including meats, poultry, fish, eggs; green and yellow vegetables; fruits and salad greens; whole-grained breads and cereals.

You sleep best if the air in your rooms is fresh and cool. The thermometer should read about 68 degrees, not more than 72.

Plan to keep well this year.

This column is sponsored in the interest of better health by the Ulster County Tuberculosis and Health Association.

Health for All

GOOD HEALTH COMES FIRST

Good health comes first in any list of New Year's resolutions. It's not always simply a matter of resolution, but if you now enjoy good health, resolve to keep it. It's priceless.

Even if you don't go in for New Year's resolutions, this is a good time of year to take a close look at the state of your health, at the way you are living.

It is much easier to keep in good health than to get well after you are sick. And easier, too, to throw off colds and to build up resistance to disease, if your health is already good. Here are a few simple rules of good general health, which we all can follow:

Eat well-balanced meals. Eat enough, but not too much.

Exercise regularly, preferably out of doors.

Get enough rest and sleep.

Keep clean. Good personal hygiene is essential.

See your doctor and dentist regularly.

Get a physical checkup every year, including a chest X-ray, whether you feel sick or not.

Don't wait until you feel sick to see your doctor. Your doctor can help you prevent sickness or detect it early enough to cure it promptly.

You are most likely to get sick when you are run down from lack of sleep or from the wrong kind of food.

A balanced diet means eating enough of the right kinds of foods, but not eating too much. Overweight is a shortcut to illness. Balanced meals can be arranged nutritiously with dishes from categories such as these: Milk and milk products like cheese; butter or vitamin A margarine; proteins, including meats, poultry, fish, eggs; green and yellow vegetables; fruits and salad greens; whole-grained breads and cereals.

You sleep best if the air in your rooms is fresh and cool. The thermometer should read about 68 degrees, not more than 72.

Marbletown Auxiliary Has Annual Meeting And Christmas Party

Marbletown, Jan. 6—The Town of Marbletown American Legion Auxiliary held its annual Christmas party in St. Peter's Parish Hall, Stone Ridge, on Thursday, Dec. 18. A covered dish supper was served and an exchange of gifts followed. The families of members attended.

Reviews Gift Program

Following the supper, Mrs. Isaac Graham, president, gave an interesting report of her trip to Albany Veterans' Hospital on Dec. 11 to aid in the distribution of gifts to the hospitalized veterans. There were approximately 700 veterans in the hospital, including several newly arrived from the Korean conflict. The Marbletown unit in conjunction with all other units in the nation concentrate on this gift program in the month of December.

The Stone Ridge Grange and the High Falls Reformed Church Ladies' Aid were among local organizations donating money to the program. Change banks were put in business places and they yielded further monies. Then the balance was taken from the receipts of the annual poppy sale held each May. This money and gifts purchased with it were under the supervision of the rehabilitation chairman, Mrs. Joseph Hoffman. In previous years, the contributions went to the Castle Point Veterans' Hospital near Beacon, but since the completion of the Albany Hospital, this unit has been assigned to it.

"Our veterans are cared for physically by the government, but it cannot give the little personal things which help make periods of hospitalization more bearable," said Mrs. Graham. And, "for three days, volunteer American Legion women displayed the gifts at the hospital, where the veterans selected, free of charge, the Christmas presents for their loved ones. With further assistance by the Auxiliary women, the gifts were wrapped and stamped. About 40 women from Ulster county helped in this work."

Mrs. Graham and Mrs. Frank Altieri represented the town of Marbletown Unit. Mrs. Stanley Matthews of Hurley is chairman of the project for the Albany area.

Membership Drive

"To further programs of the Auxiliary, membership is necessary, and this is the period for membership drives. Quotas are assigned to each county and each local unit. Marbletown unit needs two more members to complete its quota," said Mrs. Altieri, membership chairman.

The quota for the county is 690 and at present there are 540 members. The state membership chairman is Mrs. Rilleva P. Mack of Wayland.

Continuing, Mrs. Altieri told the members, "Ulster county will not forget her enthusiastic appeal for membership given at the Governor Clinton Hotel last month at the time of the Third District Conference. Mrs. Mack is a volunteer worker at the Bath Veterans' Hospital where there are 30 blind veterans. These blind veterans are serving as her assistants in this drive and one is given each county as his special field. This serves a double purpose. It gives the veteran a feeling of being of use and it should inspire eligible women to join and do their bit when they see how much our boys have already given. The veteran, watching results in Ulster county, is Alonzo Lumpkin and his address is BAC, Lund Pent House, Co. 2, Bath. All auxiliary women are urged to write him good news of the membership drive in their own local unit."

The membership chairman concluded, "it is hoped as the new year begins each auxiliary member will pay her dues and each eligible woman will join, so that the work of the auxiliary may continue."

To Organize Auxiliary

There will be a meeting at the West Hurley District 1 Firehouse at 8 p. m. Monday, Jan. 12, for the purpose of organizing a ladies auxiliary. All ladies of the fire district are invited to attend.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a ballerina gown of Chantilly lace over bridal satin, fashioned with a fitted basque jacket, standing collar, long sleeves and a nylon tulle accordion plaited skirt. The local Legion committee headed by Commander Weber, Bill McNamee and Ervin DeWitt and the committee from Ulster County Voiture 381 headed by Chef de Gare Stan Lawrence, made arrangements for a full day's entertainment for the children.

Immediately following the movie Santa Claus arrived, and with the assistance of committee members Paul Hyatt, Jim Costello, Tom Bohan, Tony Erena, Earl Haley, Irv Smith, Frank Bruno, Andy Murphy, Jr. and Andy Murphy, 3rd, passed out presents to all the children. The Mature Parent

Promising 'Not to Tell Daddy' Is a Dangerous Conspiracy.

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

Bobby was seven when he got an important lesson in independence.

He had been ordered not to climb on the porch roof, where several tiles had come loose. But one morning when he was playing ball, the ball became lodged in a porch rain spout.

The temptation was too much for Bobby. He climbed a tree, swung his legs from a branch to the roof—and was balanced precariously between it and thin air when his mother found him.

She made Bobby climb back on the branch. When he was back on the ground, he was informed that his disobedience would cost him permission to go to the zoo the next afternoon.

All during lunch Bobby reflected upon this fate with deep gloom. And as he munched the last of his apple salad, he was struck with another gloomy thought.

"Are you going to tell daddy I was on the roof?" he asked his mother.

His mother had deliberately prepared for this question. So it didn't catch her off base. "Me tell daddy?" she echoed. "Why should I tell daddy? I'm not the person who climbed up on the roof. You are. I'm just the person who thinks you shouldn't have climbed up on the roof. You're the one who thought you should. So you're the person who has to explain what happened. I don't know enough about it to tell daddy."

Sometimes we're not as alert as Bobby's mother. We enter into conspiraces. We say soothingly, "No, I don't tell daddy if you promise not to climb on the roof again." And as we say this, we agree with the implication that our little boy's father is not quite the person we are. Not quite so kind, quite so just.

We conspire with the idea that fathers are not people with whom a small boy can discuss mistakes, but some kind of awful embodiment of authority.

If that isn't true, we certainly don't want Bobby to think it is. Nor do we wish to turn ourselves into skirts behind which Bobby can hide without learning to understand himself or speak up in his own behalf.

In the end, it always pays off to teach children to do their own talking.

How many youngsters have shivered, listening in darkened halls outside the closed bedroom door where Mother is regaling Father with excitable news on the "evil doings" of their young ones, I don't know.

But I expect there've been millions. By the time the children creep back to bed, changes have taken place. People whose life is in trust to us have said to themselves, "They're against me. They're together; but me, I'm alone."

Grange News

Crop production in New York state this past year has been generally good, due to favorable growing conditions and where acreages were increased. Grain corn, dry beans, potatoes, winter wheat and buckwheat were all up over the year before. Hay production was down since the dry weather affected most parts of the state. Oats and barley were down, along with the fruit crop, as apples, pears, sweet and sour cherries and grapes were all down. Peaches turned out about the same. Winter wheat was seeded under extremely unfavorable conditions that may result in a poor total crop, despite an increase of 3 per cent in acreage. Farmers must depend on increased yields per acre to offset the squeeze of higher farm labor costs and service goods prices, as against lower farm prices.

Last week we returned from a quickie vacation trip that took us across seven states into Arkansas and return. High time we jogged out of our rut, too, because we solved a mystery that has puzzled us for some time: where all those good prime steer steaks had gone to. Oh, yes, we've seen them on menus at $3.50 up, or occasionally under glass at $1.05 per pound, but our budget can't stand those luxuries. In an Illinois restaurant, we came face to face with an inch-thick, honest-to-goodness rib steak, platter wide, complete with french fries, vegetable, beverage and dessert. The check? $1.40 complete. The cost of shipping beef from Illinois to New York doesn't add up to a difference of $2.10 per plate. Someone's kidding the public.

Service and Hospitality Committee in all Granges, as we have mentioned before in this column have a job of work cut out for them. Chinese Teacher Shortage Singapore (AP) — Chinese school principals, worried that they may be unable to run their schools next year owing to a shortage of teachers, have written to Colonial Secretary W. L. Blythe, asking that teachers from Hong Kong be allowed to enter Singapore. There is a dearth of Chinese school teachers here owing to their recent movement to English schools, where salaries are more attractive. Chinese school principals fear that immigration authorities, anxious to keep out pro-Communist elements, may block their entry.

REALIZING HER LOVELINESS

A reader's letter describes a friend as follows: "She is a very lovely person in every respect except for her appearance. She always looks very untidy. Her hair is never combed and her clothes look as though they were slept in. I have heard several people comment on her untidiness and it upsets me because she could be very attractive. Is there any way I can bring this to her attention without offending her?"

If you know her very well, you might say, "Mary, I wish you would let me do your hair a new way. I think it will be very becoming to you." Or, "Let me take you to Antoine's, I would love to see how you look in his new hair-do." Then it is to be hoped that when she sees herself in a new hair-do, she will realize her loveliness and take enough interest in her appearance to become tidy.

Evening Hospitality

Dear Mrs. Post: When friends stop by in the evening for a visit, is it improper to ask them whether they would like a cup of coffee or tea, etc.? My husband thinks that I should just go ahead and serve light refreshments without asking, as they can hardly say anything but "no" when asked point blank. I, on the other hand, think it is foolish to go to the bother of getting anything if they dont' want it. Your opinion will be appreciated.

Answer: I agree with you.

Eating With a Stutter

Dear Mrs. Post: I have been placing the fork in the left hand and knife in the right hand, cutting the meat and eating it without "switching" the fork to the right hand. I have been told this is not proper and not the American way to eat. Will you please tell me if I am wrong?

Answer: You are absolutely correct. Lifting food to the mouth with the fork held in the left hand, rather than chasing back and forth, is best table manners.

Marbletown Auxiliary Has Annual Meeting And Christmas Party

Marbletown, Jan. 6—The Town of Marbletown American Legion Auxiliary held its annual Christmas party in St. Peter's Parish Hall, Stone Ridge, on Thursday, Dec. 18. A covered dish supper was served and an exchange of gifts followed. The families of members attended.

Reviews Gift Program

Following the supper, Mrs. Isaac Graham, president, gave an interesting report of her trip to Albany Veterans' Hospital on Dec. 11 to aid in the distribution of gifts to the hospitalized veterans. There were approximately 700 veterans in the hospital, including several newly arrived from the Korean conflict. The Marbletown unit in conjunction with all other units in the nation concentrate on this gift program in the month of December.

The Stone Ridge Grange and the High Falls Reformed Church Ladies' Aid were among local organizations donating money to the program. Change banks were put in business places and they yielded further monies. Then the balance was taken from the receipts of the annual poppy sale held each May. This money and gifts purchased with it were under the supervision of the rehabilitation chairman, Mrs. Joseph Hoffman. In previous years, the contributions went to the Castle Point Veterans' Hospital near Beacon, but since the completion of the Albany Hospital, this unit has been assigned to it.

"Our veterans are cared for physically by the government, but it cannot give the little personal things which help make periods of hospitalization more bearable," said Mrs. Graham. And, "for three days, volunteer American Legion women displayed the gifts at the hospital, where the veterans selected, free of charge, the Christmas presents for their loved ones. With further assistance by the Auxiliary women, the gifts were wrapped and stamped. About 40 women from Ulster county helped in this work."

Mrs. Graham and Mrs. Frank Altieri represented the town of Marbletown Unit. Mrs. Stanley Matthews of Hurley is chairman of the project for the Albany area.

Membership Drive

"To further programs of the Auxiliary, membership is necessary, and this is the period for membership drives. Quotas are assigned to each county and each local unit. Marbletown unit needs two more members to complete its quota," said Mrs. Altieri, membership chairman.

The quota for the county is 690 and at present there are 540 members. The state membership chairman is Mrs. Rilleva P. Mack of Wayland.

Continuing, Mrs. Altieri told the members, "Ulster county will not forget her enthusiastic appeal for membership given at the Governor Clinton Hotel last month at the time of the Third District Conference. Mrs. Mack is a volunteer worker at the Bath Veterans' Hospital where there are 30 blind veterans. These blind veterans are serving as her assistants in this drive and one is given each county as his special field. This serves a double purpose. It gives the veteran a feeling of being of use and it should inspire eligible women to join and do their bit when they see how much our boys have already given. The veteran, watching results in Ulster county, is Alonzo Lumpkin and his address is BAC, Lund Pent House, Co. 2, Bath. All auxiliary women are urged to write him good news of the membership drive in their own local unit."

The membership chairman concluded, "it is hoped as the new year begins each auxiliary member will pay her dues and each eligible woman will join, so that the work of the auxiliary may continue."

To Organize Auxiliary

There will be a meeting at the West Hurley District 1 Firehouse at 8 p. m. Monday, Jan. 12, for the purpose of organizing a ladies auxiliary. All ladies of the fire district are invited to attend.

The Mature Parent

Promising 'Not to Tell Daddy' Is a Dangerous Conspiracy.

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

Bobby was seven when he got an important lesson in independence.

He had been ordered not to climb on the porch roof, where several tiles had come loose. But one morning when he was playing ball, the ball became lodged in a porch rain spout.

The temptation was too much for Bobby. He climbed a tree, swung his legs from a branch to the roof—and was balanced precariously between it and thin air when his mother found him.

She made Bobby climb back on the branch. When he was back on the ground, he was informed that his disobedience would cost him permission to go to the zoo the next afternoon.

All during lunch Bobby reflected upon this fate with deep gloom. And as he munched the last of his apple salad, he was struck with another gloomy thought.

"Are you going to tell daddy I was on the roof?" he asked his mother.

His mother had deliberately prepared for this question. So it didn't catch her off base. "Me tell daddy?" she echoed. "Why should I tell daddy? I'm not the person who climbed up on the roof. You are. I'm just the person who thinks you shouldn't have climbed up on the roof. You're the one who thought you should. So you're the person who has to explain what happened. I don't know enough about it to tell daddy."

Sometimes we're not as alert as Bobby's mother. We enter into conspiraces. We say soothingly, "No, I don't tell daddy if you promise not to climb on the roof again." And as we say this, we agree with the implication that our little boy's father is not quite the person we are. Not quite so kind, quite so just.

We conspire with the idea that fathers are not people with whom a small boy can discuss mistakes, but some kind of awful embodiment of authority.

If that isn't true, we certainly don't want Bobby to think it is. Nor do we wish to turn ourselves into skirts behind which Bobby can hide without learning to understand himself or speak up in his own behalf.

In the end, it always pays off to teach children to do their own talking.

How many youngsters have shivered, listening in darkened halls outside the closed bedroom door where Mother is regaling Father with excitable news on the "evil doings" of their young ones, I don't know.

But I expect there've been millions. By the time the children creep back to bed, changes have taken place. People whose life is in trust to us have said to themselves, "They're against me. They're together; but me, I'm alone."

Grange News

Crop production in New York state this past year has been generally good, due to favorable growing conditions and where acreages were increased. Grain corn, dry beans, potatoes, winter wheat and buckwheat were all up over the year before. Hay production was down since the dry weather affected most parts of the state. Oats and barley were down, along with the fruit crop, as apples, pears, sweet and sour cherries and grapes were all down. Peaches turned out about the same. Winter wheat was seeded under extremely unfavorable conditions that may result in a poor total crop, despite an increase of 3 per cent in acreage. Farmers must depend on increased yields per acre to offset the squeeze of higher farm labor costs and service goods prices, as against lower farm prices.

Last week we returned from a quickie vacation trip that took us across seven states into Arkansas and return. High time we jogged out of our rut, too, because we solved a mystery that has puzzled us for some time: where all those good prime steer steaks had gone to. Oh, yes, we've seen them on menus at $3.50 up, or occasionally under glass at $1.05 per pound, but our budget can't stand those luxuries. In an Illinois restaurant, we came face to face with an inch-thick, honest-to-goodness rib steak, platter wide, complete with french fries, vegetable, beverage and dessert. The check? $1.40 complete. The cost of shipping beef from Illinois to New York doesn't add up to a difference of $2.10 per plate. Someone's kidding the public.

Miss Loper will discuss the basic principles of house design, show slides illustrating these principles and how they were applied in the remodelling of actual homes to fit the needs of particular families.

Food Expense Outlook

Will your expenses for food be higher or lower next year? According to the Ulster County Home Bureau nobody knows for certain. But when economists gather all the facts and figures on past and present production they can speculate on the future with a fair degree of accuracy.

Economists predict that farmers, with average weather, will produce a little more food in 1953 than in 1952.

Supply alone does not determine food prices. The amount of money people have to spend also affects the price of food. Since defense and business activity is expected to provide full employment in 1953, incomes will be as high as last year. Consumers will probably be able and willing to spend just as much on food as in 1952.

There will be more beef and veal in 1953. Slightly less pork is expected, since farmers sent more of their pigs to market last fall. However, pork will cost less than it did last spring. Beef prices are generally lower than last year and pork prices tend to follow beef prices.

It is expected that there will be a small increase in the output of broilers next year, so the price is likely to be no higher than it was in 1952.

The milk supply may be larger next year. Since the population continues to increase more rapidly than the milk supply, we will continue to use an increasing proportion of milk in fluid form.

Other crops that will probably be more plentiful next year are fresh vegetables and non-citrus fruit.

Folklore Meeting

Harry Siemsen, chairman of the History and Folklore Study Club, announces the next meeting for Tuesday, Jan. 13, at 8 p. m. at the Home Bureau Office, 280 Wall street. The topic of the evening will be to carry on discussion of recipes of early days and methods of cooking. Mr. Siemsen pointed out that very little is gathered on what the early settlers of various nationalities ate three times a day and an effort will be made by the study club to gather together all information available. The meeting is open to the public and no admission will be charged.

Hurley Unit

The Hurley unit of the Home Bureau will hold a regular business meeting on Thursday at 1:30 p. m. Those interested in taking lessons in the sewing screens, are requested to attend the meeting or get in touch with Mrs. Alton Dietz, 216R1, if arrangements have not already been made.

Nutts Corner Field, 14 miles from here. It made a normal landing approach at 9:40 p. m. until it was about 50 feet off the ground. Then it ripped into the beacon mast.

A screaming, panic-stricken girl ran from the wreckage with her clothing afire. Rescuers chased her 300 yards before they were able to catch her and take her to a hospital.

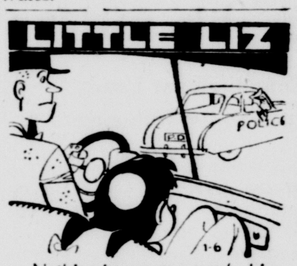

Working by automobile headlights and hastily-erected arc lamps, fire squads extinguished the flames and removed the dead and injured.

"When we reached the wreckage, bodies were strewn around the aircraft and some people were hanging half in and half out of the plane," said W. H. M. Clelland, a Belfast resident who came to meet a passenger.

There was no immediate indication how the plane happened to hit the beacon mast.

Ministry of civil aviation officals flew to Belfast early today to hold an official inquiry into the crash—the first big air wreck in the United Kingdom in nearly a year.

Last Jan. 10, 23 persons were killed when an aer lingus (Irish Republic) plane hit a mountain in Wales.

statement today. In reply to newsmen's inquiries, an aide to the general left open the possibility of another meeting before Churchill leaves the city, but said there was no definite word on that.

Two Meetings Held

Eisenhower and Churchill met twice after the Prime Minister's arrival from England aboard the liner Queen Mary yesterday morning.

Eisenhower called first at the Baruch home on the way from his Commodore Hotel headquarters to his Columbia University residence. That session started a few minutes after 5 p. m. and lasted an hour and three-quarters.

The general then went home, changed to dinner clothes and was back at 8 p. m. to dine with Churchill, Baruch and a few others. That get-together lasted three hours.

A few moments after Eisenhower arrived the first time, photographers were called in and later described the scene in Baruch's apartment.

Eisenhower, the camera men said, told the 78-year-old Churchill:

"You look much better than when I saw you last."

The last time was in December, 1951, when Churchill called on the general at his headquarters near Paris. Eisenhower then was supreme commander of western Europe's defense forces.

Meet Photographers

At Baruch's home, Eisenhower and Churchill met the photographers in a spacious living room. They and their host sat in comfortable chairs. Above the fireplace mantle was a portrait of Churchill.

James Hagerty, Eisenhower's press secretary, said Baruch left the room with the photographers and Eisenhower and Churchill then conferred alone.

While there was no word on what Eisenhower and Churchill discussed, the prime minister at a news conference yesterday talked about subjects which may have come up at the later meetings with the President-elect.

Churchill told reporters he is opposed to any extension of the Korean war. Eisenhower also has indicated he is against broadening the war.

Churchill said, too, that the "center of gravity" for world peace "lies along the frontiers of the iron curtain in Europe," and not in Korea. And the prime minister declared that U. S. tariffs are impeding trade with Britain, and thereby are hampering British efforts to "earn our own living" by "trade, not aid."

Births

The city registrar today announced a total of 1,266 births in 1952.

This was 88 more than the 1,178 reported in 1951. The total included 12 sets of twins, which was three less than in 1951.

The total births reported last month was 96, and that for December, 1951 was 101. The November, 1952 total was 99.

Births recorded recently were:

Dec. 25—Dean Joseph to Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Giuliano, West Shokan.

Dec. 29—Darlene Ann to Mr. and Mrs. Robert John Matthews, 19 Hasbrouck avenue, and David Philip to Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Ostrander, 35 Murray street.

Dec. 31—George Christian to Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Haug, West Shokan, and Catherine Anne to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Buchspies, Woodstock.

Lecture Demonstration

Miss Ruby Loper, architect and specialist in the Housing Department of the New York State College of Home Economics at Ithaca, will conduct a lecture demonstration on remodelling or planning the home to fit the family at 8 p. m. on Thursday, Jan. 15, at the Albany Avenue Baptist Church hall. Kingston High Resumes DUSO Play Friday Against Middies

Orange Quintet May Prove Tough For the Maroons

NFA Favored to Win 26th Straight Game

Friday's Schedule

Middletown at KINGSTON.
Poughkeepsie at Liberty.
Monticello at Beacon.
Newburgh at Fallsburgh.
Port Jervis at Ellenville.

DUSO STANDING

	W	L	Pct.
KINGSTON	3	0	1.000
Newburgh	3	0	1.000
Monticello	3	1	.750
Poughkeepsie	2	1	.667
Beacon	2	1	.667
Fallsburgh	2	2	.500
Middletown	1	2	.333
Ellenville	1	3	.250
Port Jervis	0	3	.000
Liberty	0	4	.000

Their holiday recess ended, the DUSO League's scholastic cagers resume their chase of Newburgh Free Academy's Glittering Goldbacks on Friday.

Kingston is currently tied with NFA with three straight victories, but the three-time DUSO kingpins are rated the "team to beat." And with good reason. They are sporting a 25-game winning streak and their overwhelming triumph at Monticello convinced skeptics they could be tough on the road.

Earlier they had faltered in the seasonal opener at Middletown and were forced into overtime.

Coach G. Warren Kias's Maroons have swept past Fallsburgh Central, 65-64, in overtime; Liberty High, 75-52; and Ellenville, 67-54.

Next Two Games Vital

The ultimate fate of Kingston's pennant designs might be decided in the next two games. A dangerous Middletown quintet is scheduled here Friday and then comes a Jan. 13 date in Poughkeepsie. The Middies are on the upswing and Coach Kalloch's Blues yield to nobody on their cramped court.

The Poughkeepsie cagers have won two out of three, beating Fallsburgh and Ellenville, while bowing to Monticello.

All three leaders face trouble in Friday's skirmishes. While the Maroons are battling the Middies, Newburgh might run into trouble at Fallsburg, with a disappointing 2-2 record. Beacon (2-1) pressed NFA and could easily topple Monticello (3-1) on the Dutchess boards.

The steady improvement of Dick Bezemer in the center slot has brightened Kingston's pennant hopes. It will take a good, big man to shackle Newburgh's sensational Mickey Burkowski. The Marvel and Bobby Spreer still are the best one-two punch in the league.

Coach Kias has three players averaging in double figures after three games, with Bill DuBois, the set-shooting wizard leading the team with 55 points. Palmer "Skipper" Brodhead has 49 and George Telepas 41. This trio represents the best scoring balance Kingston has had since the palmy days of Ronnie Scheffel.

With resumption of play on Friday, the DUSO basketeers will be on a steady diet of Tuesday-Friday games until the season closes on March 3.

Mangrum Takes Los Angeles Open

Los Angeles, Jan. 2 (AP)—Lloyd Mangrum, who plays golf by ear, banked the profits today from his third Los Angeles Open Golf championship.

The dapper mustached Mangrum carries a full complement of clubs in his bag, and he knows what to do with them. But he also carries a radio, and he knows how to use that, too.

As he toured his final round yesterday, he kept tuned to the progress of his chief competitor, young Jack Burke, by radio. It's a system Mangrum devised several years ago. He started out the day five strokes ahead. He finished five strokes ahead.

At one stage, Burke was within three strokes, and Mangrum stepped away from his portable long enough to card two birdies. It was the turning point. He never again was in danger and collected $2,750.

He had 280, four under par, for the grueling four days over Riviera Country Club's par 71, 7020-yard hill and dale course. His rounds were 69-72-69—70. Burke matched him on the final round, but couldn't cut those five strokes. Burke's totals were 70-75-70—70.

Monte Irvin Tells Giant Officials He's Set for 1953

New York, Jan. 6 (AP)—Monte Irvin reports the right ankle he broke in a Denver exhibition is ready for full time duty.

This good news for New York Giants fans developed yesterday when the 33-year-old outfielder visited Horace Stoneham's office to sign a reported $25,000 contract—the same as last year.

Irvin said he gave the ankle a full test in the gym where he ran, jumped and played a little basketball. "I can stop and go all right now," he reported.

The Giants brought Irvin from his Orange, N. J., job as a salesman for a beer company to make a production of his signing. Irvin beamed and Stoneham grinned while the cameramen shot away. Monte even rolled a trouser leg to let the condition of his ankle be recorded for the newsreels.

"Do you think your absence hurt the Giants' pennant chances last year?" somebody asked.

While Irvin "erred" and "aahed" in all due modesty, Stoneham rushed in with a solid "we think so."

Turpin Balks At NBA Tourney

Washington, Jan. 6 (AP)—Britain's Randy Turpin balked today at a National Boxing Association (NBA) proposal that he be included in a middleweight elimination tournament to crown a successor to Sugar Ray Robinson.

Turpin, who once held the middleweight title briefly, was named as the logical contender in the 160 pound division in quarterly ratings released yesterday by the NBA.

The NBA said it would be a good idea for Turpin to fight Charles Humez of France. The winner then could be matched with the winner of a U. S. tournament for the world title vacated by Robinson.

Carl (Bobo) Olson of Hawaii is right behind Turpin in the ratings. Others who would be considered in a U. S. elimination tournament are Ernie Durando, New Jersey; Rocky Castellani, Pennsylvania; Norman Hayes, Massachusetts and Eugene Hairston, New York—all tabbed by the NBA as outstanding boxers.

C. Onslow Fane, chairman of the British Boxing Board of Control, speaking for Turpin, told the NBA his group was dissatisfied with the NBA proposal that Turpin battle Humez for the European crown and eventually there be a world title bout with the winner of a U. S. tournament.

In a letter to the NBA, Fane insisted that Turpin's next bout should be for the world crown.

Turpin lifted the title from Robinson in a bout in London. Sugar Ray won it back in a bout in New York.

Fane further requested that the NBA executive committee, which meets in New York Saturday and Sunday, vote on his suggestion. A spokesman for the NBA said the request would receive careful consideration by the executive group and the matter will be put to a vote.

New Paltz Cagers To Meet Potsdam At Home Saturday

New Paltz State Teachers' foul shooting wizards resume basketball action Saturday at home against Potsdam Normal after a 24-day holiday hiatus.

Winners in three out of four games, the resurgent Blue and Orange lost only to the crack Albany State Teachers quintet, 67-80. They hold decisions over Drew University, 67-65; Willimantic, Conn., 82-75; and Danbury Teachers, 100-96.

Phenomenal foul shooting has played an important role in New Paltz victories to date. Coach Loren D. Campbell's squad racked up 316 points in four sets and 108 of them came from the charity stripe. This 27-point foul shooting average is uncommon.

Juhl Tops Scorers

Handy Andy Juhl, the Kingston sharpshooter, is hitting at 27.5 pace per game to lead the Orange with 110 points. Other top scorers include Willie Donoghue with 50; Chet Hutton 29; Dick King 30; Ronnie Foster 44 and John Wulff 26.

Oneonta Teachers will be at New Paltz on Saturday, Jan. 17.

Commissioner Lauds Its Family Influence

Any activity that attracts adults to the degree of Little League must have its good effect on family groups and the community, National Little League Commissioner Carl A. Stotz told 300 persons at last night's second annual LL banquet at the George Washington School.

Tracing the growth of the Little League baseball movement since 1939, when he founded it at Williamsport, Pa., the soft-spoken commissioner made a staunch defense of the principles and ideals of the small fry organization.

Joining in tribute to Little League and local director, Robert Umpleby, were Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk, County Judge John M. Cashin; Clarence S. Rowland, president of the Board of Education; Dick McCarthy and Paul Gardner, new president of the Little League Association. The Rev. J. Dean Dykstra gave the invocation.

Bad traveling conditions in Westchester county claimed Harry Grayson, NEA sports editor, as a casualty near White Plains. Grayson called at 7:30 p. m. and said it would be impossible for his party to go any farther.

Judge Cashin told the youngsters they couldn't buy the lessons of obedience, discipline, team work and the ability to win and lose properly that Little League baseball has developed in them. Praising Umpleby warmly for his splendid record as LL director, he predicted continuing success for the movement and said it would produce outstanding citizens for the community.

Mayor Newkirk and Clarence Rowland joined in warm tributes to Umpleby and the Little League for the great job they were doing for the youngsters of the city.

Awards Made

Dick McCarthy made the team and individual awards. Members of the championship Dodgers received belts and official LL buckles. The tournament squad was awarded special emblems and every boy in the league got the naitonal LL lapel button.

The championship Dodgers, with Bud Culloton and Thomas M. Davitt as coaches, included Hobart Armstrong, George Uhl, Glenn Newell, Robert Pratt, Raymond Reilly, Peter Showers, Thomas Ashdown, James Volker, Ronald Pratt, Tom Mayone, Allen McCord, Garry Barnes, Charlie Williams, Jim Dickson and Robert Hoffman.

The gold baseball recipients for the tournament squad were Glenn Newell, Charlie Boice, Danny Steltz, Thomas Fisher, Gene Nagele, Peter Esposito, Tom Van Etten, Paul Klonowski, Tom Hallinan, Hobart Armstrong, George Uhl, George Norton, Robert Pratt and Lee Kias. The coaches were Willard Thomas and John Hasbrouck.

Four Players Cited

Special trophy awards went to Glenn Newell, Dodger pitcher, for most strikeouts, 86; Danny Steltz, batting champion with a .566 average; Charlie Boice, Red Sox pitcher, best won and lost mark of 8 and 3; and Lee Kias, most home runs, 8.

Several out of town Little League delegations attended the dinner and met with Commissioner Stotz after the banquet. The group included Robert Graves, Bud Potter, Chet Barth and Ed Maurer of the Town of Esopus; Ernest Schirmer, William Straub, Glenn Teetsell, Joe Garland and Charlie Gilmore of Saugerties.

Bill Lohrman, former major league hurler, who directs the New Paltz league attended with its president, Lee Keator.

The conference with Commissioner Stotz brought out several new rules for the 1953 season and discussed common problems for LL organizations.

Five teams are rated a chance in the DUSO League basketball scramble, with Newburgh and Kingston, one-two in that order in the early season form charts. Monticello, Beacon and Poughkeepsie merit consideration, with the Middies and Fallsburg in the role of "spoilers." Two big men normally can do the job for a high school squad and NFA has them in Mickey "The Marvel" Burkowski and Bobby Spreer. Kingston has its best balance in several seasons but needs a better bench.

• Flotsam and Jetsam:

Word is spreading that Hudson Valley League keglers will nix Saturday bowling next year. Middletown Bennetts already have asked out and are back to the original Sunday p. m. firing. A manpower problem on Elston's Sport Shop may deprive hard hitting Larry Peterson, Jr., of a chance at the HVBL individual prize money. Miron Lumberjacks may lose Hammerin' Hank Kemmerer in a few weeks. Jimmy Fuller of Kingston had a valuable assist in Chaote's winning goal in ice hockey on Saturday. We are being treated to the unusual spectacle of the American Bowling Congress sending out notices to member city associations seeking more entries for the ABC tournament in Chicago this spring. For some reason or other the nationals have not set the Windy City ablaze, despite the fact it is the most ideally located site in the nation. A total of 6,244 teams, nearly 1500 short of a record, has been entered to date. The Golden Anniversary tenpin pageant was expected to attract at least 8,000 teams. The record of 7735 was set last year at Milwaukee.

• Of Men and Mice:

Rocky Marciano got our vote as professional athlete of the year in the 1952 Hicock poll. Other tops we listed were Frank Sedgman, the Australian tennis ace, and Jockey Tony DeSpirito. Here is a statistical oddity: New Paltz State Teachers and its opponents each have scored 310 points in four games, but the NP has won three of the four games. Coach Dan Cunha of Siena College remarked in a telecast Saturday night, although the "1 and 1" foul rule in basketball has quickly made itself obnoxious, it has at least served the purpose of eliminating the one foul shot and "waiver" on two-foul calls in the last three minutes of play. When you consider that the fabulous sum of $1,921,561,655 (billion) was wagered on horse races in 1952, you appreciate why Senator Wicks' committee on off-track betting is moving cautiously in its study of proposed state-operated wagering booths away from the track.

• Kingston Still Having "O-S" Trouble

Kingston's in-again, out-again status in the Orange-Sullivan County basketball league lasted exactly one game this time around. A group of local cagers who made no local announcement of O-S intentions played one game and dropped out. This was the fourth time in four straight years that a Kingston quintet has retreated from the O-S before finishing its schedule. But league president G. Robert Bartlett said this was the first time Kingston quit after only one game. This is one record Kingston basketball shouldn't be proud of. DUSO League graduates holding down varsity positions at several big time schools: Ronnie Scheffel and Dick Tyler at North Carolina State; Ed Weaver at West Point; Joe Albany at Arnold College; Richie Spreer at St. Michael's, Vermont; Jack Mahar, NFA, with the undefeated Cortland State Teachers, best of the state schools. Big Eddie O'Connor, the former St. Patrick's skyscraper of Newburgh, is first string center at Manhattan College.

Kansas State Holds No. 1 Spot

New York, Jan. 6 (AP)—Those holiday basketball tournaments are gone, but apparently not forgotten by the nation's sportswriters and broadcasters, who named Kansas State as the nation's No. 1 team.

Kansas State's rousing victory in the Big Seven tournament last week—the Wildcats only activity of the week—kept State at the head of the Associated Press basketball poll today for the second straight week. The tourney success also widened the Kansas State lead, as the Wildcats piled up 758 points on a basis of 10 for first, nine for second, etc., to only 647 for second-place Seton Hall. Seton Hall trailed by only five points last week.

The total of 101 writers and 'casters, voting for 56 different schools, kept La Salle in third place, followed by Illinois, which last night trimmed Purdue 87-71. But from that point on, the standings were scrambled.

Oklahoma A & M victor in the All-College tourney at Oklahoma City, jumped from seventh to fifth, and North Carolina State climbed from 11th to ninth after winning the Dixie Classic. In addition, Louisiana State barely missed the first 10. The Bayou boys, who won the Sugar Bowl tournament, placed 11th.

Oklahoma A & M's climb shoved Washington down a notch to sixth, while Indiana jumped into the first flight at No. 7 and Fordham, an also ran a week ago, was right behind at No. 8. Indiana won its fourth straight last night, a 69-62 conquest of Michigan State.

Western Kentucky stayed at No. 10, despite a loss to Idaho in the All-College tourney.

Violets Defeat Epstein Aces

Violets outclassed Epstein's Aces in the final period to score a 55-45 victory in a Recreation League basketball game last night at the MJM gym.

Ronnie Brandt's sharpshooting in the stretch period wrecked the Aces. He unloaded 26 points to pace both squads and Culjak hit 15.

Woodstock V Defeats Wiltwycks, 65 to 63

Kaufman Tops Home Cagers With 19

Woodstock Varsity trailed Wiltwyck Motors until the final minutes of play last night, when "Boo" Schaffer converted one of two foul shots to nail down a thrilling 65-63 victory over the YMCA powerhouse.

The triumph was the 9th in 10 starts for Woodstock, most of them scored against YMCA League opposition.

Trailing 13-22 at the quarter and 26-35 at the intermission, the "Vs" first gained the lead at 60-59 on a pair of deuces by Big Bill Kleine at the 5-minute mark.

In subsequent scrambling, Harder and Schaffer connected for Woodstock deuces to match two-pointers by Big Tom Morrissey and Irving Peck for Wiltwycks. This kept Woodstock ahead, 64-63, and Schaffer's final foul took it out of the fire.

Outside Shooting

A tight zone defense forced both clubs to shoot from the outside, where Tom Morrissey of Wiltwycks and Bill Kaufman of the home cagers did heavy damage.

Morrissey, who is getting to be a familiar figure at Woodstock, led both clubs with 21 points. Peck and Schoonmaker shared 21 for Wiltwycks.

Kaufman was Woodstock's big gun for the second time running with 19 points. Big Bill Kleine rimmed 16 and Schaffer hit for 13.

The 50 Club of the YMCA "A" League will try to solve the Woodstock School gym riddle on Friday night.

Ski Boom Resumes With Many New Slopes; More Than 3 Million Stem, Schuss, Jump

Skis are waxed, cars are tuned and road crews stand guard over the loftiest peaks from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

With snow, the ski season is here; perhaps falteringly in Ulster county.

More than three million persons will stem, schuss and jump on this country's slippery flanks. The industry in the United States grows and grows.

Lavish reports of improvements and major additions, with super chair and Alpine lifts, trails, slopes and ski schools are whipping up enthusiasm like never before in history.

East is Jinxed Again

In the east, the feeling is that the jinx of snowless winters has been removed; but all the returns are not yet in. Resort proprietors have prepared for the best season since the boom began two decades ago.

New York State now has three resorts, two in the Catskills (Highmount and Belleayre) and one in the Adirondacks where machines can make snow.

The brightest news of expansion, however, emanates from the west coast. Southern California is bidding heavily to become the top region in the nation, now offers skiers their choice of nine chair lifts and many rope tows, all within a radius of 100 miles. The newest and largest development in the United States is the Mount Baldy sector, only 50 miles from downtown Los Angeles.

Skiing is now the third most popular recreation in the Pacific northwest, exceeded only by camping and picnicking. Oregon and Washington slopes drew 479,000 enthusiasts last winter.

Falling off a mountain is also enjoying a growth in popularity in the Rockies as good snows help Aspen, Arapahoe, and Berthoud Pass, Colo. to make skiing big business. Eight chair lifts are operating at Sun Valley, Ida., where Stein Erikson, Norway's Olympic champion, and Jack Reddish, U. S. Olympic team captain, are instructors.

Midwestern Boom

Midwesterners are bristling with ski activity and the major improvement there is the new double chair lift at Terry Peak in the Black Hills of South Dakota.

The latest wrinkle in paraphernalia is an all-insulated suit that weighs 20 ounces, guaranteed to keep the skier warm in sub-zero weather.

Norwegian Hansa Bjornstad, the world champion, will be on hand at Steamboat Springs, Colo., Feb. 14-15 for the national jumping championships.

The latter competition is not recommended for novices—or newsmen. A few years ago a press delegation covering a meet at Aspen suddenly found themselves atop the summit.

"How do we get down?" newspapermen asked.

"The easiest way," a guide said, "is to break a leg. Then an ambulance comes and takes you down."

The newspaperman strapped on skis, started down, broke a leg, and an ambulance came and took him down.

Kingston High Resumes DUSO Play Friday Against Middies

NFA Favored to Win 26th Straight Game

Friday's Schedule

Middletown at KINGSTON.
Poughkeepsie at Liberty.
Monticello at Beacon.
Newburgh at Fallsburgh.
Port Jervis at Ellenville.

DUSO STANDING

	W	L	Pct.
KINGSTON	3	0	1.000
Newburgh	3	0	1.000
Monticello	3	1	.750
Poughkeepsie	2	1	.667
Beacon	2	1	.667
Fallsburgh	2	2	.500
Middletown	1	2	.333
Ellenville	1	3	.250
Port Jervis	0	3	.000
Liberty	0	4	.000

Their holiday recess ended, the DUSO League's scholastic cagers resume their chase of Newburgh Free Academy's Glittering Goldbacks on Friday.

Kingston is currently tied with NFA with three straight victories, but the three-time DUSO kingpins are rated the "team to beat." And with good reason. They are sporting a 25-game winning streak and their overwhelming triumph at Monticello convinced skeptics they could be tough on the road.

Earlier they had faltered in the seasonal opener at Middletown and were forced into overtime.

Coach G. Warren Kias's Maroons have swept past Fallsburgh Central, 65-64, in overtime; Liberty High, 75-52; and Ellenville, 67-54.

Next Two Games Vital

The ultimate fate of Kingston's pennant designs might be decided in the next two games. A dangerous Middletown quintet is scheduled here Friday and then comes a Jan. 13 date in Poughkeepsie. The Middies are on the upswing and Coach Kalloch's Blues yield to nobody on their cramped court.

The Poughkeepsie cagers have won two out of three, beating Fallsburgh and Ellenville, while bowing to Monticello.

All three leaders face trouble in Friday's skirmishes. While the Maroons are battling the Middies, Newburgh might run into trouble at Fallsburg, with a disappointing 2-2 record. Beacon (2-1) pressed NFA and could easily topple Monticello (3-1) on the Dutchess boards.

The steady improvement of Dick Bezemer in the center slot has brightened Kingston's pennant hopes. It will take a good, big man to shackle Newburgh's sensational Mickey Burkowski. The Marvel and Bobby Spreer still are the best one-two punch in the league.

Coach Kias has three players averaging in double figures after three games, with Bill DuBois, the set-shooting wizard leading the team with 55 points. Palmer "Skipper" Brodhead has 49 and George Telepas 41. This trio represents the best scoring balance Kingston has had since the palmy days of Ronnie Scheffel.

With resumption of play on Friday, the DUSO basketeers will be on a steady diet of Tuesday-Friday games until the season closes on March 3.

Mangrum Takes Los Angeles Open

Los Angeles, Jan. 2 (AP)—Lloyd Mangrum, who plays golf by ear, banked the profits today from his third Los Angeles Open Golf championship.

The dapper mustached Mangrum carries a full complement of clubs in his bag, and he knows what to do with them. But he also carries a radio, and he knows how to use that, too.

As he toured his final round yesterday, he kept tuned to the progress of his chief competitor, young Jack Burke, by radio. It's a system Mangrum devised several years ago. He started out the day five strokes ahead. He finished five strokes ahead.

At one stage, Burke was within three strokes, and Mangrum stepped away from his portable long enough to card two birdies. It was the turning point. He never again was in danger and collected $2,750.

He had 280, four under par, for the grueling four days over Riviera Country Club's par 71, 7020-yard hill and dale course. His rounds were 69-72-69—70. Burke matched him on the final round, but couldn't cut those five strokes. Burke's totals were 70-75-70—70.

Monte Irvin Tells Giant Officials He's Set for 1953

This good news for New York Giants fans developed yesterday when the 33-year-old outfielder visited Horace Stoneham's office to sign a reported $25,000 contract—the same as last year.

Irvin said he gave the ankle a full test in the gym where he ran, jumped and played a little basketball. "I can stop and go all right now," he reported.

The Giants brought Irvin from his Orange, N. J., job as a salesman for a beer company to make a production of his signing. Irvin beamed and Stoneham grinned while the cameramen shot away. Monte even rolled a trouser leg to let the condition of his ankle be recorded for the newsreels.

"Do you think your absence hurt the Giants' pennant chances last year?" somebody asked.

While Irvin "erred" and "aahed" in all due modesty, Stoneham rushed in with a solid "we think so."

Turpin Balks At NBA Tourney

Washington, Jan. 6 (AP)—Britain's Randy Turpin balked today at a National Boxing Association (NBA) proposal that he be included in a middleweight elimination tournament to crown a successor to Sugar Ray Robinson.

Turpin, who once held the middleweight title briefly, was named as the logical contender in the 160 pound division in quarterly ratings released yesterday by the NBA.

The NBA said it would be a good idea for Turpin to fight Charles Humez of France. The winner then could be matched with the winner of a U. S. tournament for the world title vacated by Robinson.

Carl (Bobo) Olson of Hawaii is right behind Turpin in the ratings. Others who would be considered in a U. S. elimination tournament are Ernie Durando, New Jersey; Rocky Castellani, Pennsylvania; Norman Hayes, Massachusetts and Eugene Hairston, New York—all tabbed by the NBA as outstanding boxers.

C. Onslow Fane, chairman of the British Boxing Board of Control, speaking for Turpin, told the NBA his group was dissatisfied with the NBA proposal that Turpin battle Humez for the European crown and eventually there be a world title bout with the winner of a U. S. tournament.

In a letter to the NBA, Fane insisted that Turpin's next bout should be for the world crown.

Turpin lifted the title from Robinson in a bout in London. Sugar Ray won it back in a bout in New York.

Fane further requested that the NBA executive committee, which meets in New York Saturday and Sunday, vote on his suggestion. A spokesman for the NBA said the request would receive careful consideration by the executive group and the matter will be put to a vote.

New Paltz Cagers To Meet Potsdam At Home Saturday

Speakers Join In Tribute to Umpleby and LL

Commissioner Lauds Its Family Influence

Any activity that attracts adults to the degree of Little League must have its good effect on family groups and the community, National Little League Commissioner Carl A. Stotz told 300 persons at last night's second annual LL banquet at the George Washington School.

Tracing the growth of the Little League baseball movement since 1939, when he founded it at Williamsport, Pa., the soft-spoken commissioner made a staunch defense of the principles and ideals of the small fry organization.

Joining in tribute to Little League and local director, Robert Umpleby, were Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk, County Judge John M. Cashin; Clarence S. Rowland, president of the Board of Education; Dick McCarthy and Paul Gardner, new president of the Little League Association. The Rev. J. Dean Dykstra gave the invocation.

Bad traveling conditions in Westchester county claimed Harry Grayson, NEA sports editor, as a casualty near White Plains. Grayson called at 7:30 p. m. and said it would be impossible for his party to go any farther.

Judge Cashin told the youngsters they couldn't buy the lessons of obedience, discipline, team work and the ability to win and lose properly that Little League baseball has developed in them. Praising Umpleby warmly for his splendid record as LL director, he predicted continuing success for the movement and said it would produce outstanding citizens for the community.

Mayor Newkirk and Clarence Rowland joined in warm tributes to Umpleby and the Little League for the great job they were doing for the youngsters of the city.

Awards Made

Dick McCarthy made the team and individual awards. Members of the championship Dodgers received belts and official LL buckles. The tournament squad was awarded special emblems and every boy in the league got the naitonal LL lapel button.

The championship Dodgers, with Bud Culloton and Thomas M. Davitt as coaches, included Hobart Armstrong, George Uhl, Glenn Newell, Robert Pratt, Raymond Reilly, Peter Showers, Thomas Ashdown, James Volker, Ronald Pratt, Tom Mayone, Allen McCord, Garry Barnes, Charlie Williams, Jim Dickson and Robert Hoffman.

The gold baseball recipients for the tournament squad were Glenn Newell, Charlie Boice, Danny Steltz, Thomas Fisher, Gene Nagele, Peter Esposito, Tom Van Etten, Paul Klonowski, Tom Hallinan, Hobart Armstrong, George Uhl, George Norton, Robert Pratt and Lee Kias. The coaches were Willard Thomas and John Hasbrouck.

Four Players Cited

Special trophy awards went to Glenn Newell, Dodger pitcher, for most strikeouts, 86; Danny Steltz, batting champion with a .566 average; Charlie Boice, Red Sox pitcher, best won and lost mark of 8 and 3; and Lee Kias, most home runs, 8.

Several out of town Little League delegations attended the dinner and met with Commissioner Stotz after the banquet. The group included Robert Graves, Bud Potter, Chet Barth and Ed Maurer of the Town of Esopus; Ernest Schirmer, William Straub, Glenn Teetsell, Joe Garland and Charlie Gilmore of Saugerties.

Bill Lohrman, former major league hurler, who directs the New Paltz league attended with its president, Lee Keator.

The conference with Commissioner Stotz brought out several new rules for the 1953 season and discussed common problems for LL organizations.

Five teams are rated a chance in the DUSO League basketball scramble, with Newburgh and Kingston, one-two in that order in the early season form charts. Monticello, Beacon and Poughkeepsie merit consideration, with the Middies and Fallsburg in the role of "spoilers." Two big men normally can do the job for a high school squad and NFA has them in Mickey "The Marvel" Burkowski and Bobby Spreer. Kingston has its best balance in several seasons but needs a better bench.

• Flotsam and Jetsam:

Word is spreading that Hudson Valley League keglers will nix Saturday bowling next year. Middletown Bennetts already have asked out and are back to the original Sunday p. m. firing. A manpower problem on Elston's Sport Shop may deprive hard hitting Larry Peterson, Jr., of a chance at the HVBL individual prize money. Miron Lumberjacks may lose Hammerin' Hank Kemmerer in a few weeks. Jimmy Fuller of Kingston had a valuable assist in Chaote's winning goal in ice hockey on Saturday. We are being treated to the unusual spectacle of the American Bowling Congress sending out notices to member city associations seeking more entries for the ABC tournament in Chicago this spring. For some reason or other the nationals have not set the Windy City ablaze, despite the fact it is the most ideally located site in the nation. A total of 6,244 teams, nearly 1500 short of a record, has been entered to date. The Golden Anniversary tenpin pageant was expected to attract at least 8,000 teams. The record of 7735 was set last year at Milwaukee.

• Of Men and Mice:

Rocky Marciano got our vote as professional athlete of the year in the 1952 Hicock poll. Other tops we listed were Frank Sedgman, the Australian tennis ace, and Jockey Tony DeSpirito. Here is a statistical oddity: New Paltz State Teachers and its opponents each have scored 310 points in four games, but the NP has won three of the four games. Coach Dan Cunha of Siena College remarked in a telecast Saturday night, although the "1 and 1" foul rule in basketball has quickly made itself obnoxious, it has at least served the purpose of eliminating the one foul shot and "waiver" on two-foul calls in the last three minutes of play. When you consider that the fabulous sum of $1,921,561,655 (billion) was wagered on horse races in 1952, you appreciate why Senator Wicks' committee on off-track betting is moving cautiously in its study of proposed state-operated wagering booths away from the track.

• Kingston Still Having "O-S" Trouble

Kingston's in-again, out-again status in the Orange-Sullivan County basketball league lasted exactly one game this time around. A group of local cagers who made no local announcement of O-S intentions played one game and dropped out. This was the fourth time in four straight years that a Kingston quintet has retreated from the O-S before finishing its schedule. But league president G. Robert Bartlett said this was the first time Kingston quit after only one game. This is one record Kingston basketball shouldn't be proud of. DUSO League graduates holding down varsity positions at several big time schools: Ronnie Scheffel and Dick Tyler at North Carolina State; Ed Weaver at West Point; Joe Albany at Arnold College; Richie Spreer at St. Michael's, Vermont; Jack Mahar, NFA, with the undefeated Cortland State Teachers, best of the state schools. Big Eddie O'Connor, the former St. Patrick's skyscraper of Newburgh, is first string center at Manhattan College.

Kansas State Holds No. 1 Spot

New York, Jan. 6 (AP)—Those holiday basketball tournaments are gone, but apparently not forgotten by the nation's sportswriters and broadcasters, who named Kansas State as the nation's No. 1 team.

Kansas State's rousing victory in the Big Seven tournament last week—the Wildcats only activity of the week—kept State at the head of the Associated Press basketball poll today for the second straight week. The tourney success also widened the Kansas State lead, as the Wildcats piled up 758 points on a basis of 10 for first, nine for second, etc., to only 647 for second-place Seton Hall. Seton Hall trailed by only five points last week.

The total of 101 writers and 'casters, voting for 56 different schools, kept La Salle in third place, followed by Illinois, which last night trimmed Purdue 87-71. But from that point on, the standings were scrambled.

Oklahoma A & M victor in the All-College tourney at Oklahoma City, jumped from seventh to fifth, and North Carolina State climbed from 11th to ninth after winning the Dixie Classic. In addition, Louisiana State barely missed the first 10. The Bayou boys, who won the Sugar Bowl tournament, placed 11th.

Oklahoma A & M's climb shoved Washington down a notch to sixth, while Indiana jumped into the first flight at No. 7 and Fordham, an also ran a week ago, was right behind at No. 8. Indiana won its fourth straight last night, a 69-62 conquest of Michigan State.

Western Kentucky stayed at No. 10, despite a loss to Idaho in the All-College tourney.

Violets Defeat Epstein Aces

Violets outclassed Epstein's Aces in the final period to score a 55-45 victory in a Recreation League basketball game last night at the MJM gym.

Ronnie Brandt's sharpshooting in the stretch period wrecked the Aces. He unloaded 26 points to pace both squads and Culjak hit 15.

Woodstock V Defeats Wiltwycks, 65 to 63

Kaufman Tops Home Cagers With 19

Woodstock Varsity trailed Wiltwyck Motors until the final minutes of play last night, when "Boo" Schaffer converted one of two foul shots to nail down a thrilling 65-63 victory over the YMCA powerhouse.

The triumph was the 9th in 10 starts for Woodstock, most of them scored against YMCA League opposition.

Trailing 13-22 at the quarter and 26-35 at the intermission, the "Vs" first gained the lead at 60-59 on a pair of deuces by Big Bill Kleine at the 5-minute mark.

In subsequent scrambling, Harder and Schaffer connected for Woodstock deuces to match two-pointers by Big Tom Morrissey and Irving Peck for Wiltwycks. This kept Woodstock ahead, 64-63, and Schaffer's final foul took it out of the fire.

Outside Shooting

A tight zone defense forced both clubs to shoot from the outside, where Tom Morrissey of Wiltwycks and Bill Kaufman of the home cagers did heavy damage.

Morrissey, who is getting to be a familiar figure at Woodstock, led both clubs with 21 points. Peck and Schoonmaker shared 21 for Wiltwycks.

Kaufman was Woodstock's big gun for the second time running with 19 points. Big Bill Kleine rimmed 16 and Schaffer hit for 13.

The 50 Club of the YMCA "A" League will try to solve the Woodstock School gym riddle on Friday night.

Ski Boom Resumes With Many New Slopes; More Than 3 Million Stem, Schuss, Jump

Skis are waxed, cars are tuned and road crews stand guard over the loftiest peaks from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

With snow, the ski season is here; perhaps falteringly in Ulster county.

More than three million persons will stem, schuss and jump on this country's slippery flanks. The industry in the United States grows and grows.

Lavish reports of improvements and major additions, with super chair and Alpine lifts, trails, slopes and ski schools are whipping up enthusiasm like never before in history.

East is Jinxed Again

In the east, the feeling is that the jinx of snowless winters has been removed; but all the returns are not yet in. Resort proprietors have prepared for the best season since the boom began two decades ago.

New York State now has three resorts, two in the Catskills (Highmount and Belleayre) and one in the Adirondacks where machines can make snow.

The brightest news of expansion, however, emanates from the west coast. Southern California is bidding heavily to become the top region in the nation, now offers skiers their choice of nine chair lifts and many rope tows, all within a radius of 100 miles. The newest and largest development in the United States is the Mount Baldy sector, only 50 miles from downtown Los Angeles.

Skiing is now the third most popular recreation in the Pacific northwest, exceeded only by camping and picnicking. Oregon and Washington slopes drew 479,000 enthusiasts last winter.

Falling off a mountain is also enjoying a growth in popularity in the Rockies as good snows help Aspen, Arapahoe, and Berthoud Pass, Colo. to make skiing big business. Eight chair lifts are operating at Sun Valley, Ida., where Stein Erikson, Norway's Olympic champion, and Jack Reddish, U. S. Olympic team captain, are instructors.

Midwestern Boom

Midwesterners are bristling with ski activity and the major improvement there is the new double chair lift at Terry Peak in the Black Hills of South Dakota.

The latest wrinkle in paraphernalia is an all-insulated suit that weighs 20 ounces, guaranteed to keep the skier warm in sub-zero weather.

Norwegian Hansa Bjornstad, the world champion, will be on hand at Steamboat Springs, Colo., Feb. 14-15 for the national jumping championships.

The latter competition is not recommended for novices—or newsmen. A few years ago a press delegation covering a meet at Aspen suddenly found themselves atop the summit.

"How do we get down?" newspapermen asked.

"The easiest way," a guide said, "is to break a leg. Then an ambulance comes and takes you down."

The newspaperman strapped on skis, started down, broke a leg, and an ambulance came and took him down.

NCAA Coaches to Urge Rigid Code of Ethics

Washington, Jan. 6 (AP)—College football coaches will put the finishing touches tonight on a rigid new code of ethics, and the president of the national body predicts adoption "with few or no changes."

"This is a move to protect our profession and to punish any member who does anything to tarnish that profession," said Carl Snavely, who recently resigned as head coach at the University of North Carolina.

Snavely released the revised version of the coaches' code, drawn up by a special committee headed by Dudley De Groot of the University of New Mexico.

Under the code, the coach is required to:

1. Never take unfair advantage of an opponent.
2. Be "without boastfulness and without bitterness."
3. Never express publicly ill-feeling toward other coaches, players or officials.
4. Follow fully the policy of his institution.
5. Never apply pressure to an admissions officer to admit a student because of his athletic ability.
6. Before and after a game, always exchange friendly greetings with the rival coach, be as inconspicuous as possible during the game, be friendly and kindly at all times toward players and always be self-controlled and undemonstrative.
7. Not make uncomplimentary remarks to officials or let players do it during a game.
8. Take no part in polls and make no predictions on game outcomes.
9. Allow a 15-minute cooling-off period before admitting reporters to dressing rooms after games.

Snavely said the idea of an ethics code arose as the result of two unfortunate incidents:

1. The injury to Drake's Johnny Bright in a game with Oklahoma A. and M. in 1951, and
2. The charges the same year that Dartmouth went "out to get" Princeton's All-America Dick Kazmaier.

"Both incidents created charges and bad feelings," Snavely said. "Our code would eliminate such as that."

Y.M.C.A. News

Bowling was one of the top activities at the Y during the recent holiday season. More than 40 boys, many who had never bowled before, took advantage of the Y bowling facilities. In the bowling tournament held by the Boys' Division, Junior Jack Dawkins got a score of 152 with Cadet Eugene Nagle and Prep Alva Dubois following with scores of 150 and 96 respectively. At the end of the playoffs Jack Dawkins was winner of the tournament and received a pocketknife as prize.

Other activities included a MJM Friday Niter's party with movies, singing and dancing contests. The pool was frequently used by members of the Boys' Division. Many participated in endurance swimming trials conducted by Lou Schafer, director of the Y's physical department.

The Boys' Division plans to form new clubs and strengthen and enlarge others with attractive programs. Plans are also underway to make the woodworking shop available to those who wish to use it under proper supervision. Several tours to West Point and nearby industrial centers will probably get underway before February. Also a more extensive swimming program will be inaugurated this month for all members of the Boys' Division.

The first Friday Niters dance of the New Year was held this last weekend. Over 45 couples attended and enjoyed a varied dance program. A larger attendance is expected as the year progresses. Future dance programs will include movie cartoons, group singing, well-rehearsed entertainment and a night of square dancing conducted by a professional caller.

Because of the Kingston High School dances which will be held at the Y's Youth Center this month, there will be no dancing for members of the Friday Niter's dance Friday, Jan. 9, and the following Friday, Jan. 16. Dancing for members of the Friday Niters dance will be resumed Friday, Jan. 23.

Present officers of the MJM VanIngen Club are as follows: Edward Zwick, president; Donald Van Buren, vice president; Bob Hirons, secretary-treasurer; Henry Ketterer, sergeant-at-arms; Bob Mosley, membership; and Mark Feldman, membership.

MONTE 'LAYS IT ON THE LINE' FOR CONTRACT

New York Giants outfielder Monte Irvin puts his right leg on the desk of Horace Stoneham, president of the club, to prove that his fractured right ankle is "as good as ever" during ceremonies attendant on the signing of his new contract in New York. Monte signed a contract for 1953 calling for about $25,000. He broke his ankle in a slide to third base during a Denver exhibition game last April 2.

Joe Dulin Slams 659 in Minor; E. Schoonmaker's 236 High

Joe Dulin hammered a 659 series in the City Minor League, while Tess Moss and Elizabeth Schoonmaker sparkled in the Women's Major for last night's tenpin highlights.

Southpaw Dulin cracked alleys 11 and 12 at the Bowlodrome for solos of 203, 242 and 214.

Mrs. Moss knocked off scores of 210, 185 and 190 for high three of 585 in the Women's circuit, while Miss Schoonmaker's opening blast of 236 was a new seasonal record in that department. She added 153 and 193 for a runnerup 582.

Lapine Rolls 565

Charlotte Lapine toppled 202-565 for show in the Major, with Rose Schatzel clipping 558, Evelyn Gross 524, Eleanor Singer 515; Ada Markle 508 and Winnie Overfield 501. The near-miss group included Marge Jansen 498 and Elizabeth Bruck 493.

Team results:

Jones Dairy 3, Williams Lake 0; Jake's Grill 3, S.R.S. 0; Bert Bishop's 2, Sportsmen's Park 1.

A pair of 599s trailed Dulin in the City Minor. Joe Maurer hit 222-599 and Otto Schaller Jr. had 222-201-599. Three Bros. Lose To Pine Plains

A Three Brothers safari into the hinterlands resulted in another defeat last night, when the Esopus cagers bowed, 62-52, to the powerful Pine Plains A. C.

After leading 21-12 in the first quarter, the Brothers slumped to 17 points in the next two periods, while the hoopsters ran up 36. The Bros. steadied for a 14-14 standoff in the stretch but it was too late.

Big Jack Doyle and Jim Ferraro shared 33 points in the forward slots for Three Bros. Lewis dropped 18 and Brandt had 12 for Pine Plains.

Coach Terwilliger's basketeers meet the Newburgh A. C. Thursday at Wiltwyck School, then travel to Saugerties Saturday and to Wallkill Prison on Sunday.

Sarongs Survive Slash

Singapore (AP) — A Japanese economic writer has warned that Japanese textile workers may have to turn to other heavy industry if the slump in their products continues in Southeast Asia countries. Masao Takakura said Indonesia is the latest country to slash imports of Japanese textiles because of an unfavorable balance of trade. Only cambric and sarongs are being imported at present.

OUT OF DOORS with Field & Stream

By AL McLANE
(Fishing Editor)

A new year always starts me thinking about what I'm doing to do or what I'd like to do in the coming season.

Received a letter from Charles Ritz, the Paris hotelman who manages to spend most of his time fishing in remote places. This note was from the Em River in Sweden.

"Enclosed picture of me and two sea trout, 15 pounds and 22 pounds taken on fly. Trout here run from 12 pounds to 30 pounds, which is the greatest fishing I've ever found."

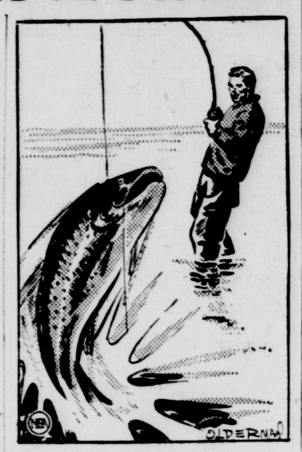

"The Swedish sea trout is actually a sea run brown trout, incidentally, and the fish taken in rivers like the Em from Fall through Spring. Might put this on your list of dream trips."

Which reminds me, Fenno Jacobs stopped by the other day with a photo story on Lake Titicaca. This 95-mile long lake is between Bolivia and Peru; at 12,000 feet it's the highest lake in the world. Rainbow trout run up to 34 pounds, and according to Fenno, trout of 15 pounds are common.

Nearer home there are big things cooking in Panama and Haiti. Panama is still relatively untouched big-game wise and we predict that next year is going to see a real boom in sailfish and marlin. Port Au Prince, Haiti, has opened up some really hot tarpon and snook fishing in nearby rivers and lakes.

On the local scene, I'll make a string of predictions for 1953. Cape Hatteras in North Carolina will be the hot spot for channel bass. Withlacoochie River in Florida has my vote for the Orange State's bigmouth bass. Dale Hollow Reservoir will stay up top on the smallmouth bass ladder and place a few largemouths—but watch for a decline in number of big fish taken from now on.

Of course Georgia and North Carolina are going to provide most of the prize-winning southern largemouths. Striped bass anglers will take big pulls on Massachusetts and Rhode Island beaches; the Jersey Coast and Coos River, Oregon, are always good for a few more.

Bonefish addicts can place their money on Islamorada, Fla. If it's bags of bonefish you want, go to the Isle of Pines, Cuba, or the outer islets of the West Indies. They're not as big—but plentiful. White marlin, Ocean City, Md. of course; the blues will be off Bimini. For snook, August on Lake Worth in Florida. They have a good supply of over-30 pounds fish. Trout other than the migratory rainbows are always hit and miss, but I'll go for Henry's Lake in Idaho for the landlocked kind. Michigan's northern streams for brown trout on the fly, and California's lakes for brown trout on spoon or bait.

People keep saying that Nipigon, Ontario, is a thing of the past. Guess they mean the river because Nipigon Lake keeps growing the fattest brook trout in this here country. Muskie fans can look to Chippeawa Flowage, Wisconsin, as always, and if it's real work you want, Wedgeport, Nova Scotia for bluefin tuna. That's our round-up.

Various Reports Made to Police

Among mischief reported to the police yesterday were two thefts of Christmas tree bulbs, the tampering with tires of parked cars, and the use of slugs in parking meters.

Christmas bulbs were taken from a tree on the West Chestnut street property of Police Lt. James P. Martin, and from the trimmings on the L. J. Helmbold property, 22 Shufeldt street.

Police headquarters was notified at 9:20 p. m., yesterday that air had been left out of eight or 10 tires on cars parked near the George Washington School.

It was also reported that 55 washers had been found in parking meters on John and Crown streets.

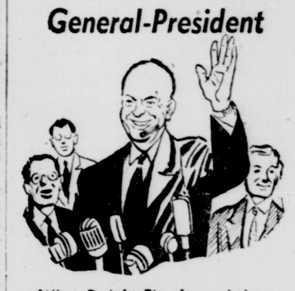

Guerrillas Losing Ground

Kuala Lumpur, Malaya (AP) — High Commissioner Sir Gerald Templer told resettled squatters at Temerloh, Pahang state, the battle against Communist guerrillas is taking a turn for the better. "There are fewer Chinese, Indian and Malay civilians being murdered. We are capturing far more arms and ammunition than we lose. Fewer buses are being burned. There is little interference with the railway, and fewer rubber trees are being slashed," he said.

NCAA Coaches to Urge Rigid Code of Ethics

Washington, Jan. 6 (AP)—College football coaches will put the finishing touches tonight on a rigid new code of ethics, and the president of the national body predicts adoption "with few or no changes."

"This is a move to protect our profession and to punish any member who does anything to tarnish that profession," said Carl Snavely, who recently resigned as head coach at the University of North Carolina.

Snavely released the revised version of the coaches' code, drawn up by a special committee headed by Dudley De Groot of the University of New Mexico.

Under provisions of the 14-page 4,200-word document, a coach must be a perfect gentleman, on and off the field, or face suspension or expulsion from the organization.

Under the code, the coach is required to:

1. Never take unfair advantage of an opponent.
2. Be "without boastfulness and without bitterness."
3. Never express publicly ill-feeling toward other coaches, players or officials.
4. Follow fully the policy of his institution.
5. Never apply pressure to an admissions officer to admit a student because of his athletic ability.
6. Before and after a game, always exchange friendly greetings with the rival coach, be as inconspicuous as possible during the game, be friendly and kindly at all times toward players and always be self-controlled and undemonstrative.
7. Not make uncomplimentary remarks to officials or let players do it during a game.
8. Take no part in polls and make no predictions on game outcomes.
9. Allow a 15-minute cooling-off period before admitting reporters to dressing rooms after games.

Snavely said the idea of an ethics code arose as the result of two unfortunate incidents:

1. The injury to Drake's Johnny Bright in a game with Oklahoma A. and M. in 1951, and
2. The charges the same year that Dartmouth went "out to get" Princeton's All-America Dick Kazmaier.

"Both incidents created charges and bad feelings," Snavely said. "Our code would eliminate such as that."

Y.M.C.A. News

Bowling was one of the top activities at the Y during the recent holiday season. More than 40 boys, many who had never bowled before, took advantage of the Y bowling facilities. In the bowling tournament held by the Boys' Division, Junior Jack Dawkins got a score of 152 with Cadet Eugene Nagle and Prep Alva Dubois following with scores of 150 and 96 respectively. At the end of the playoffs Jack Dawkins was winner of the tournament and received a pocketknife as prize.

Other activities included a MJM Friday Niter's party with movies, singing and dancing contests. The pool was frequently used by members of the Boys' Division. Many participated in endurance swimming trials conducted by Lou Schafer, director of the Y's physical department.

The Boys' Division plans to form new clubs and strengthen and enlarge others with attractive programs. Plans are also underway to make the woodworking shop available to those who wish to use it under proper supervision. Several tours to West Point and nearby industrial centers will probably get underway before February. Also a more extensive swimming program will be inaugurated this month for all members of the Boys' Division.

The first Friday Niters dance of the New Year was held this last weekend. Over 45 couples attended and enjoyed a varied dance program. A larger attendance is expected as the year progresses. Future dance programs will include movie cartoons, group singing, well-rehearsed entertainment and a night of square dancing conducted by a professional caller.

Because of the Kingston High School dances which will be held at the Y's Youth Center this month, there will be no dancing for members of the Friday Niter's dance Friday, Jan. 9, and the following Friday, Jan. 16. Dancing for members of the Friday Niters dance will be resumed Friday, Jan. 23.

Present officers of the MJM VanIngen Club are as follows: Edward Zwick, president; Donald Van Buren, vice president; Bob Hirons, secretary-treasurer; Henry Ketterer, sergeant-at-arms; Bob Mosley, membership; and Mark Feldman, membership.

MONTE 'LAYS IT ON THE LINE' FOR CONTRACT

New York Giants outfielder Monte Irvin puts his right leg on the desk of Horace Stoneham, president of the club, to prove that his fractured right ankle is "as good as ever" during ceremonies attendant on the signing of his new contract in New York. Monte signed a contract for 1953 calling for about $25,000. He broke his ankle in a slide to third base during a Denver exhibition game last April 2.

Three Bros. Lose To Pine Plains

A Three Brothers safari into the hinterlands resulted in another defeat last night, when the Esopus cagers bowed, 62-52, to the powerful Pine Plains A. C.

After leading 21-12 in the first quarter, the Brothers slumped to 17 points in the next two periods, while the hoopsters ran up 36. The Bros. steadied for a 14-14 standoff in the stretch but it was too late.

Big Jack Doyle and Jim Ferraro shared 33 points in the forward slots for Three Bros. Lewis dropped 18 and Brandt had 12 for Pine Plains.

Coach Terwilliger's basketeers meet the Newburgh A. C. Thursday at Wiltwyck School, then travel to Saugerties Saturday and to Wallkill Prison on Sunday.

Sarongs Survive Slash

Singapore (AP) — A Japanese economic writer has warned that Japanese textile workers may have to turn to other heavy industry if the slump in their products continues in Southeast Asia countries. Masao Takakura said Indonesia is the latest country to slash imports of Japanese textiles because of an unfavorable balance of trade. Only cambric and sarongs are being imported at present.

OUT OF DOORS with Field & Stream

By AL McLANE
(Fishing Editor)

A new year always starts me thinking about what I'm doing to do or what I'd like to do in the coming season.

Received a letter from Charles Ritz, the Paris hotelman who manages to spend most of his time fishing in remote places. This note was from the Em River in Sweden.

"Enclosed picture of me and two sea trout, 15 pounds and 22 pounds taken on fly. Trout here run from 12 pounds to 30 pounds, which is the greatest fishing I've ever found."

"The Swedish sea trout is actually a sea run brown trout, incidentally, and the fish taken in rivers like the Em from Fall through Spring. Might put this on your list of dream trips."

Which reminds me, Fenno Jacobs stopped by the other day with a photo story on Lake Titicaca. This 95-mile long lake is between Bolivia and Peru; at 12,000 feet it's the highest lake in the world. Rainbow trout run up to 34 pounds, and according to Fenno, trout of 15 pounds are common.

Nearer home there are big things cooking in Panama and Haiti. Panama is still relatively untouched big-game wise and we predict that next year is going to see a real boom in sailfish and marlin. Port Au Prince, Haiti, has opened up some really hot tarpon and snook fishing in nearby rivers and lakes.

On the local scene, I'll make a string of predictions for 1953. Cape Hatteras in North Carolina will be the hot spot for channel bass. Withlacoochie River in Florida has my vote for the Orange State's bigmouth bass. Dale Hollow Reservoir will stay up top on the smallmouth bass ladder and place a few largemouths—but watch for a decline in number of big fish taken from now on.

Of course Georgia and North Carolina are going to provide most of the prize-winning southern largemouths. Striped bass anglers will take big pulls on Massachusetts and Rhode Island beaches; the Jersey Coast and Coos River, Oregon, are always good for a few more.

Bonefish addicts can place their money on Islamorada, Fla. If it's bags of bonefish you want, go to the Isle of Pines, Cuba, or the outer islets of the West Indies. They're not as big—but plentiful. White marlin, Ocean City, Md. of course; the blues will be off Bimini. For snook, August on Lake Worth in Florida. They have a good supply of over-30 pounds fish. Trout other than the migratory rainbows are always hit and miss, but I'll go for Henry's Lake in Idaho for the landlocked kind. Michigan's northern streams for brown trout on the fly, and California's lakes for brown trout on spoon or bait.

People keep saying that Nipigon, Ontario, is a thing of the past. Guess they mean the river because Nipigon Lake keeps growing the fattest brook trout in this here country. Muskie fans can look to Chippeawa Flowage, Wisconsin, as always, and if it's real work you want, Wedgeport, Nova Scotia for bluefin tuna. That's our round-up.

Guerrillas Losing Ground

Kuala Lumpur, Malaya (AP) — High Commissioner Sir Gerald Templer told resettled squatters at Temerloh, Pahang state, the battle against Communist guerrillas is taking a turn for the better. "There are fewer Chinese, Indian and Malay civilians being murdered. We are capturing far more arms and ammunition than we lose. Fewer buses are being burned. There is little interference with the railway, and fewer rubber trees are being slashed," he said.

Truck Driver Solves Problem of Height

One truck driver got himself into trouble yesterday as he hauled a 55-foot cabin cruiser on his trailer truck to the annual Motor Boat Show at Grand Central Palace.

The city's streets just weren't meant for boats, especially at Third avenue, where there is an elevated railway. The craft was just an inch or so too tall to pass under the elevated structure.

But the truck driver solved everything in a hurry. He just let some air out of the truck tires until the cruiser cleared the elevated.

Truck Driver Solves Problem of Height

New York, Jan. 6 (AP)—Here's a tip to truck drivers, particularly those who might have trouble getting through low passageways. Motorists, take note too.

One truck driver got himself into trouble yesterday as he hauled a 55-foot cabin cruiser on his trailer truck to the annual Motor Boat Show at Grand Central Palace.

The city's streets just weren't meant for boats, especially at Third avenue, where there is an elevated railway. The craft was just an inch or so too tall to pass under the elevated structure.

But the truck driver solved everything in a hurry. He just let some air out of the truck tires until the cruiser cleared the elevated.

By RICHARD E. THIBAUT, Jr.

Fire Companies Elect '53 Officers

Woodstock, Jan. 6—At the annual meeting of Woodstock Fire Companies No. 1 and 2, held Monday night at the fire hall, the following officers for the coming year were elected: Birge Simmons, re-elected president; Hud Cramer, Jr., vice president; Herbert G. Wyman, re-elected secretary; Mervin Doremus, re-elected treasurer; the Rev. Harvey I. Todd, chaplain; George Haythorne, fire chief; Douglas Franckling, first assistant chief; Eric Wiltz, second assistant chief; Mervin Doremus, chief driver; Nelson Shultis and Hud Cramer, Jr., delegates to the Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association; DeWitt Shultis, alternate delegate; Everand Short, delegate to the Hudson Valley Volunteer Fireman's Association; Fred Thiaz, re-elected to the executive committee.

The following members were appointed to the by-laws committee: Henry Bertsch, Roger Grazier, Nelson Shultis and Hud Cramer, Jr.

New members elected to the company were Paul Fenster, William Murphy, Gordon Van De Bogart of Bearsville, Arthur DiNapoli, and Richard Dayton Shultis, of Mount Tremper as a member of the Woodstock Fire Company No. 2.

According to the secretary's report for 1952, there were 449 members, of those 37 members belonged to Fire Company No. 2 of Wittenberg. The total figure included six social memberships, six exempt firemen and four life memberships.

A report was made by Fire Chief George Haythorne, who thanked the officers and members for their support. He stated that there were 34 calls answered during the year 1952, of which 14 were for grass and brush fires, five chimney fires, one truck and one car fire, five oil stove fires, three miscellaneous fires, and three fires attended at West Hurley.

A letter was read to the members from the Woodstock Square Club Christmas Committee, in which the co-chairmen, Warren Hutty and Joseph Hutty thanked the fire company for their participation and cooperation in the Christmas Eve program.

An amount of $5 was voted to the Ulster County Tuberculosis and Health Association for the Christmas seal drive.

Herbert G. Wyman, secretary of the company, was voted a $25 bonus for services rendered during the past year.

It was announced that a list had been made at the December meeting of members who are two years in arrears with their dues.

Plans were made for the purchase of 23 new fire company badges.

Skating Rink Has 25 for Opening

Woodstock, Jan. 6 — Although the Woodstock Recreation Field skating rink has seemed to be almost skatable several times this winter, the first real try-out of the ice pond came Monday afternoon when about 25 youngsters gathered at the field. The ice was solid with a fair surface, bumpy only in spots with plenty of clear runway for the faster skaters. Numbers of little novices were trying their new Christmas skates for the first time, some on safe little double bladers and others trying out their new single blade skates as a mark of progress.

One of the notable characteristics of the young Woodstock skating group, observed time and again during the afternoon, was the willingness on the part of the larger children to help the little ones around the rink. Even the bigger boys and girls, who have acquired a considerable amount of speed and skill, were obviously careful not to interfere with, or spoil the fun of the eager inexperienced little skaters.

When visitors remarked upon the good manners of the children on the rink, a mother who has brought her child there to skate many times on previous seasons answered: "Oh, they are always like this .You never have to worry about them, no matter how little they are. They are wonderful the way they help each other."

As the dusk fell upon the field and only the headlights of one or two cars lit the rink, it was apparent that the young athletes who had been blessed with the first ideally crisp day for their sport, were reluctant to leave.

It was understood from the Recreation Committee that weather conditions permitting the floodlights will be turned on for night skating and that the clubhouse will be open for the convenience of the skaters.

Cashin to Speak to P-TA

Woodstock, Jan. 6—A program of exceptional interest to both parents and students has been announced for the regular monthly meeting of the Woodstock Parent-Teacher Association to be held at the Woodstock Elementary School, Thursday, Jan. 8, at 8 p. m. Judge Cashin is well known to Woodstock audiences having been moderator at the Woodstock Forum several years ago. He will speak on The influence of radio, television, comics and movies on the youth of today. In addition there will be a panel of speakers composed of two children, two parents and a teacher.

Tinker Nursery Moves Meeting to January 15

Woodstock, Jan. 6—The Tinker Street Cooperative Nursery School, which usually holds its regular monthly meeting on the second Thursday of the month, has postponed the January meeting until Thursday, Jan. 15, in lieu of the P-TA meeting to be held this Thursday. The program topic will be announced later.

The new semester at the school begin January 15, and it has been announced by Mrs. William Stifler, president, that there are several vacancies.

Housekeeper Service Is Planned for Emergencies

Woodstock, Jan. 6 — Village residents are reminded that the Woodstock Public Health Nursing Committee is continuing to operate the visiting housekeepers service which was instituted last year. At this time of the year when illness in the family is prevalent in almost every home, the demand for visiting housekeepers increases. Anyone who would like to participate in this service is requested to register with Mrs. Warren Hutty, by calling her at Woodstock 2411. Mrs. Hutty will explain details of the service when application is made.

The visiting housekeepers service is operated specifically on an emergency basis, and calls may only be filled upon requests for assistance in the event of illness or emergency conditions.

Village Notes

Woodstock, Jan. 6 — Mr. and Mrs. Edward R. Perkins, Jr., returned to this village January 4, after a holiday visit with Mrs. Perkins' family, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Mattiasen of Red Bank, N. J.

Mrs. Daniel Revzan returned Monday from a short trip to New York.

George Haythorne celebrated his birthday January 4.

Clark Bell, son of Mrs. Jerry Jerominek, left Sunday for St. John's Prep School at Erie, Pa. He interrupted his stay here to make a visit to Washington, D. C., where he was the guest of Col. and Mrs. Robert Evans, summer residents of Bearsville.

Rebekahs to Meet

Woodstock, Jan. 6—Agapae Rebekah Lodge will hold its meeting Wednesday night at the Bearsville Lodge Hall. Following the meeting refreshments will be served by the Odd Fellows.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

of administration granted to Anna, on the grounds that the Ulster county surrogate has no jurisdiction because Wood was a resident of Rensselaer county.

Max Goldstein, attorney for Anna Hauck Wood, in his concluding argument, contended that since Wood committed the crime of bigamy when he married Jean Patricelli, the Albany and Rensselaer county addresses maintained by Wood were kept illegally to conceal the crime, and that Wood's legal residence was in Ulster county. Goldstein also contended that Jean Patricelli Wood was not an interested person to bring the proceeding since Wood was legally married to Anna Hauck Wood.

As Mother and Guardian

Schwarz countered that his client, Jean, brought the proceeding as the "mother and natural guardian" of three children by Wood. He also amended the petition to include the words "and guardian ad litem." He cited the New York city domestic relations court act as establishing that children born of a union resulting from a ceremonial form are legitimate children even though such ceremonial form may later be declared null and void.

Reviewing the testimony, Schwarz contended that Wood in the past four years had by his own action established Albany county as his legal residence until his move to Rensselaer county, when the latter county became his legal residence. He pointed to the evidence that Wood was a registered voter in Albany county for the years 1949, 1950 and 1951. He also noted that Wood's chauffeur's license renewed in 1952 listed his residence as Schaghticoke, Rensselaer county.

Schwarz was given 10 days in which to prepare and submit his memorandum, serving a copy on Goldstein, who in turn was granted an additional 10 days to prepare his memorandum. The case was then put over to Jan. 26.

Four Lose Attempts To Void Indictments

Hudson, Jan. 6 (AP)—Four men have lost attempts to void indictments returned against them by the extraordinary grand jury investigating crime and vice in Columbia county.

Justice Henry L. Ughetta of State Supreme Court yesterday denied the motions to dismiss indictments against Edward Dillon, William Mesick and Benjamin Goldstein, all of Hudson, and Ben Reizen of Troy.

Ughetta also denied motions by the four for permission to examine minutes of the grand jury.

He acted as trial of a suspended Hudson police sergeant opened in the special term of State Supreme Court convened in connection with the state-ordered probe.

the President. Others filed an appeal at the State Department.

There were other demonstrations around the world.

The Rosenbergs yesterday got a virtual reprieve pending a White House decision on whether to grant clemency. Federal Judge Irving R. Kaufman of New York, who sentenced them to die, said the executions will be stayed automatically if an application for Presidential clemency is filed by Saturday.

Jan. 14th Death Date

The Rosenbergs are now scheduled to die Jan. 14 in Sing Sing prison's electric chair. Kaufman said his stay would hold until five days after a Presidential decision.

The Rosenbergs were convicted March 29, 1951, of conspiring to turn America's atom bomb secrets over to Russia. In denying judicial clemency last week, Judge Kaufman called their crime worse than murder. The Supreme Court has refused to intervene.

The Rosenbergs have steadfastly maintained their innocence. They have been in Sing Sing's death house since last spring.

Philippines Are Shaken

Manila, Jan. 6 (AP)—Several light earthquakes shook the southern Philippines area in the past 24 hours but did no damage, the government geophysical department said.

Goldstein is accused of attempting to bribe a public official. Reizen was indicted on a charge of perjury.

FLYING BASKET—Henry Meider, of Manila, P. I., extreme left, stands beside the "Flying Basket," which he recently successfully piloted. The Flying Basket's body was manufactured of stripped bamboo and wood obtained in the Philippines and determined whether local products could be substituted for expensive imports in plane construction. The project was sponsored jointly by the Philippine Air Force and Institute of Science and Technology.

Lonesome Soldiers Look for Letters

It is bad enough to be stationed in a foreign country during the Christmas holiday season, away from family and friends but to be lonesome for news from home is even more depressing. Private Thomas Brown, on duty in France with an engineer construction battalion, wrote to The Freeman the day after Christmas that he and seven of his "buddies" would like to receive mail from home.

"We get very few letters and would like to have someone write to us," Pvt. Brown writes. He is a Kingston boy and on behalf of himself and his friends he asks The Freeman to "put a piece in the paper about us" seeking letters from home.

Pvt. Thomas Brown, RA-12410427, is a member of Co. A. 982 Eng. Cont. Bn., Orlean Area Command, APO 58, C/O P.M., New York, N. Y., as are his seven "buddies." The "other fellows" who are seeking correspondence from home are:

Pfc. Robert E. Johnson, RA-17296970; Pfc. Joel Martin, RA-1545582; Pvt. Kendall Hoskins, RA15298233; Pvt. Ernest Smith, US52168532; Pvt. James R. Frye, US52174306; Pvt. William Roflow, US52194390; Pfc. Robert G. Quinn, US52165485. All of the men are in the same company and have the same APO address.

Two Actions Settled

Two negligence actions were settled in Supreme Court this morning. Floyd H. Terwilliger brought an action against Vincent Secor, as administrator etc., and Otis Terwilliger, as administrator brought an action against Frank V. Terwilliger. Plaintiffs Floyd H. Terwilliger and Otis Terwilliger were represented by Napoletano, Kelly and Saccoman and Cook & Cook appeared for the defendants, Vincent Secor and Frank V. Terwilliger.

Skating Rink Has 25 for Opening

Woodstock, Jan. 6 — Although the Woodstock Recreation Field skating rink has seemed to be almost skatable several times this winter, the first real try-out of the ice pond came Monday afternoon when about 25 youngsters gathered at the field. The ice was solid with a fair surface, bumpy only in spots with plenty of clear runway for the faster skaters. Numbers of little novices were trying their new Christmas skates for the first time, some on safe little double bladers and others trying out their new single blade skates as a mark of progress.

One of the notable characteristics of the young Woodstock skating group, observed time and again during the afternoon, was the willingness on the part of the larger children to help the little ones around the rink. Even the bigger boys and girls, who have acquired a considerable amount of speed and skill, were obviously careful not to interfere with, or spoil the fun of the eager inexperienced little skaters.

When visitors remarked upon the good manners of the children on the rink, a mother who has brought her child there to skate many times on previous seasons answered: "Oh, they are always like this .You never have to worry about them, no matter how little they are. They are wonderful the way they help each other."

As the dusk fell upon the field and only the headlights of one or two cars lit the rink, it was apparent that the young athletes who had been blessed with the first ideally crisp day for their sport, were reluctant to leave.

It was understood from the Recreation Committee that weather conditions permitting the floodlights will be turned on for night skating and that the clubhouse will be open for the convenience of the skaters.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

of administration granted to Anna, on the grounds that the Ulster county surrogate has no jurisdiction because Wood was a resident of Rensselaer county.

Max Goldstein, attorney for Anna Hauck Wood, in his concluding argument, contended that since Wood committed the crime of bigamy when he married Jean Patricelli, the Albany and Rensselaer county addresses maintained by Wood were kept illegally to conceal the crime, and that Wood's legal residence was in Ulster county. Goldstein also contended that Jean Patricelli Wood was not an interested person to bring the proceeding since Wood was legally married to Anna Hauck Wood.

As Mother and Guardian

Schwarz countered that his client, Jean, brought the proceeding as the "mother and natural guardian" of three children by Wood. He also amended the petition to include the words "and guardian ad litem." He cited the New York city domestic relations court act as establishing that children born of a union resulting from a ceremonial form are legitimate children even though such ceremonial form may later be declared null and void.

Reviewing the testimony, Schwarz contended that Wood in the past four years had by his own action established Albany county as his legal residence until his move to Rensselaer county, when the latter county became his legal residence. He pointed to the evidence that Wood was a registered voter in Albany county for the years 1949, 1950 and 1951. He also noted that Wood's chauffeur's license renewed in 1952 listed his residence as Schaghticoke, Rensselaer county.

Schwarz was given 10 days in which to prepare and submit his memorandum, serving a copy on Goldstein, who in turn was granted an additional 10 days to prepare his memorandum. The case was then put over to Jan. 26.

Four Lose Attempts To Void Indictments

Hudson, Jan. 6 (AP)—Four men have lost attempts to void indictments returned against them by the extraordinary grand jury investigating crime and vice in Columbia county.

Justice Henry L. Ughetta of State Supreme Court yesterday denied the motions to dismiss indictments against Edward Dillon, William Mesick and Benjamin Goldstein, all of Hudson, and Ben Reizen of Troy.

Ughetta also denied motions by the four for permission to examine minutes of the grand jury.

He acted as trial of a suspended Hudson police sergeant opened in the special term of State Supreme Court convened in connection with the state-ordered probe.

William F. Egan is charged with accepting bribes from operators of houses of prostitution and with denying the bribe-taking when he testified later before the grand jury.

Dillon and Mesick are charged with operating a numbers game. Goldstein is accused of attempting to bribe a public official. Reizen was indicted on a charge of perjury.

There were other demonstrations around the world.

The Rosenbergs yesterday got a virtual reprieve pending a White House decision on whether to grant clemency. Federal Judge Irving R. Kaufman of New York, who sentenced them to die, said the executions will be stayed automatically if an application for Presidential clemency is filed by Saturday.

Jan. 14th Death Date

The Rosenbergs are now scheduled to die Jan. 14 in Sing Sing prison's electric chair. Kaufman said his stay would hold until five days after a Presidential decision.

The Rosenbergs were convicted March 29, 1951, of conspiring to turn America's atom bomb secrets over to Russia. In denying judicial clemency last week, Judge Kaufman called their crime worse than murder. The Supreme Court has refused to intervene.

The Rosenbergs have steadfastly maintained their innocence. They have been in Sing Sing's death house since last spring.

Lonesome Soldiers Look for Letters

It is bad enough to be stationed in a foreign country during the Christmas holiday season, away from family and friends but to be lonesome for news from home is even more depressing. Private Thomas Brown, on duty in France with an engineer construction battalion, wrote to The Freeman the day after Christmas that he and seven of his "buddies" would like to receive mail from home.

"We get very few letters and would like to have someone write to us," Pvt. Brown writes. He is a Kingston boy and on behalf of himself and his friends he asks The Freeman to "put a piece in the paper about us" seeking letters from home.

Pvt. Thomas Brown, RA-12410427, is a member of Co. A, 982 Eng. Cont. Bn., Orlean Area Command, APO 58, C/O P.M., New York, N. Y., as are his seven "buddies." The "other fellows" who are seeking correspondence from home are:

Pfc. Robert E. Johnson, RA-17296970; Pfc. Joel Martin, RA-1545582; Pvt. Kendall Hoskins, RA15298233; Pvt. Ernest Smith, US52168532; Pvt. James R. Frye, US52174306; Pvt. William Roflow, US52194390; Pfc. Robert G. Quinn, US52165485. All of the men are in the same company and have the same APO address.

Two Actions Settled

Two negligence actions were settled in Supreme Court this morning. Floyd H. Orange County Onion Group Reported Involved in Fight

Chicago, Jan. 6 (AP)—Two major groups of traders are involved in a tussle in the onion market, producing active dealings and wide price fluctuations, trade sources said today.

Onion futures are traded on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. Activity last year was the heaviest in the 10 years or organized dealings. The market has been very active in the two sessions this year.

Prices have shown wide variations. For example, the January futures contract, calling for delivery this month, reached a peak of $3.59 a 50 pound sack on Oct. 30. By December 18 it had plunged to $1.97. It's come back since, closing at $2.81 yesterday.

It's always difficulty to get information about who is trading in a futures market, and the knowledge obtained cannot be proved, but men who know the operation of the market give this story:

Speculative and investment interest in onions is not confined to any two or three sections of the country, but at the moment there are two major groups. One group is centered around the producing center of Florida, in Orange county, New York. The other consists of merchants along South Water street, Chicago.

Futures Moved Up

Onion futures moved up strongly in October and November of last year. Buying was based on official reports showing a terrific "disappearance"—that is, consumption—of the commodity, the Florida, N. Y., group was a big buyer.

There were heavy deliveries of the November futures contract—that is, cash onions were offered to and accepted by those who had bought the futures. Deliveries of between 200 and 225 cars were taken by two commission houses believed to be representing the Florida, N. Y., group.

These onions were not initially hedged in the futures market—in other words, no sales had been made in onion futures to correspond to the holdings of cash onions. But then a price decline set in after Thanksgiving. There were reports onions were more plentiful than had been supposed, that they had been "hidden under haystacks in the country."

Started to Hedge

The Florida, N. Y., group started to hedge its position in cash onions by selling January and March futures contracts. However, they sold more futures than they had cash onions—in other words, they went short on the market in expectation of making a profit on a price drop.

The November futures contract on which delivery of cash onions were made were bought at around $3.15 to $3.25 a sack. The New York group started to sell futures, hedging their cash holdings, at $2.80 to $2.95. It was during this period the prices plunged so deeply.

As prices went down, the Chicago Merchandising Group started to buy on the belief prices had sunk much too low. Since around mid-December prices have staged a good recovery. Trade sources view the market as largely a tussle between these two groups, with the final outcome uncertain.

127 Cars Are Delivered

There were 127 cars of onions delivered on January contracts yesterday. These came largely from the Florida, N. Y., group. The deliveries were accepted by several commission houses. It's possible, however, that they will be re-delivered—thrown back on the market—before the month is over.

The ticklish factor in the situation concerns the Texas onion crop, although these onions are not eligible for delivery on futures contracts. However, a big, early Texas crop will force down prices of all onions.

Futures contracts on the exchange call for delivery of No. 1 yellow globe onions, northern grown. These are harvested in the autumn. They can be put in cold storage warehouses and will keep until, perhaps, April or May—after that they aren't too good.

Comes in February

The big Texas crop comes in during February or March, usually March.

When this crop is thrown on the market, prices of all onions decline. Thus onions accepted on January futures must be gotten rid of in a short time or those who accept delivery are likely to take a loss. The Texas crop got off to a slow start because of an autumn drouth and may be harvested later than usual.

Each year the question at this time is: How many onions are available from last autumn's crop to take care of consumption until the Texas crop is harvested?

	High	Low	Yesterday
January ..	$3.59	$1.97	$2.81
February .	$3.75	$2.20	$2.97
March ...	$4.00	$2.36	$3.20

AWOL. That indicates a permanent force of runways numbering 25,000 to 30,000 men.

The Times said its information, obtained from responsible military and civilian persons, amply confirms that the desertion problem is a serious one.

The Times indicated that subsequent articles would show public hostility to army service and misplaced pressure from congressmen on the military has weakened discipline and morale.

Sources at the Pentagon in Washington had no immediate comment on the Times' report.

Ellsworth Rules

On Sept. 10, 1948, Van Kleeck leased another portion of the premises to William F. Crosby, John J. Mertz, Sr. and John J. Mertz, Jr., co-partners. This lease contained a similar option provision with the additional provision, "subject to any prior option which may exist in favor of Louis Ferrara."

On Nov. 15, 1948, Van Kleeck entered into a "binder" agreement with Gilbert for the sale and purchase of the entire premises, including the store leased to Ferrara and the portion leased to the Crosby and Mertz firm.

On Nov. 29 of the same year, Ferrara assigned to Gilbert the option to purchase contained in his lease and the following day Gilbert notified Van Kleeck of his exercise of this option. On Dec. 1, Dumenigo assigned the same option to Crosby and Mertz. Gilbert filed the lis pendens (notification that a suit is pending) with the county clerk on Dec. 13, 1948. The same day Van Kleeck executed a deed, which was recorded the next day, to Crosby-Mertz, Inc., successor to the partnership.

The issue raised is who had the prior right to purchase the premises. Justice Elsworth ruled in favor of the plaintiff, Gilbert.

The case may be appealed.

Orange County Onion Group Reported Involved in Fight

Chicago, Jan. 6 (AP)—Two major groups of traders are involved in a tussle in the onion market, producing active dealings and wide price fluctuations, trade sources said today.

Onion futures are traded on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. Activity last year was the heaviest in the 10 years or organized dealings. The market has been very active in the two sessions this year.

Prices have shown wide variations. For example, the January futures contract, calling for delivery this month, reached a peak of $3.59 a 50 pound sack on Oct. 30. By December 18 it had plunged to $1.97. It's come back since, closing at $2.81 yesterday.

It's always difficulty to get information about who is trading in a futures market, and the knowledge obtained cannot be proved, but men who know the operation of the market give this story:

Speculative and investment interest in onions is not confined to any two or three sections of the country, but at the moment there are two major groups. One group is centered around the producing center of Florida, in Orange county, New York. The other consists of merchants along South Water street, Chicago.

Futures Moved Up

Onion futures moved up strongly in October and November of last year. Buying was based on official reports showing a terrific "disappearance"—that is, consumption—of the commodity, the Florida, N. Y., group was a big buyer.

There were heavy deliveries of the November futures contract—that is, cash onions were offered to and accepted by those who had bought the futures. Deliveries of between 200 and 225 cars were taken by two commission houses believed to be representing the Florida, N. Y., group.

These onions were not initially hedged in the futures market—in other words, no sales had been made in onion futures to correspond to the holdings of cash onions. But then a price decline set in after Thanksgiving. There were reports onions were more plentiful than had been supposed, that they had been "hidden under haystacks in the country."

Started to Hedge

The Florida, N. Y., group started to hedge its position in cash onions by selling January and March futures contracts. However, they sold more futures than they had cash onions—in other words, they went short on the market in expectation of making a profit on a price drop.

The November futures contract on which delivery of cash onions were made were bought at around $3.15 to $3.25 a sack. The New York group started to sell futures, hedging their cash holdings, at $2.80 to $2.95. It was during this period the prices plunged so deeply.

As prices went down, the Chicago Merchandising Group started to buy on the belief prices had sunk much too low. Since around mid-December prices have staged a good recovery. Trade sources view the market as largely a tussle between these two groups, with the final outcome uncertain.

127 Cars Are Delivered

There were 127 cars of onions delivered on January contracts yesterday. These came largely from the Florida, N. Y., group. The deliveries were accepted by several commission houses. It's possible, however, that they will be re-delivered—thrown back on the market—before the month is over.

The ticklish factor in the situation concerns the Texas onion crop, although these onions are not eligible for delivery on futures contracts. However, a big, early Texas crop will force down prices of all onions.

Futures contracts on the exchange call for delivery of No. 1 yellow globe onions, northern grown. These are harvested in the autumn. They can be put in cold storage warehouses and will keep until, perhaps, April or May—after that they aren't too good.

Comes in February

The big Texas crop comes in during February or March, usually March.

When this crop is thrown on the market, prices of all onions decline. Thus onions accepted on January futures must be gotten rid of in a short time or those who accept delivery are likely to take a loss. The Texas crop got off to a slow start because of an autumn drouth and may be harvested later than usual.

Each year the question at this time is: How many onions are available from last autumn's crop to take care of consumption until the Texas crop is harvested?

On Dec. 1, cold storage holdings totaled 61,914,000 pounds, slightly less than the 66,059,000 pounds a year earlier.

	High	Low	Yesterday
January ..	$3.59	$1.97	$2.81
February .	$3.75	$2.20	$2.97
March ...	$4.00	$2.36	$3.20

Attempt Is Suppressed

La Paz, Bolivia, Jan. 6 (AP)—The Bolivian government announced today it had suppressed an attempt by military and right wing civilian forces to launch a revolution at dawn in this tin-rich country. Bolivia's president is Victor Paz Estenssoro, who returned from exile last April to head the government after revolution toppled a military regime that had ruled for almost a year.

AWOL. That indicates a permanent force of runways numbering 25,000 to 30,000 men.

The Times said its information, obtained from responsible military and civilian persons, amply confirms that the desertion problem is a serious one.

The Times indicated that subsequent articles would show public hostility to army service and misplaced pressure from congressmen on the military has weakened discipline and morale.

Sources at the Pentagon in Washington had no immediate comment on the Times' report.

Ellsworth Rules

menigo subsequently desired to sell. Ferrara the same day sub-let the store to Dumenigo.

On Sept. 10, 1948, Van Kleeck leased another portion of the premises to William F. Crosby, John J. Mertz, Sr. and John J. Mertz, Jr., co-partners. This lease contained a similar option provision with the additional provision, "subject to any prior option which may exist in favor of Louis Ferrara."

On Nov. 15, 1948, Van Kleeck entered into a "binder" agreement with Gilbert for the sale and purchase of the entire premises, including the store leased to Ferrara and the portion leased to the Crosby and Mertz firm.

On Nov. 29 of the same year, Ferrara assigned to Gilbert the option to purchase contained in his lease and the following day Gilbert notified Van Kleeck of his exercise of this option. On Dec. 1, Dumenigo assigned the same option to Crosby and Mertz. Gilbert filed the lis pendens (notification that a suit is pending) with the county clerk on Dec. 13, 1948. The same day Van Kleeck executed a deed, which was recorded the next day, to Crosby-Mertz, Inc., successor to the partnership.

The issue raised is who had the prior right to purchase the premises. Justice Elsworth ruled in favor of the plaintiff, Gilbert.

The case may be appealed.
